RED MEN HOLD BANQUET TONIGHT

Weatonia Tribe, Improved O. R. M., will hold their regular meeting this evening, also a banquet will be given by the committee. The promotion committee reports splendid progress and great success in securing new applications for the big class adoption on December 5. Organizer Canning has been at Phoenix with Rogue River Tribe for several days this week and reports that Rogue River Tribe will double its membership. Pochontas Tribe, No. 1, the oldest tribe in Oregon, at Jacksonville, is also after palefaces in their hunting grounds. Takima Tribe of Grants Pass will also have a large class of candidates for the big pow-wow here in Medford, December 6. Several drill teams will be organized from the class that will be adopted. Weatonia Tribe will prepare to capture the prize in the state of Oregon, as the best drill team of the reservation of Oregon, the coming year. In 1915 at the exposition in San Francisco at the large wigwam that is now under construction, built by the great council of California for the benefit of visiting Red Men, from all over the United States, at which time each reservation will endeavor to send their best drilled team to contest for the prize given by the great council of the United States, Weatonia Tribe will try and represent Oregon. This will be a splendid opportunity for ambitious young men in Medford to be present as the guest of the great council of this state. Weatonia Tribe has held the banner for the reservation of Oregon and intends to strive to keep it, another boost for Medford, and will prove to the paleface world that in Red Membership as well as other things Medford is on the map.

BEDOUINS OF DESERT AT HOSPITAL FAIR

The Bedouins of the Egyptian desert will pitch their tents at the hospital fair next Tuesday. They are the escort of Zaides, the seeress, the greatest clairvoyant of modern times. She comes from the land of the mysterious Sphinx and from her eyes of unfathomable darkness peer the centuries of the Orient. Zaides's robe is of shimmering, clinging silk; her face is covered by a veil, her tiny feet are shod with sandals. Priceless jewels, the plunder from a mammy's tomb, cover her arms and throat, and the woman herself, alluring, lovely, appeals to all who come within her vision. Fortunately, indeed, are those who see their future through her eyes and heed her words of wisdom. Zaides's escort is almost as interesting as herself. The stately Ali, bronzed by many desert suns, stands vigilant before her tent to guard her from all harm. All who enter must endure his scrutiny. Eloquent in his faithfulness, muck Zaides's days those of peace. See her, all you who would taste of the same peace.

TESTING VALIDITY OF COMPENSATION LAW

SALEM, Or., Nov. 21.—Arguments in a suit to test the constitutionality of the compulsory registration law passed by the last legislature are being heard in the supreme court today. The action is based on suit for a writ of mandamus brought by the city of Portland against County Clerk Coffey of Multnomah county, to compel him to deliver to the city auditor the 1912 registration lists for use in the special city election to be held in Portland next month.

PUBLICITY AS A CURE

THE MAIL TRIBUNE has received some criticism for its discussion of the blight situation by those who would conceal the facts lest harm come from the publicity. To these critics it can be said that the truth never hurts anyone. The half truth or the hidden truth frequently does. The blight is all over the world. It is worse in northwest districts than it is here, because it has only recently infected them. It has been here for years and it has been proven that under climatic conditions existing here it can be controlled and eradicated, an advantage eastern districts do not enjoy. Its present spread is due to lack of vigilance among orchardists, and the unusual climatic conditions prevailing last summer. That the growers recognize conditions is shown by the vigorous campaign now being waged for its eradication. It is the duty of the press to help this campaign by arousing public sentiment to the danger of neglect and help in securing hearty co-operation among fruit growers. The free discussion of such problems cannot injure the valley. Prospective investors would find out conditions, anyway, while to prove to the world that blight has no terrors for the Rogue river orchardist and that there exists co-operation for the eradication of fruit pests is an incentive for investment in such a district. The Yakima Republic, in reply to similar criticism, says:

Nobody in Yakima likes to have it known abroad that the fruit industry is threatened by the blight, or that there is an epidemic of disease, or that Satan is doing a rushing business in town. Scattering such information hurts business at least to the extent that it keeps people away who prefer to live in a place where such conditions prevail and who might locate here and contribute their part toward the community's prosperity if they were ignorant of the facts. The newspapers which give publicity to these objectionable conditions may be blamed for scattering the information if it is assumed that the homeseeker wouldn't get it from other sources anyway. If it is assumed that the benefits of publicity do not counterbalance the injuries, then maybe the newspapers have something to answer for. In dealing with questions of community interest, whether they affect the community for good or ill, if they require united action on the part of the people somebody must stand up and speak for what seems to be the general good. Everybody's business is nobody's business usually until conditions grow intolerable. The newspaper which tries to do its duty will not wait until they are intolerable. In the matter of blight, public discussion seemed to be necessary not only to induce the people to act but to inform them of the danger. There was no other place for this discussion but the columns of the newspaper.

