

GIVES FORMULA FOR LONG LIFE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 7.—Kicked out of bed by Abraham Lincoln, a "distinction" which Dr. R. C. Richardson of this city, enjoys, has not interfered with his health or his disposition. He is 90 years old today and says he will live to be a hundred. How to live to be a hundred years old is Dr. Richardson's hobby. Here is how he says he is going to do it: "Eat much less than ignorant appetite calls for. Chew what little you do eat with extreme care. Take a cold plunge every morning. Work every day whether you feel like it or not. Keep your mind clean as well as your body. Leave stimulants alone. Take regular mental and bodily recreation."

Besides his fight to vanquish old age—Dr. Richardson looks like a robust man of sixty—his pet hobby is Lincoln and the story of how Lincoln kicked him out of bed is his pet story. A remarkable diary covering eighty-five years and written from memory a few years ago relates many interesting incidents of his friendship with the martyred president. Dr. Richardson met Lincoln at Charleston when the doctor was engaged in dentistry in the early fifties. "Mr. Lincoln came to my boarding house," writes Dr. Richardson, "and our acquaintance soon became close and friendly. Mr. Lincoln made Charleston his headquarters during important court sessions. When the city was very crowded Mr. Lincoln and I bunked together to accommodate our landlady. One one such occasion, 'Abe,' partook too much of extra strong corn beef and fricasseed honey cakes and other rambunctious dainties with inclinations toward nightmare. Suddenly he planted his No. 10's square in the middle of my back and knocked me out of the four-poster to the center of the dingy bedroom. Not to be outdone I tiptoed downstairs, drew a bucketful of water, and dashed the water square in the snoring countenance of Abraham Lincoln. He slammed the door in my face and let me sleep on the rug just outside the door."

HOPE TO BETTER INDIAN CONDITIONS

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 7.—To advance the interests of the American Indians and to make good citizens of the thousands of the government reservations is the purpose of the convention of the Society of American Indians which opened here today and will continue through Saturday. Persons who expected to see blanketed, befeathered redmen among the delegates were disappointed. The 500 attending Indians were really better dressed as a whole than were the governors who recently attended the national governors' conference here. Men prominent in the professions and all walks of life were among the visitors. The delegates include Rev. Sherman Coolidge, B. D., an Apache of Fairbault, Minn., president of the society; Arthur C. Parker, Professor J. N. B. Hewitt, a Tuscarora Indian, of the Smithsonian Institution at Washington; Laura C. Kellogg, an Oneida Indian; Henry R. Claude, B. A., Sioux; Carlos Montezuma, M. A., M. D., an Apache; John Oshison, M. D., Cherokee, and a score of others. One of the chief topics to be discussed will be that of representation of redmen at the proposed grand council and pageant of the American Indian to be held in Denver in 1915, to discuss better education for the Indian and the gathering of data for a detailed history of the American Indian.

SUFFRAGETTES ADOPT MAN-LIKE ATTIRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The suffragists and the suffragettes of Gotham are expected this winter to appear in full-width, entirely sewed skirts, high necked waists, "box" coats and corsets. They will not become the "flat-breasted, slab-hipped, pancake footed frumps" that Elinor Glyn said some American women were, but they no doubt will eschew frills and furbelows. Why? Because the present Parisian fashions prevailing, alike on Broadway and the avenue, are "man-made." They positively are. M. Paul Poiret of Paris, France, has been here in New York for several weeks, and he himself says that he originated the hobble skirt, the slit skirt, the di-

Oldring vs. Snodgrass

We submit today the veterans of the outfield, Oldring and Snodgrass. Veterans, not because of their great age, but because of others' great youth. Oldring, the light-haired and light-hearted chap who has been performing so surpassingly of late, is Mac's only "Rube" among the many Rubens of baseball. A steady, brilliant player who appeals more to the manager than he does to the fans. A player whose great deeds seem to be, unthinkingly, lost in the brilliance of another's greater deeds on the same day. Possibly he will have better luck this time. Every world's series has its hero. And every world's series has its goat. Ah, Snodgrass, we speak your name without the bitterness that you have listened to for the passing year. A "goat" you have been. Snodgrass, and how well you know. A "goat," that unpleasant product of those strange, unfathomable, yet wonderful creatures, the fans who forget the good in the presence of bad. But you have stood up well, and your work this season is your answer.

aphanous gown and all the other modes of the moment that make the autumn girl "chic" and "swell" and all those things. M. Poiret admits that he thought up these fashions, because, he holds, women could not design them for themselves. That'll be about all for M. Poiret, so far as the suffragist enthusiasts are concerned. They say they will wear no more Parisian styles. They are fighting against man-made laws. Why wear man-made clothes? No, sir-ee.
