The Whiteman Carburetor Adjuster idea originated by C. E. Whiteman, The first device was made by C. E.

This was installed on N. S. Janes Page Detroit car in October, 1912 and the results far exceeded expecta-

A partnership was formed by Whiteman and O. L. Early in January 1913, and the old Valley Auto shop leased. During winter and spring the idea was further worked out and for the manufacture of the adjuster and other automobile devices and im-

The company was strongly urged in the spring to go to California to install their plant and begin active operations with the assistance of California capital. They were confident in their ability to both finance and manufacture in Medford on a paying basis, thinking that shipping conditions would ultimately change here. The support that has been ac corded them by the people of Medford has already justified the judge ment in locating the factory here.

The company have built and tested a new carburetor which will be put on the market next year. They are at present experimenting with a device which will make it possible not only to use distilate or kerosene but start the motor on these low grade tuels even in cold weather without the necessity of using gasoline,

The carburetor adjustor is manufactured in their factory here. All the work from moulding to nickeling done. Not only this but the special tools required for this high grade work are designed and manufactured in their own shop. They claim for their adjustor that it make possible a perfect mixture of gas with a result of perfect combustion which means greater power, cleaner and cooler motor, also a great saving in gasoline consumption. The results on over a dozen different makes of cars show from 20 to over 60 per cent milage increase per gallon,

The demand for the adjuster is al ready so great that they have stopped making them for immediate delivery and are rushing work on equipment to enable them to turn the device out in quantity.
