UNFAIR DISCRIMINATION

BARRING Multnomah, Jackson county is the heaviest contributor to the state fish and game protection fund. It leads all southern Oregon in number of licenses issued.

Jackson county alone of the counties of the Rogue does not ask for commercial fishing. It has co-operated in every possible way for the protection and propagation of fish.

Game and fish law violations have been few in Jackson county and convictions prompt, showing active co-operation on the part of the people with the authorities and a public sentiment in favor of law enforcement.

Hunting and angling, especially the latter, are properly regarded as an asset to the people of the county, not only for the recreation and diversion they afford residents, but as an attraction for tourist traffic.

Yet in spite of its spirit of co-operation, in spite of its contributions to the state, in spite of its law-obeying proclivities, Jackson county is the only county punished by federal bureau of fisheries in its propagation work.

The gravel bars of the upper Rogue and its many tributaries are the natural spawning beds of the fish that frequent the Rogue. Yet the fish are shut off from the middle and upper river by the bureau—indeed, the fish at the present time are shut off entirely from reaching all waters in the county.

No objection can be found to fish egg taking in the upper river, at the Elk creek hatchery, or for a long stretch of water below. But about the first of August every year racks are built across the Rogue near the Jackson county line, sometimes a distance above, sometimes below, and all fish shut off from the upper water.

The cutting off of Chinooks and steelhead in midseason from Jackson county is bad enough, but as the spring run has already taken place, it leaves both Chinook and steelhead in the stream—but the cutting off of silverside salmon is without excuse.

The silverside is one of the choicest of salmon, and has always been a great favorite with the farmer as well as sportsman. They ascend all of the small streams with the first high water and are in prime condition for the table.

The fish ways at the Ament dam, constructed only after years of agitation by sportsmen, which provide adequate passageways for the fish to pass over the dam, are now being put to a new use.

What does it benefit Jackson county to hatch and liberate the fish at Elk Creek, when they go to salt water the first year and are barred from the county when they return? It makes a hollow mockery of propagation work as far as silversides are concerned for Jackson county.

This unjust and unfair discrimination is a subject for the anglers and fishermen of Jackson county to take immediate action upon. The superintendent of hatcheries should be requested at once to move further upstream for his operation,—at least half way up the county.

The present condition is an intolerable one, for the rights of the people of Jackson county are entitled to as much consideration as those of the few commercial interests below. The state commission and the bureau of hatcheries have done and are doing fine work in restocking the streams, but in the matter of silversides they are working an injustice.

DEFEATED, CROSS ADMITS RITCHIE REAL CHAMPION

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—All doubt concerning the class of Willie Ritchie light-weight champion of the world, was removed today following his ten-round decision here last night over Leach Cross, generally recognized in the east as New York's best light-weight.

Ritchie's work was a revelation to the New York fight fans and it was certain today that they would install the champion a heavy favorite here over Harlem Tommy Murphy when the two clash in their scheduled 20 round bout in San Francisco on December 10.

The fight was one of the most sensational ever staged in Manhattan. It was a whirlwind battle from the opening round and although the San Franciscan was hampered by the New York boxing commission's rules preventing him from hitting in the clinches, he put up a wonderful battle.

Only the bell saved Cross from a knockout in the third round. In this session, Ritchie caught Leach flush on the jaw with a terrific right hand swing and the New Yorker went down. He took advantage of the full count and when he arose to his feet he was groggy. Ritchie rushed, and the majority of the spectators believed Cross was going to be put to sleep.

After the third round the fight was all Ritchie. He kept Cross entirely on the defensive and pounded the New Yorker's face at will. Early in the fight Willie fell over Cross and landed on his back. He sustained a bad bruise at the base of the spine but it had no noticeable effect on his fighting.

As usual Ritchie was slow in starting and the first two rounds belonged to Cross. After the third round Cross never had a chance. Willie easily avoided the dentist's right swings and fought a heady battle, beating his man down systematically.

"I shall never fight again with soft bandages," said Ritchie today. "My hands are sore from the mauling I gave them on Cross' head, face and body."

Ritchie is a better man than I thought he was," said Leach. "He is a real champion."

Ritchie and his manager, Harry Foley, will start for San Francisco Thursday to prepare for the Ritchie-Murphy match.
