

ILLINOIS ELECTION DISAPPOINTS MANY INCLUDING PROHIS

CHICAGO, April 8.—Except the winning candidates and their closest political and personal friends, everybody was groaning today over the result of Tuesday's elections throughout the state.

The women voters in Chicago did not turn out nearly as well as had been expected. There were registered 217,614, and of these less than 100,000 cast ballots. All of the nine women aldermanic candidates were beaten badly.

The socialists hoped to elect several aldermen. They failed. The republicans had hoped to gain control of the city council. They, too, failed. The democrats, however, lost several wards they had expected to carry. Of the aldermen elected, twenty-one were democrats, nine republicans and three progressives. This gave the council a total of forty-one democrats, twenty-one republicans, five progressives and three independents.

Bathhouse John Victor

The better element was deeply depressed at "Bathhouse" John Coughlin's easy victory in the aldermanic fight in the first ward.

In the state, outside Chicago, the anti-saloon campaigners had hoped to put 3000 saloons out of business. They succeeded in wiping out only 1000. This, however, was enough to pain the wets.

To the thirty previously dry Illinois counties there were added the following sixteen: Boone, Brown, Christian, Dekalb, Dewitt, Shelby, Fulton, Henry, Jersey, Knox, Livingston, Macon, McLean, Stevenson, Warren and Winnebago.

Of the larger cities, the following, previously wet, went dry: Bloomington, Decatur, Belvidere, Canton, Freeport, Galesburg, Joliet, Moline, Keokuk, Lockport, Elgin and East Galena.

Drys Fall of Victory

The drys made strong efforts to capture Springfield, Quincy, West Galena, Rock Island, Dixon, Aurora, Waukegan, Alton and Moline, but failed. The wets, on the other hand, fought hard for Rockford and Galva, but they stayed dry.

A much larger proportion of registered women voted in the country than in Chicago, and the result made it plain that the drys were right in claiming that a majority of them were for prohibition.

Suffragette Comfort

The suffrage leaders got what comfort they could out of the situation, however. "By electing three nonpartisans and ousting several undesirable from the city council," said Mrs. Joseph Bowen, president of the Equal Suffrage association, "women have shown what they can accomplish toward cleaning politics. It is true we elected no women to office, but we achieved a great moral victory."

"Women have shown their courage by entering into politics as candidates," said Jane Addams. "Our future campaigns will be planned for months in advance."

WEDDING BELLS

At high noon Sunday, April 5, at the residence of the officiating minister on Morton street, Ashland, occurred a very pretty and quiet wedding in the marriage of Christine B. Beaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Beaver of Ashland, and Bert G. Harr of Watkins, in the Applegate section of this county. The words which made them husband and wife were said by Rev. W. T. Van Scoy. The bestowal of the ring by the groom was a part of the ceremony. Miss Maude Harr, a well-known teacher of the Central Point schools and a sister of the groom, accompanied the happy couple. The wedded pair belong to two excellent families of this county. The groom is a native of Wyoming, but has grown to young manhood in Oregon. He received his schooling in the Jacksonville and Willow Springs schools. Bert is one of the sturdy and industrious young farmers of Jackson county. The bride is a native of Ohio and has lived four years in Oregon and is one of the successful school teachers of this county. She is a graduate of the Rushsylvania, Ohio, high school, and after coming to Ashland took a few weeks' study of special methods and school law in the college preparatory school. This popular young couple will go to housekeeping at once on the farm near Watkins. Their many friends wish for them all the happiness possible to be crowded into two lives.

ALBANY, N. Y.—Governor Glynn refused pardon, commutation or reprieve to the four gunmen under sentence to die for murdering Herman Rosenthal, the gambler.

MC COY HAILED AS NEW CHAMPION OF MIDDLEWEIGHTS

NEW YORK, April 8.—Another middleweight championship claimant appeared here today in the person of Al McCoy of Brooklyn, hitherto considered a mere novice, who knocked out George Chip of Newcastle, Pa., regarded by many as the king of the middleweights by virtue of his two victories over Frank Klaus of Pittsburgh.

After fighting less than two minutes in the first round of a scheduled ten-round bout here, McCoy sent a left hook to the jaw. Chip dropped on his back, and it was several minutes before he recovered sufficiently to leave the ring.

"It was a lucky punch," said Chip today. "McCoy caught me coming in. It was a hard blow, but when I fell I struck my head on the floor and it was this that rendered me unconscious. All I want is another chance."

McCoy's awkwardness was said by many to have been responsible for Chip's downfall. The Brooklynite fights with his right foot out and his right hand extended. This style completely baffled Chip and the only solid punch landed was the one that put Chip to sleep. The men clinched as they broke, McCoy missed a wicked left for the head. Chip made a weak try for McCoy's stomach, but his efforts were blocked. Then the Brooklynite brought over the knock-out.

Chip's brother several weeks ago gave McCoy a sound beating at the Broadway club.

JAMESTOWN RACING MEET CALLED OFF

NORFOLK, Va., April 8.—As a result of the determined attitude of the authorities to suppress betting, the race meeting of the Jamestown Jockey club was officially declared off today. Announcement that such action would be taken was made last night. The bookmakers arrested yesterday were still in custody today as a result of the absence of $2000 bail demanded of each.

The governor and attorney general of Virginia are behind the movement to suppress betting, and the racing officials called off the meet when they realized the futility of further resistance. The meeting opened April 1 and was to have ended April 17.

MONTHLY BUDGET ORDERED PAID AT COUNCIL MEETING

The city council made a record at its Tuesday night meeting. It surprised itself and everybody else by concluding regular business in three hours without a speech. This is the shortest session of the present administration.

Councilman Medynski revived his old favorite—the chicken ordinance, and made an effort to hustle it through to the final vote, but Councilman Porter moved that it be postponed until the next meeting. E. E. Gore, chief orator of the meat markets, and Wig Ashpole, his chief assistant, arrived too late to offer opposition.

The ordinance providing for the collection of delinquent assessments, moving the power to collect from the chief of police to the recorder, was passed and will be effective in fifteen days.

In co-operation with the Greater Medford club in its campaign against flies, Chief Hittison was given a list of fly-breeding places to be removed.

F. E. Merriek asked that the city pay rent for the hitching racks at the Nat, and the matter was continued for consideration.

An informal petition was presented for the right to build an open-air theater near the Page theater was laid on the table. C. E. Gates was given the right to display automobiles on Riverside avenue, upon assuming all the damage risk.

A number of apple trees near the city intake, infected with blight, were ordered cut down.

Upon motion of Hargreave the practice of presenting an ordinance for its third reading upon the night of its presentation will be discontinued.

Building permits aggregating $8000 for construction work in the city were approved by the council.

The monthly budget was audited and ordered paid.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia.—Sterling S. Burton, ex-police reporter, was appointed chief of police.

MORLOCK ELECTED GOLD HILL MAYOR

J. B. R. Morlock was elected mayor of Gold Hill by 145 votes to 70 for Dr. R. C. Kelsey and the charter amendments carried by 200 majority at Tuesday's election. The successful councilmanic candidates were: Messrs. Patrick, Redfield and Adams, and under the new charter, Tom Ray, Mrs. Truax and Roy Cameron.

The result was a triumph of the Reeman ticket and a repudiation of the bonds voted two years ago for a water system.

GREENVILLE, S. C.—Ex-Governor Draper of Massachusetts suffered a paralytic stroke.
