OREGON HEARING OF UNMERGER CASE HARRIMAN LINES

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 2.—Asked to use his influence to prevent the threatened suit of the federal government to force a dissolution of the Southern Pacific and Central Pacific railroads, Governor West has announced today a hearing to be attended by himself, D. W. Campbell, general superintendent of the Southern Pacific lines in Oregon, members of the state railroad commission and probably heads of business organizations who fear that the contemplated action would be injurious to the state, will be held here this week.

The suit, if successfully prosecuted, would compel the Southern Pacific to give up its present arrangements with the Central Pacific in Oregon and Northern California.

According to Governor West, the government's activities are bound to result in much good or harm to Oregon's interests and calls for a most careful and unbiased investigation.

RIO JANEIRO, Feb. 2.—Ten to fifteen thousand persons were homeless in Bahia state today as a result of the floods. Many were reported on the verge of starvation. One town was completely and several partly destroyed. There were also numerous drownings, though no exact figures were obtainable.

PEACE AND RECONSTRUCTION

COMMENTING upon the anti-trust program outlined in President Wilson's recent message, the New York World says:

"President Wilson's message is no less admirable for its tone and temper than for its substance. To say that the president's recommendations are not radical would be absurd. But this radicalism is the radicalism of sanity and justice. It is the sort of radicalism that registers the deliberate, well-considered sentiments of the American people in accordance with the president's maxim that 'legislation is a business of interpretation, not of origination.' It is a radicalism to which even the leaders of big business have in a large measure subscribed, and which represents what the president well describes as 'a common effort to square business methods with both public opinion and the law.'"

"Such a message as Mr. Wilson has written cannot fail to be reassuring to American commerce and industry. The days of government by denunciation, no less than of government by purchase, are ended.

"His program involves no new and startling exercise of governmental power. It involves no dangerous centralization of authority. It involves no careless experimentation with theories born of loose and wayward thinking. It creates no irresponsible bureaucracy with the power of life and death over the business of the country. Mr. Wilson is not working under a new nationalism, but under the old nationalism, and he is employing the powers and precedents of that old nationalism to carry into effect the principles upon which he came into office.

"Whoever reads the president's message must feel at once that here is a man who knows what he is talking about; that here is a man who has a clear, definite purpose; that that purpose is to translate into law in a useful, practical and safe way the general verdict of public opinion in the case of the People versus Big Business, and that this work is to be done not only with a minimum of disturbance to every man who is conducting an honest business in good faith, but with definite assurances to such a man that it is the duty of government to guarantee to him the largest measure of liberty under the law.

"Mr. Wilson's message is the final answer to the late J. Pierpont Morgan's cynical remark that 'you can't unscramble eggs.' The eggs are going to be unscrambled. Some of them already have been unscrambled. They can be unscrambled by a president who is honest, just, intelligent and sincere and is seeking only to promote the public welfare. This is the great lesson that Woodrow Wilson has taught the country. Wall street itself responds to the program of such a man, and finds in him a bulwark against the assaults of demagogues, passion and socialism.

"The president has done his work well. It remains now to be seen how well congress will do its share."

The Preparation of a Rose Bed

A committee of the National Rose society has presented the following as the most satisfactory way in which to grow roses:

"The soil must be well broken up to a depth of from two to three feet. Of this the lower part should consist of rich soil which is retentive of moisture, while the surface soil should be of a lighter and more friable character. There must also be no possibility of surface water remaining stagnant in the soil of the bed.

The soil in which roses grow best is an intermediate loam containing a mixture of rich clay and sand. In maiden land of this description the top spit will probably be of lighter character than that below, and in the finished bed the original top spit must still remain on the surface. This is achieved by "bastard trenching" as follows.

From a section three or four feet, at one end of the proposed bed, remove the top spit to the depth of one foot or so, and wheel it to the other end of the bed. Then turn over and thoroughly break up the lower soil of this section to a further depth of one and one-half to two feet, and in this lower soil incorporate a good dressing of well rotted manure. Then on to the top of this prepared lower layer turn the top spit from the next section of three or four feet of the bed, thoroughly breaking it up at the same time. Next break up the lower level of soil in this section of the bed, treating it in the same way as in the first section—cover it with the top spit from the third section. Continuing in the same way through the length of the bed, there will be at the end of the top spit removed from the first section to finish off the surface of the last section.

If the soil is rather light in character the manure used should be from the cow or pig; and the lower layers of the bed might with advantage have a little heavier soil added as well.

If, on the other hand, the sub-soil is so stiff as to be impervious to water, some sufficient form of drainage must be provided to prevent the soil round the roots of the plants becoming waterlogged. In such a heavy soil horse manure or crushed bones will probably be best. Should the surface contain too large a proportion of clay it may be lightened by the mixture with it of leaf mould, burnt earth, ashes, building rubbish, road sand of similar material.

The preparation of the bed, as described, should be completed at least three weeks before it is desired to plant the roses, so that the newly-turned soil may have time to settle down naturally.

Rose Culture in Mid-Winter

(E. V. Holman in Portland Oregonian.) As has happened in some previous years, the weather has been so warm in Portland that the rose bushes have begun to send out new shoots. Seeing these conditions, a number of people have been pruning their bushes. Based on my experience for many years, I think this ill-advised. While we cannot, of course, tell what the weather is going to be, it has not yet infrequently happened that after a warm January we have had freezing weather in February. When this takes place the new shoots and the parts of the bush full of sap are usually killed.

