WOMEN'S CLUB NOTES

The regular meeting of the social hygiene section of the Greater Medford club was postponed from Tuesday of this week to Tuesday, January 13, when Dr. Stewart of the U. of O. will be here and lecture on the subject "The Young woman's Physical Development and Marriage."

The department under the leadership of Dr. Myrtle Lockwood has been following out a line of personal study that has proved very interesting and profitable. Our mothers and teachers who have these delicate matters to deal with in relation to their own children and those who are entrusted to them for education, feel keenly the necessity of a wise and timely presentation. While they may doubt the advisability of giving direct instruction to children they themselves are attending and supporting these lectures in an effort to secure knowledge that will enable them to compare and judge methods of teaching.

Dr. Hodge and Dr. Bertha Stewart of the University of Oregon are to be in Medford next week. A list of lectures is given in this issue. These meetings will be held in the assembly room of the public library and are open to the public, beginning Monday afternoon. Every parent in Medford should attend at least part of these talks as they all deal with the vital questions of the day. Dr. Stewart will make an effort to reorganize the girl's vitality league which did such splendid work in the aik and swimming classes last year. Dr. Hodge is a man of national prominence who is in the west for this one winter only, and is a most convincing speaker. His subjects are mainly sociological but on Friday afternoon he will lecture on the housefly and other household pests. This meeting will be combined with a meeting arranged by the heavy section of the Greater Medford club, at which Professor Wilson of the University of Oregon and Mrs. McKibben of Grants Pass will speak.

Professor Wilson comes from the entomological bureau and will launch a death dealing campaign on flies. Mrs. E. E. McKibben of Grants Pass is lately from Muskogee, Okla., where she waged a successful "swat the fly" campaign last year. This work is being undertaken by the civic section in order to get the upper hand, as it were, and remove the breeding places of the flies before the warm weather begins—also to enlist the school children in the warfare while the schools are still in session and before the flies have had time to multiply.

The executive board of the Greater Medford club will meet on Monday at 2 p. m. in the assembly room of the library.

Mrs. A. A. Bird, organized for the district Federation of Women's Clubs, went to Talent on Wednesday to meet with the newly formed club of that place, inviting them to join the district federation. This the club voted to do, making a total of five clubs which have voted to join the federation.

The Parent-Teachers' Circle of the Washington school met in regular session Friday, January 9, at 2:30 p. m. The afternoon's program was begun with a song, "Comin' Thro the Rye," by little girls from Miss Von Meter's room. A short business session was held at which matters of much interest to mothers and teachers were discussed. The main subject under discussion was hygiene and sanitation. Hygiene from an osteopathic viewpoint was very ably presented by Dr. Eva Carlow. Miss White, teacher in the Washington school, gave an interesting talk on sanitation in the schools and indirectly the home, as it concerns the child. A beautiful solo by Miss Murphy closed the program. The next meeting will be on February 19 and will be at night, to which the fathers will be invited.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC TIED UP BY WRECK

EUGENE, Or., Jan. 10.—A freight wreck at Springfield Junction, two miles south of here, early today, in which four cars were demolished, has tied up traffic on the main line of the Southern Pacific. No one was injured. One car jumped the track and bumped half a mile over the ties before turning turtle. The other three cars piled on top. All trains are being routed over the east side branch. Wreckers expect to have the tracks clear by evening.

PROBLEM PLAY TO BE SEEN AT PAGE JANUARY 16

Polle Emery, who plays the role of Cookie in "The Blindness of Virtue," which will be seen at the Page, January 16, is a past mistress in the art of grotesque makeup, and in each new part she sinks here individually completely. For years she has been studying servants, spinners, cockneys or whatever else she has been cast for, and the result has been that when she comes to a first performance she has changed her personal appearance completely. The fact that she is able to so completely disguise herself in makeup is well known to her associates in London, for often they have failed to recognize her in the wings on the first night of a new play. She complains a bit upon having started upon a line of grotesque work, because audiences never have had a chance to see her as she really is. On this side of the Atlantic, Helen Lowell has somewhat the same experience, and she did not have a chance to look like herself until she appeared in "The Red Petticoat." During the Boston run of "The Blindness of Virtue," Miss Emery overheard a Boston man speak of her role in the play. "Of course," he said, "there never was on this earth a character like Cookie," whereupon Miss Emery became justly indignant, and rightly, too, for she had copied her Cookie in appearance from a "lady of the kitchen," who presides over the pots and kettles in a suburban mansion not more than ten miles from Trafalgar square, London.
