PENDLETON ROUNDUP AT PAGE TONIGHT

Theatregoers who enjoy pictures of frontier scenes showing cowboys and cowgirls at play will have a rare treat tonight when the 1912 Pendleton Roundup, in four reels, four thousand feet of perfect film, will be shown at the Page theatre. The show is one decidedly worth while.

There is not an inactive moment during the hour and fifteen minutes it takes to put on the production. Action is continuous with all of the thrills which accompany frontier sports, and patrons will not be disappointed with the offering.

The films depict bulldozing, the most dangerous of cowboy sport, fancy roping, cowboys and cowgirls winning world's championships on wild horses, races of various sorts and in fact every daring feat of the horsemanship.

The pictures will be shown tonight and Saturday. Admission 15 and 10 cents.

"HANKY PANKY" BILLED FOR PAGE JUNE 20

"Hanky-Panky," a big Lew Fields musical comedy, has been billed at the Page theater for June 20 by Managers Fuson and Gordon. According to Edgar Hafer, who saw the show in Los Angeles, it is one of the best attractions he has seen in years and heartily recommends it to the Medford theatregoers. The cast includes Max Roberts, Bobby North, William Montgomery, Florence Moore, Christine Neilson, Myrtle Gilbert, Virginia Evans and Flo May, with a beauty chorus of fifty.

The play was written for Lew Fields himself, and Bobby North took the principal part; Fields intending to take it over when the show reached New York after its tryout. Before it got to Broadway, however, Fields and his old partner, Webber, reunited, and Fields left North at the head of "Hanky Panky." He has made a hit in it.