As is true of all exogenous plants, to which roses belong, the sap is first carried to the top of the bush or tree and then the sap descends. The result is that the new growth is always at the top of the plant. This will be noticed particularly in the case of cherry trees where the finest cherries and the greatest number are at the top of the tree and at the end of the branches. The result is that if we have freezing weather the tops of the rose bushes may be killed down several inches, but the lower buds remain practically in a dormant state and after the freezing is over the bushes may be pruned and the dormant buds will develop into new shoots. Several years ago I pruned my bushes in a January similar to the one of 1914, and after doing so we had freezing weather and my bushes were killed several inches from the top and I had to prune them all over.

Portland be not pruned until the danger of freezing weather is over. This is usually about the middle of February.

The records were so complicated that the shake's location could not be determined from them, as is usual. It was said to have been a disturbance of tremendous violence.

GOMB SAGE TEA IN LIFELESS, GRAY HAIR Look young! Common garden Sage and Sulphur darkens so naturally nobody can tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

DIGGS UNABLE TO RAISE $10,000 BAIL REQUIRED

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 2.—Manry I. Diggs, charged with a serious statutory offense against 17-year-old Ida Peering, failed to make good his promise to be ready with bail when his case came up before Police Judge Christ at 10 a. m. His case was continued until Thursday at the same hour, and he was returned to the city prison, declaring he would have sureties ready to sign his bond later in the day. Walter Gilligan, jointly accused with him, was also locked up in default of $10,000 bail, the same figure as that specified for Diggs. Florian Fischer, for whom a warrant was issued at the same time as those for Diggs and Gilligan were sworn out, was released on promising to appear as a witness Thursday.

Ida Peering did not appear in court, her mother producing a doctor's certificate stating that she was suffering from nervous prostration and unable to leave her bed. Attorney E. McKenzie, speaking

HUNDREDS OF WOMEN nowadays are entering the professions or business world and go to work day after day in bad health, afflicted with some female ailment, dragging one foot wearily after the other, working with one eye on the clock, and wishing for closing time to come.

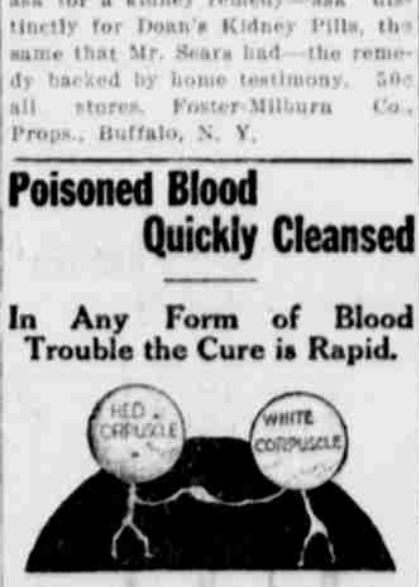

Women in this condition should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs. It has brought health and happiness to more women in America than any other remedy. Give it a trial.

One of Interest to Car Readers. Good news bears repeating, and when it is confirmed after a long lapse of time, even if we hesitated to believe it at first hearing, we feel secure in accepting its truth now. The following experience of a Medford man is confirmed after many years.

A. Z. Sears, 231 Fifth St., Medford, Oregon, says: "Since publicly recommending Doan's Kidney Pills in 1907, I have used them occasionally and they have always brought good results. I was afflicted with severe pains in my back and I often found it impossible to stoop. The kidney secretions passed too frequently and this weakness was a source of much annoyance. Hearing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended, I procured a box at Haskins' drug store and by the time I had finished the contents, I could see that they were the right remedy for my trouble. Gradually the pains and other difficulties disappeared and my health improved. I cheerfully recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to everyone afflicted with kidney complaint."

"When Your Back is Lame—Remember the Name." Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mr. Sears had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Poisoned Blood Quickly Cleansed In Any Form of Blood Trouble the Cure is Rapid.

An astonishing record of serious blood poisoning is daily brought to our attention. And most of them all these startling ailments could be averted were the blood purified, toned and purified in advance by that wonderful remedy known everywhere as S. S. S. Few people realize how quickly the system becomes infected with the acids and ferments from indigestible food, constipation and inactive kidneys. The symptoms are fever, thirst, excitability, dry skin, followed by rash, and many indications wrongly diagnosed as Pimples poisoning. This condition is almost universal in all climates and is quickly overcome by the action of S. S. S. The medicinal properties of S. S. S. are relatively just as essential to well balanced health as are the nutritive properties of the meats, grains, fats and sugars of our daily food. And if you will bear this fact in mind and get your blood under the dominating influence of S. S. S. you will not only drive out those impurities that cause Rheumatism, Catarrh, Eczema, Pimples, Boils and thin anemic blood, but you will feel anew the thrill of health that can come only from a purified blood stream. Do not accept anything else in place of S. S. S.; pay no attention to the "Just as Good" claims of those who would sacrifice your health to make an extra profit. S. S. S. contains no minerals, no crude drugs, nothing but the most beneficial botanical materials. Be sure and get S. S. S. and avoid disappointment.
