Medford Peaches Cause of Poetry

To the Editor: I am a Berkeley grocer and fruit dealer. I have now on exhibition in my windows some fine peaches bearing a Medford trade-mark. They are so fine looking, so beautifully colored and of such delicious flavor, that, being a wooer of the muses, the spirit of poetry has been invoked in their praise, by me, with what success, by the following "boost" you may see:

An Appeal to Women Voters of Oregon

Portland, Ore., Oct. 14, 1913. An appeal to the women voters of Oregon: The patriotic men of our magnificent young state of Oregon have granted you the ballot. It now behooves you to use it wisely. I have before me an official copy of "Measures, with Arguments Respecting the Same, to Be Submitted to the Electors of the State of Oregon at the Special Election on Tuesday, November 4, 1913." In looking through the pamphlet I discover your opportunity to prove yourselves worthy of the responsibility granted you by the votes of men at the general election of November, 1912.
