WOMEN UNITE IN NATIONAL BODY TO OPPOSE ALL WARS

DENVER, Colo., April 2.—"We will not tolerate another war where in we are the ones to suffer. We will not bear the sorrow of having our sons shot down like dogs to protect property in Mexico or elsewhere."

This was the sentiment expressed by many influential women here today in organizing the Women's Peace society. They hope to make it national in its scope and will communicate with women suffrage leaders in every state in an effort to obtain a concerted movement. Mrs. Alma Lafferty, a former member of the state legislature, said:

"I hope the feeling grows against allowing American boys to be shot down. Every foot of land in Mexico is not worth the life of a single American boy. I went down into the valley of the shadow of death to hear a son who fell a victim to the unnecessary war with Spain."

"The noblest example the world has seen was shown recently when several British officers resigned rather than take up arms against their brothers in Ulster."

"Colorado women have the ballot and will not stand for another war. We must stamp out this cruel suffering."

A recent editorial by Herbert Quick inspired today's meeting.

Hobson is confident but is giving out no figures.

COXEY ESTABLISHES NEW YORK OFFICES

NEW YORK, April 2.—Headquarters were established here by "General" Jacob S. Coxey, leader of the army of unemployed men who marched to Washington in 1894. Coxey said he intended to lead 500,000 unemployed men into the national capital sometime this month and would spend several days here mobilizing the New York wing of the army. The main division of the army, according to Coxey, will leave Massillon, Ohio, April 16.

TWO HUNDRED SEALERS LOST

whaler Southern Cross in the same storm. This story proved to be erroneous, though how the mistake occurred was not clear.

The Southern Cross was, however, three days overdue and the gravest fears were entertained for its safety. The confusion was attributed here to errors in transmission of wireless messages, but they had not been cleared up, and it remained a question whether the Southern Cross, the New Foundland or both were lost.

The Florizel's dispatch, at any rate, was clear in the statement that the disaster it referred to had befallen members of the New Foundland's crew. It did not say, however, that the ship sank, leaving the possibility open that the men were sealing on the ice and could not get back to the vessel. It was added that the Florizel had fifty corpses on board and that the steamship Belle Venture assisted in picking up the bodies.

Three Days Overdue

The Southern Cross, whether lost or not, was three days overdue today and much anxiety was felt concerning it.

There were twenty ships in the sealing fleet which put out from St. Johns March 13 and must have run into the blizzard and the ice pack. Most of them were exceptionally staunch craft and it was believed they could successfully combat the furies.

In all, nearly 4000 men were in the sealing fleet when the storm struck the fleet.

LOYD'S LONG HIT FEATURE OF GAME WON BY PORTLAND

The game between the Portland Colts and the Colored Giants yesterday was a record-breaker in one respect, when Lloyd, the Giants' shortstop, drove his second home run over the center field fence, the longest hit ever made on the local grounds, and almost breaking the record on the coast.

The game was also remarkable for the number of long drives, giving two home runs, a triple and six two-baggers in addition to a dozen clean singles and several long drives that were pulled down in most spectacular manner. Harbort's jumping catch of Guiguni's drive to right, and Coltrons' fancy stop and quick recovery on Booker's smashing hit to short in the fifth were as brilliant plays as were ever seen on the diamond.

Both teams were out to win, as this was their first real contest, Nick having utilized the previous games to try out his youngsters, but yesterday he went in for a victory. The Colts started off with a two-run lead in the first, which they increased to five in the third, but after that the Giants slowly crawled up until in the ninth, with a home run, a double and two singles, they tied the score. Whereupon the field resembled a dozen cartoons of P. B. done in sepia. Immediately thereafter, however, two walks and a drive to left by Whitt brought in the winning run and the white teeth disappeared.

On the whole, the game was full of interesting features, and the heavy hitting furnished repeated surprises which kept the fans guessing and made the game one of the most interesting we have had. The promise of a good game of ball was certainly fulfilled.

Score by innings:

Portland—2 0 5 0 0 1 0 0 1—9
Hits—22 0 4 0 0 2 1 1 1—11

Giants—0 0 2 2 0 2 0 0 2—8
Hits—0 0 3 1 1 2 0 0 4—11

Batteries—Williams, Coleman, Callahan, Battiste; of Jaker, Wade.

