The past week has been a busy one, as much entertaining has been done for Miss Ruth Holloway and Mr. Banks, whose wedding will be celebrated October 15th.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston give a luncheon today at the Country club. Mr. and Mrs. Conroy Fiero entertain Saturday evening with a dance at their country home and Mr. and Mrs. Patterson, give a dinner Monday at the country club.

On Tuesday evening, October 7, the members of the Methodist Episcopal church gave a reception for Rev. E. Olin Eldridge and his wife. The church parlors were beautifully decorated, the color scheme being red and green, dark red roses, dahlias and ferns artistically arranged carrying out the idea.

The reception committee, consisting of Mrs. Hildebrand, Mrs. Wicks, Mrs. Wines, Mrs. Corey, Mrs. Mealey, Mrs. Jansen, Mrs. Wiley and Mrs. Glascock graciously received the guests at the door and presented them to Rev. and Mrs. Eldridge.

The weather did its best to keep people away, but the large and overflowing crowd which gathered in spite of this shows the high esteem and regard which the people of this community feel for Rev. and Mrs. Eldridge.

Mrs. Daddysman, Miss Flynn and Miss Vroman composed the orchestra and rendered several charming selections.

Reverend Doctor McCullough of the Baptist church offered a prayer.

Mr. R. H. Bennett in a pleasing and complimentary manner expressed the sentiments of universal gratification on the part of the members of the church and the public generally, in an address of welcome to Rev. and Mrs. Eldridge, upon their return to this charge for a third year, and gave a short outline of the great prosperity that has attended the church in the past two years.

Rev. Eldridge responded to this address of welcome in a witty and most feeling and sympathetic manner.

Miss Dorothy Wicks favored the company with a delightful solo, followed by Miss Kathryn Dunham, who gave a very appropriate and highly appreciated recitation.

Delightful refreshments were served by the ladies of the church, the dining room being elaborately decorated for the occasion.

Not only the members of his congregation are delighted with the reassignment of Mr. Eldridge to Medford by the conference, but everyone in this section of the valley is equally pleased. Mr. Eldridge has made an enviable record not only as a clergyman, but as a progressive citizen and a vital force in the life of the city. He has been foremost in his advocacy of all measures designed to better conditions and uphold and develop the community. He has given freely of his time and energy in movements for the public welfare. He has responded whenever called upon for public addresses for special occasions and his weekly discourses upon live topics have greatly interested the general public, with the result that his audiences are limited only by the capacity of the auditorium, and the church membership is constantly increasing.

The first of a series of programs to be given by the musical department of the Greater Medford club, occurred last Monday afternoon in the assembly hall of the library building.

Mrs. Gerard Tallandier was the hostess and the program was under the direction of Prof. Tallandier who is director of the Medford Conservatory of Music.

From a truly musical standpoint it is safe to say that the program presented was among the best that this department has offered to the public.

The music was purely German and was preceded by a lecture on the evolution of German music by Professor Tallandier who showed a thorough knowledge and understanding of the subject. In order to demonstrate the various phases of German music from the time of Bach down to the present time he was most ably assisted by a number of well known local musicians. Largo Largo by Handel played by Mr. W. C. James, who in harmony with his violin, showed the old style of simple chords and Handel genius in producing grand effects by simple means. The Mozart trio by Miss J. Butler, Dr. Marlon and C. E. Root, showed the transition period between the ultra classical and the modern romantic period. The Mendelssohn concerto was an illustration of the modern, brilliant style, and it was rendered by Professor Tallandier with a dash and spirit that gave immense enjoyment to the audience. The orchestral part was excellently played on a second piano by Miss Ivy Book.

Miss Grace Brown's three songs belong to the melodic romantic period of Schumann and Franz. The songs were well adapted to Miss Brown's beautiful contralto voice and were rendered in her usual artistic style.

Mrs. E. M. Andrews who is vocal teacher of the Conservatory of Music and a gifted musician, sang Elizabeth's Prayer, from the opera of Tannhauser with the fervor and dramatic as well as musical ability with which she is possessed and which the Wagnerian music requires. Miss Forunker's paper on Life in Germany and America, from a student's standpoint was brief but interesting.

All of the musical numbers together with Professor Tallandier's brilliant lecture made an auspicious opening for the department of music of the Greater Medford club which is under the most able direction of Mrs. E. M. Andrews.

The next program will occur in the assembly hall of the library building, Monday, Oct. 6th. The subject will be Italy and the music Italian exclusively.

On Wednesday evening, October 8, 1913, the home of Mrs. J. A. Bratney on West Fourteenth street was the scene of a very pretty wedding when her daughter, Miss Maude I. Bratney, was united in marriage to Mr. Scott Beghtol of Omaha, Neb., Dr. R. W. McCullough of the First Baptist church officiating. The house was beautiful with a profusion of pink and white roses and green vines and ferns.

As the wedding march was softly played by Miss Berna Roberts the wedding party consisting of the bride, groom, the ring bearer, little Miss Ruth Smith, and the best man Mr. Earl Bratney, took their places under an arch of roses and vines. After the happy couple had received the hearty congratulations of those present the guests were seated at two long tables in the dining room where they enjoyed a dainty repast and toasts to the bride and groom.

The bride was beautifully gowned in white chantilly lace over crepe meteor. Mrs. Bratney, the mother of the bride, was in grey silk. Miss Bratney in white lace over blue messaline, and Miss Grace Bratney in apricot color satin charmeuse.

FREE Domestic Science Lectures

Ladies of Medford to Have Opportunity to Hear Mrs. Nevada Brigg, Lecture-Demonstrator, at K. of P. Hall over Moe & Co.

Beginning Monday, October 13

Beginning Monday, Oct. 13, at 2:30 p. m. Mrs. Nevada Brigg, a well known domestic science expert, will give free of charge to the ladies of Medford a full course of domestic science lectures and practical baking tests. Mrs. Brigg has a national reputation as a lecturer-demonstrator and gives her audiences the scientific as well as the practical methods of home cooking and baking. She shows how scientific principles may be applied in every line of cooking, thereby getting more wholesome and more economical foods, saving both time and material. Mrs. Brigg says: "Poets may be born, and probably an occasional cook, but the best cooks are made by actually applying rules that bring perfect results. Any one who will apply scientific principles correctly can become proficient in the art of cooking, for cooking is an art, an art that is worthy the attention of the most intelligent and cultivated women of the land, an art that is fast advancing and getting the attention that it so richly deserves. If we but stop and consider that the warp and woof of our muscular and nervous systems are woven out of the food we eat, it is easy to understand why this wave of better, purer and better body-building foods is universal, and that our American women are leading in every step to this end. In all schools today domestic economies is given the same attention as all other branches of learning."

The free lectures will be conducted at the K. of P. Hall over Moe & Co., where a completely equipped lecture room has been provided. Plenty of comfortable seats have been placed where all may see the work done by Mrs. Brigg. Every recipe, from the selecting of the materials to the serving of the same, is in plain view of every one, each little detail of mixing, baking, etc., is explained thoroughly. Every lecture and demonstration will be complete in itself, yet every one will be entirely different. Ladies can arrange to attend one or all and derive benefit from same. The lectures will begin promptly at 2:30 each afternoon and continue until 4:30.
