Yamamoto, secretary of the Tokio Y. M. C. A. Derides Talk of War. "Japan must have an outlet," said Hattori in discussing Japanese immigration to California. "The population of Japan has increased by many hundreds of thousands within a few years and the time has come when Japan must settle the questions presented by your alien land law. The question of Japanese eligibility to citizenship in America and every other country must also be settled. It should have been settled long ago." The Japanese envoy decided all talk of war. "I do not believe it is a remote possibility," he said. "Such talk is foolish." Hattori declared that race prejudice was at the bottom of the California exclusion movement. "I believe," he said, "that in time California will be able to throw off this race prejudice as Japan has done. This alien land law was promoted by people of the descendants of people who came to this country just as the Japanese are doing. I am convinced that the only solution of the problem is a new treaty covering all the points in dispute. Shy at Discrimination. "I am not prepared to say whether Japan will insist upon ownership of agricultural land but no country can, of course, view discrimination with philosophy." At the conclusion of their visit to California the party of Japanese envoys will go to Lake Mohonk, N. Y., to attend the annual conference of the Christian students federation there. COLLINS TELLS. (Continued from Page 1.) Collins then described how he "planted" dynamite at places indicated by Breen, adding: "Breen inquired where Joseph Elton was speaking. He endeavored to plant dynamite there, but found the hall closed. The first I knew of what Breen had done was when I saw in the papers that dynamite had been found in Lawrence. "Breen paid me $50 in two installments of $25 each, saying: 'The Syrians liked me at the last election, but this joke will teach them a lesson and elect me mayor besides.'" Denies Criminality. Collins insisted that he never suspected he was doing anything criminal. He denied that he had been promised immunity but admitted that his attorney had advised him to tell the truth and that the district attorney probably would help him. Police Inspector Rooney testified that he had been "hipped" by Breen in January, 1912, that dynamite had been planted. Rooney said he located it and arrested several persons. Collins testified that while he was carrying the bundle of 75 per cent dynamite from the train at Lawrence he stumbled and fell, the dynamite striking the track. Only the fact that the explosive was frozen, he said, prevented a disaster. TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY FOR TRADE—Desirable residence property in Medford for small farm in Oregon, Washington or Idaho.
