

WANT BIG NOISE WHEN PANAMA CANAL FORMALLY OPENED

The Commercial club is in receipt of the following communication from the Seattle Chamber of Commerce:

Navigation through the Panama canal will be initiated on October 10, when the dyke that holds water from the Colobra cut will be blown out.

Immediately thereafter the "Fram" famous exploring vessel used by Nansen in his northern expedition and by Amundsen in his discovery of the South Pole—will proceed from Colon to Panama for the initial voyage from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The "Fram" is made of Pacific Coast fir grown on Puget Sound.

By way of signalling this most important event in the history of the Pacific coast, the progress and prosperity committee of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce respectfully calls upon the commercial bodies and cities of the entire coast to join in a demonstration that will make a continuous noise from Canada to Mexico at the instant the dyke is removed.

Through the courtesy of the Associated Press, or other agency, it will be possible to obtain simultaneous news of the blowing of the dyke. In Seattle the whistles of factories and steamers will blow, the flags on buildings will raise, the traction company will be asked to stop street cars and ring the bells for a number of seconds, the forts and navy ships on Puget sound will be requested to fire their guns.

We rely on all coast cities to join in making the demonstration a memorable and worthy of the occasion, and we are confident we can count on enthusiastic response by Medford.

Very truly yours,
C. B. YANDELL,
Secretary.

ENTOMBED MINER IS RESCUED AFTER FIVE DAYS' BURIAL

CENTRALIA, Pa., Oct. 1.—"Please tell the mine boss that after I'm rescued, I'll probably need a day's vacation before resuming work. Ask him about it."

This was the first word sent up today by Thomas Toshesky, a miner entombed in the Continental Colliery here since last Friday. Communication with the entombed man was made possible when rescuers bored through a well of coal and inserted an iron pipe, through which food and clothing have been sent to him.

"Just tell my friends that I had a splendid night's sleep," Toshesky continued, "and that I feel fine. Now go get my wife. I want to talk to her."

Mrs. Toshesky conversed with her husband for ten minutes, and sent down a blanket, underwear and socks through the pipe. Toshesky then announced that he had found a pick and shovel and intended to help the rescuer dig him out. Later he could be heard digging away with all his might.

Rescuers at noon were thirty-eight feet from Toshesky's chamber and expected to reach him some time tomorrow.

Thousands of persons are watching the efforts to rescue the imprisoned miner. Dynamite cannot be used, for fear that debris might cause a fall of coal, killing Toshesky.

Toshesky's wife and four children are quartered near the mine. Mrs. Toshesky preparing the food for her husband.

Hansel shot Judge Taylor to death September 14.

WOMAN HOPES FOR EX-HUSBAND'S DEATH

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 1.—"I hope he dies, then my little girl will be safe."

This was the wish expressed today by Mrs. Edith M. Ivy, who shot her divorced husband, Frank M. Ivy, inflicting a wound that probably will prove fatal. Mrs. Ivy is suffering from a flesh wound she received when Ivy, seizing the revolver she had dropped, shot her.

Ivy, who is married a second time, is under accusation in the superior court of wronging the 15-year-old daughter of himself and the woman who shot him. The girl is confined at the Whittier State School.

Mrs. Ivy told the police that she worked as a domestic to save money to buy a revolver and hire a taxicab to go to her former husband's home, where the shooting occurred early yesterday.

YOUTH MUTILATED BY UNKNOWN MAN ON HUNTING TRIP

Joe Croft, aged 19 years, living with his parents five miles from Trail, was knocked insensible by a blow on the head Tuesday by an unknown assailant and his body criminally mutilated and afterwards thrown into the creek. Croft has a slim chance for recovery, his only chance lying in the prevention of infection in his wounds. Loss of blood from dangerous wounds left him in a highly weakened condition.

Mystery Surrounds Case

Neither the injured youth, his parents or any one in the neighborhood have so far manifested any great desire to talk, the general sentiment of the parties most interested being that the crime should be classed a mystery. Croft tells his version of the affair, but according to Deputy Sheriff Carly Wilson it does not conform with the evidence or the location of objects near the scene of the crime.

Croft says that he was cutting wood on the bank of the creek when he saw a deer down stream. He grabbed his gun, which he brought with him for just such an emergency, and walked in the direction of the deer. When he passed a large tree he was struck in the head and remembers no more until he was revived by the cold waters of the creek, in which he was sitting upright when he regained consciousness.

Razor Probably Used

Dr. W. P. Holt was called and dressed the wounds of the boy, who crawled on his hands and knees to his home to secure aid. The crisis in the case will come tomorrow. The youth's assailant used a sharp instrument, the authorities believe a razor, and possessed above the average knowledge of surgery.

When Deputy Sheriff Wilson arrived the work of looking for clues began, but the reticence of the youth, parents and neighbors to talk handicapped the work. Croft admits that he had had trouble with a neighbor last spring, but refuses to give his name.

The injured lad has always borne a good reputation and has lived for a number of years in that section.

MOTHER KILLED SIX CHILDREN BY FEEDING FLY POISON

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 1.—Mrs. Ole Leckwood, who confessed according to the police to murdering her six children between 1905 and 1911 by giving them fly poison, will be examined as to her sanity. It was stated by the authorities today.

The specific charge against her was the poisoning of her daughters Viola, aged 9, and Laura, 11 months old, who died respectively in July and September. After admitting both killings, the police say, she added that she had similarly killed four others at various times, all at less than one year of age.

She was arrested because her husband's suspicions were aroused by the similarity of the circumstances attending each death. Mrs. Leckwood is 32.