AHRENS MOVES TO LARGER STOREROOM

Ahrens' Cloak and Suit House will change its location to the corner storeroom west of its present location, the storeroom formerly occupied by the Golden Rule. The change will give this growing firm twice the floor space and the finest display windows in the city. Rapid and steady growth of the business, despite complaints from rivals of depression, necessitated the move, larger quarters being needed to accommodate the increased business. The move will be made December 1 and a removal sale is now in progress. New stock and fixtures are on their way. The store was established three years ago, and by prompt attention to business, good goods and reasonable prices, has won a place in the hearts of Medford women. The manager, M. M. Ahrens, is wide-awake, popular and progressive and has constantly enlarged the stock of ready-to-wear apparel and millinery. He attributes no small share of his success to the fact that he is a liberal user of printers' ink.

TABLE ROCK

The Girls' Sewing club met last Tuesday at the Myers' home. All present enjoyed themselves immensely and apple day was fittingly observed in the refreshment. This is the second meeting of the club, the first being held at the S. C. Collins residence. Those belonging are the Misses Gladys Miller, Mae and Marie Nealon, Grace and Maud Myers, Hazel Byram, Clara Collins and Ruth Hall. Miss Ethel Garrison of Medford spent the first part of the last week with Miss Clara Collins. The Arrowhead Literary Society had an old-fashioned spelling bee at their last meeting. Mr. G. P. Hall was the winner, with Miss Katherine Nealon a close second. Their next program will be given November 29. The tennis club has adjourned for the winter. The McBride family has recovered from an attack of grippe. Oliver Penland was in Table Rock Saturday and Sunday. R. E. Nealon has leased the Miller ranch for the coming year. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Poits expect to leave Table Rock before long. The excitement about "buried treasure" is still raging. At first it was supposed that there was only one treasure, but now it develops that there are at least a dozen. On Sundays and holidays both "rocks" are seeking with would-be millionaires. Among those hunting are: B. Vincent, "Captain Kidd" Rivers, Marion Nealon and the Hayes family. Mr. Aitken, the orchard inspector, is in the neighborhood now.

MEMSIC FIASCO IN POPULAR MAGAZINE

C. E. Van Loon has a story in this month's issue of the Popular Magazine, entitled, "Easy Pickings," that is a thinly veiled account of one of the adventures in the ring of Bud Anderson. The basis of the yarn is evidently the George Memsic battle, and fans who have read the tale say they can see the outlines of several local people. The finale comes when the small town fighter beats the ringer. Then the "phenom's" manager, who is an apple grower, says, "We'll fight some more when the apple crop is picked." The old fighter manager then says: "If I had a fighter like him I wouldn't look at all the apples in the world."

McCurdy! Baby To Rule the House

No Longer Do Women Fear the Greatest of All Human Blessings.

It is a comfort to know that those much-talked-of pains that are said to precede child-bearing may easily be avoided. No woman need fear the slightest discomfort if she will fortify herself with the well-known and time-honored remedy, "Mother's Friend." This is a penetrating, external application that at once softens and relaxes the abdominal muscles and ligaments. They naturally expand without the slightest strain, and thus not only banish all tendency to nervous, twitching spells, but there is an entire freedom from nausea, discomfort, sleeplessness and dread that so often leave their impress upon the babe. The occasion is, therefore, one of unbounded, joyful anticipation, and too much stress cannot be laid upon the remarkable influence which a mother's happy, pre-natal disposition has upon the health and fortunes of the generation to come. You will find it on sale at all drug stores at $1.00 a bottle. Write to-day to the Bradfield Regulator Co., 230 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for an instructive book.

IF

If you need clothing, groceries, furniture or agricultural implements you patronize a reliable, responsible firm—a leader in his line of trade. Why not exercise the same business foresight when buying nursery goods? If you were asked for the name of a leader in the nursery business in the Rogue river valley—a reliable, responsible firm with a record of straight dealing. What would your answer be? If practical experience is not a business asset why do men in all lines of business pay well for the man that knows how and can deliver the goods? If a practical experience is essential in other lines of trade, why not in the nursery business? Is it good business to depend on the advice of a man whose knowledge of his line of business is confined to a line of talk to get orders? If you need a rose bush or trees for a large commercial planting, ornamental stock, Keiffer pear for top working or any thing within the limits of the nursery trade, don't you think you would sleep better if your order was placed with a man who has had years of successful, practical experience in orchard and nursery work? If a leading merchant asks a little more for the line of goods he handles than his neighbor Jones or Smith it is no sign he cannot supply you with the same line of goods Jones or Smith sell for the same or less price. Did you not know a well established firm with good commercial rating can buy goods almost as cheaply as can a fly-by-night concern with little or no commercial rating? If you really want cheap goods and care nothing about the reliability or responsibility back of them why don't you tell your merchant it is quantity and not quality you want and price is the first consideration? He will get you the goods. If you are inexperienced in any line of work, who do you call on for advice, the man who knows every detail about the making of the article or the line of work on which you seek advice, or do you seek the man who has simply gathered sufficient knowledge of the work or goods to give him a line of talk to make sales? If you live in the Rogue river valley and have read this far without once thinking of the EDEN VALLEY NURSERY you will please call at my delivery yards 609 1/2 East Main St., and get a suitable prize.

DEAL WITH THE MAN THAT GETS THE TRADE. YOU WILL FIND THERE IS A REASON FOR IT.

Yours truly, N. S. BENNETT, Proprietor. EDEN VALLEY NURSERIES. Box 823 Medford