Four runs, four hits off Callahan in four innings; four runs, seven hits off Battiste in five innings.

Summary—Home runs, Lloyd 2; three-base hits, Coltrons; two-base hits, Wade, Whitt, McKune, Melchior, Coleman, Monroe 2. Struck out, by Wade 7, by Callahan 4, by Battiste 2. Base on balls, off Wade 4, Callahan 4, Battiste 1. Hit by pitched ball, by Wade 1, Callahan 1, Battiste 1. Umpire, Kestery. Time of game, two hours and ten minutes.

SUIT FILED TO TEST COLUMBIA BRIDGE BONDS

PORTLAND, Ore., April 2.—Suit to enjoin the Multnomah county commissioners from using any part of the $1,250,000 bonds authorized by the voters of the county to build the interstate bridge over the Columbia river between Vancouver and Portland, was filed in the circuit court this afternoon by T. N. Stoppenbach. The validity of the bond issue is challenged on constitutional grounds.

Stoppenbach alleges that the act authorizing the county to bond itself with the interest shifted to the state at large is unconstitutional, "because the issuance of the bonds will create a liability and debt of the county of Multnomah in excess of $5000 and is not being made, nor will not be made, to suppress insurrection nor repel invasion nor to build or maintain permanent roads within the county."

FIFTY YEARS AGO BISH CROSSED CONTINENT

Fifty years ago today, A. W. Bish, then a boy of 14, left Bloomfield, la., with his parents and started on the Overland trip to California by way of the south pass, making the trip by horse instead of oxen, as was the general practice in those days. It was four months before they reached Sonoma county. In 1871 he moved to the Rogue River valley, where he has since lived. The day revives reminiscent memories. Mr. Bish recalls that rain prevailed all during the period spent traversing Iowa, the dangers and rigors of the transcontinental trip were many, and at Walker Lake, Nevada, they were surrounded by Indians. For hours they were in danger, when the kindly offices of a friendly and educated Indian bore fruit and the attack was called off.

INJURED STEAMER COMPLETES VOYAGE

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 2.—The Matson liner Wilhelmina, in from Honolulu last Tuesday, was docked at Hunter's point today for examination. That the vessel met with some sort of an accident on its last voyage was admitted, but just what it was the ship's officers and officials of the line would not tell, and perhaps did not know. It was variously reported that the big craft had scraped a sandbank, hit a reef among the Farallones and struck an uncharted rock. The 200 passengers of the Wilhelmina brought from Honolulu disembarked, unconscious that there had been any mishap.

SPANISH SHIP SINKS STEAMSHIP MAINE

DOVER, England, April 2.—Colliding with the Spanish steamship Jose de Aramburu in a fog off Goodwin Sands, the steamship Maine, bound from London to French ports, was believed today to have been sunk with all on board. The De Aramburu reached Dover in a sinking condition, but of the Maine no trace could be found by tugs which rescued the crew and searched for it, except a few fragments of wreckage.

Current is furnished by a generator, mounted on the right hand side of the motor. The generator is driven by a silent chain at 1.4 times engine speed. During daylight running the generator delivers current into the one-hundred ampere-hour storage battery, located in a battery box, at the forward end of left running board. When the lights are turned on, the generator immediately delivers an increased amount of current which is sufficient, at ordinary or high running speed, to care for the lamp load without any discharge from the battery. In other words, when the car is running with lights burning, except at extremely low speeds on high gear, the battery is still receiving current from the generator.

The lighting switch and fuse block are mounted in a small box under the front seat cushion, the push buttons projecting in such a way that they are convenient for the driver's left hand, at the same time fully protected from mechanical injury. Four spare fuses for emergency are carried in the switch box.

The wiring for the lighting system is run on a single wire grounded return plan, while the starting motor has a full copper return to the battery to minimize the drop in voltage when starter is in operation. With the exception of this return from the starting motor, which consists of non-insulated flexible copper cable, the wiring is of high grade insulated copper, inclosed in flexible metal conduits for protection.

Only seven wires are required for the lighting system, one to each lamp, one to the generator and a return wire which connects the generator with the starting switch. The wiring of the starting system consists of only two wires, one of which goes from the battery to the starting motor by way of the starting switch. Thus the system is so simple that even an average electrician can easily understand the working of every part.
