TO ESTABLISH UNIVERSITY FOR HOME PEOPLE

Proposal Under Consideration to Open the University of Southern Oregon With Courses in Law, Medicine, Horticulture, Liberal Arts.

Modest Beginnings With Local Instructors and Lecturers to Be Paid on Fee Basis.

A University of Southern Oregon, to include courses in medicine, law, horticulture and liberal arts, in which Medford and Rogue River valley men will serve as instructors and lecturers, is the proposal of Dr. R. W. Mac Cullough, pastor of the Baptist church, and his son, who have recently come here from Pennsylvania to make their home.

The proposal is to build up from small beginnings a creditable modern university that will give practical results to home people and those elsewhere in southern Oregon. Some financial aid can be obtained nationally for such an institution, but the plan would be to make it self-sustaining from the start.

A small entrance fee would be charged and instructors' and lecturers' paid on the fee basis," says Dr. Mac Cullough.

"The project is yet in its infancy, but we have received a great deal of encouragement from leading business and professional men. The plan is that followed by many successful institutions, and almost universally used in building up the law and medical departments of universities."

The Mac Cullough's, father and son, are busy interviewing citizens, and as a result there is every prospect that success will crown their efforts. It is proposed to use a portion of the Medford Business college rooms, which can be secured at a nominal rent and will not interfere with the business college work.

serious. Many British and Americans are resident there. The government has received no late advices from Tuxpan, and the gravest apprehensions are entertained that before the arrival of the battleship a serious attack may be delivered against the foreign colony.

Wilson Greatly Worried. There is no doubt that President Wilson is deeply troubled over the Mexican outlook. He has sent additional orders to Ambassador Wilson to rush here from Key West without the loss of an hour, and the customs officials at that port have been ordered to lend every possible aid to the ambassador for his hasty transport to Washington.

President Wilson still maintains an open mind on the whole Mexican question. He has examined all the confidential reports received by the various departments and has prepared a series of searching questions to ask Ambassador Wilson on his arrival. While no one will lend his name as authority, there is a very general report here today that the United States, to avoid intervention, may simply recognize the belligerency of both factions in Mexico and then leave them to fight it out.

MISSIONARIES TELL OF WORK IN FOREIGN LANDS

The time of the principal services yesterday at the camp meeting was occupied by two returned missionaries, F. B. Armitage of Matabeleland, Central Africa, and B. J. Cady of Australasia. These discourses were given in narrative form and proved intensely interesting. It was plainly evidenced by those speakers that the life and work of a foreign missionary is by no means a sinecure. However, their statements of the progress and extension of the work in their respective fields was very encouraging.

The report of the secretary of the Sabbath school work throughout the conference occasioned very much interest and some discussion. It showed a substantial increase in this department of the cause.

One of the best meetings of the day is held at an early hour, from 6 to 7. It is a prayer and social service and serves largely to prepare the mind for the consideration of spiritual themes throughout the day.

Mix the Breakfast Biscuits the Night Before— Set Them Away in a Cool Place and Bake them Fresh in the Morning. If the family do not all eat breakfast together, you can bake a few at a time. If you are having hot biscuits for supper, mix and cut out enough more for breakfast. They will be much nicer freshly baked than warmed over. Of course you can't do this very successfully with sour milk and soda or with any of the old fashioned, single acting baking powders, but this convenient way of making hot biscuits and muffins for breakfast is entirely satisfactory if you use KG BAKING POWDER which is really a blend of two baking powders, one of which begins to give off leavening gas as soon as moisture is added. The other is inactive until heat is applied. The dough will remain in a partly leavened condition for hours and when put in the oven will come up just as light and fluffy as if freshly mixed. Get a can of K.C. today and try this easy way of baking biscuits at once. You'll never go back to the old way.
