EAGLE POINT EAGLES.

By A. C. Howlett.

Jud Edsall made a business trip to Win. Perry's near Hattie Falls last Monday.

Prof. Buchanan, the principal of our school, made a business trip to Portland this week. He secured the services of Mrs. George Van der Hellen to teach in his place during his absence. He expects to return Saturday.

Charles Barnum of Medford, one of our county fruit tree inspectors, was out the first of the week to inspect some fruit trees that have been shipped in.

G. B. Cornell of Medford was out Tuesday reading the meters on the electric lines in Eagle Point.

Mrs. Mary Ringer, who has been in Ashland for the past two months, came in Tuesday evening on the P. & E. railroad to attend to business.

Charles Eadler and Mike Sidley of Lake Creek were here for dinner Wednesday.

Born, November 14 to Mr. and Mrs. George Cusick, in their home in Trail, an eight-pound girl, so reports Dr. Holt. He also reports the birth of a fine daughter in the family of G. E. Bellera, weighing 6½ pounds, on the 16th inst.

Wednesday night the members of the Good Citizens club of Eagle Point met in George W. Daley's store and elected A. C. Howlett as chairman and John W. Smith as secretary and then proceeded to nominate a ticket to fill the offices which will become vacant in December. The following persons were nominated: For mayor, John M. Nichols; for councilmen, H. O. Childreth, John W. Smith and George Fisher; for recorder, J. M. McQuaid; for treasurer, Roy Ashpole.

The same evening a company of thirteen was made up to go to Medford and witness the play at the Page and Charles Bacon, the accompanist conductor on the P. & E. arranged to have the motor car come out from Medford and take them in and about 6:30 p. m. the word was given "All aboard," and the little car was filled to its capacity. It is not designed to carry but eight passengers but they all thirteen climbed in and started, about half of them being ladies. All went well until they reached the desert when something went wrong with the motor power but in the course of time they got that fixed and started again and went fairly well until they reached Davis station when the pulling part of the machinery broke down completely, and there they were three miles from Medford and the rain coming down in torrents. The motor car had to be sidetracked so as to make room for the regular passenger train the next morning, so all hands pushed and pulled until they got the car on the switch at Davis and some of the men started on to Medford to procure a handcar to take the passengers in and the rest started to meet the handcar. The ladies had not prepared footwear suitable to walk in the mud and rain, starting without even their rubbers, but they plodded along and after a while the handcar arrived and what could get on it went on to Medford, reaching there in time to see the last part of the play—and those whom I have interviewed report having had a fine time. But the next thing was to get back home, for some of the ladies had left their children and had to go home. But they brought the handcar into use again, and eight of them, half of them, if not more, were ladies, mounted the car. What do Oregonians care for rain? And at a little after midnight they arrived, wet, cold and hungry, but they said that they had a good time and really enjoyed the novelty of the trip. Some of the ladies left their hats at home, but some of them took theirs along and had a time keeping them dry.

Frederick Klippel, a son of the late Henry Klippel who was at one time a very popular politician in Jacksonville, was a pleasant caller Thursday for dinner. He was on his way from his mother's place on Trail creek to Medford. W. E. Hammel was also here for dinner at the same time. He is on his way to St. Louis, Mo., to visit his parents. He sold all his goats to Sam Coy, except a thoroughbred. He expects to be gone about three months and while gone will see some of the country between here and St. Louis.
