FOUR GUNMEN DIE

Rabbi Goldstein entered the death chamber with him. He strode quickly to the chair, then turned and hesitated. Two guards pushed him into the seat and began adjusting the straps. Seiden-shner started as the wet sponge pressed his head and a tiny stream of water trickled into his left ear.

He began to speak as an attendant behind him started to fit the black electrode over his head. The condemned man flinched at its touch, but his voice was firm throughout his short declaration. The rabbi, standing with his back to the chair, his face working pitifully, meantime continued to intone prayers. As Seiden-shner finished his statement he repeated after the rabbi the constantly recurring words, "There is one God—only one." He was speaking the last word when the attendant clapped the flap of the electrode carried across his mouth and buckled it. Through the opening, however, the prisoner's lips could still be seen moving, evidently as he muttered responses to the rabbi's words.

Death Horrors Depicted

Then there was a brief stillness, the warden raised his hand and State Electrician Davis, behind the switchboard, threw the lever over.

At 5:50 o'clock the current was switched off and the body sank back inertly. There was a brief wait and then another shock. Then Prison Physicians Farr and Morens approached, opened the gunman's shirt, applied their stethoscopes and pronounced the victim dead. Attendants quickly loosened the straps and carried the corpse into the morgue behind the chair.

Horowitz Paralyzed With Horror

Horowitz appeared half paralyzed with horror when he entered. His eyes bulged and it was evident that he was close to complete collapse. He moved mechanically as the guards guided him, and died without a word, and probably hardly conscious, the doctors said, of what he was undergoing.

Rosenberg was the hardest to kill. Four shocks were needed. He said nothing and showed little emotion.

Each gunman as he left the death house to pass the "little green door" on his way to the "chair," called good-bye to the other prisoners in the condemned cells and each shook hands with Head Keeper Melnery and Warden Clancy. Rosenberg, more emotional than his three companions, even threw his arms around Clancy's neck, weeping, and kissed him on the cheek. The warden was much affected.

Relatives Claim Body

Before the executions, Father Cashin was asked if Cirofofi had confessed, to which he replied, evasively, "I think not."

"Do you personally think him guilty?" was also asked.

"I can't say that," replied the priest, "but if you knew what is here"—touching his forehead—"you would have some news."

The bodies were surrendered to the relatives.

The crowd of witnesses in the death chamber was so great that they had to alternate into squads, and not many persons saw all four executions.

Cirofofi's mother and sister Mary arrived at the prison at 4:30 and Mrs. Cirofofi made a final attempt to have her son confess, but he insisted that he was innocent. The mother fainted and had to be carried out. It was reported that the attendants stupefied Cirofofi with drugs and that this accounted for his dazed condition as he went to his death.

Victims Sleep But Little

The men slept little during their last night alive and the guards could hear their voices frequently as they muttered prayers.

An investigation was in progress today to fix responsibility for an attempt to delay the executions by putting the "chair" out of commission. The special dynamo connected with it had been damaged as if with a hammer. The damage was discovered and repaired in time, however. A prison employe was suspected.

The men's real names were: "Gyp the Blood"—Harry Horowitz; "Dago Frank"—Frank Cirofofi; "Whitey Lewis"—Frank Seiden-shner; "Lefty Lonie"—Louis Rosenberg.

Governor Glynn, who has been laboring under a great strain, which steadily increased as the hour for the gunmen's execution drew closer and closer, appeared intensely relieved when told that Warden Clancy of Sing Sing prison had said he thought no more than justice had been done.

It was said "Dago Frank's" dying statement was being hurried to Prison Superintendent Riley by a special messenger.

CHILDREN ROLL EGGS WHITE HOUSE LAWN

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Back from White Sulphur Springs, President Wilson breakfasted at the White House today. As his guests on the executive mansion grounds he had a good share of the juvenile population of Washington for the annual Easter Monday egg-rolling.

AGED PORTLAND MAN KILLS HIMSELF AT HOME

PORTLAND, Ore., April 13.—Dependently over ill health was believed today to have been the cause of Sheburne Wilson, 83, committing suicide late yesterday. While the members of his family were out for an afternoon walk the aged man took a revolver, went to the rear lawn, sat down on a wheelbarrow and fired a bullet into his temple.

SITUATION TENSE

The president also believes that the canal tolls fight in the senate already has been won. He is encouraged by the fact that many of those who promised to appear before the senate intercanal canal committee and testify against the repeal failed to appear. He thinks that 90 per cent of the delegates at the Baltimore convention favor the repeal of the exemption clause in the canal bill. The suggestion that the repeal resolution include a declaration that the United States reserves all its rights in connection with the canal is not favored by the president.

RICH HOTEL MAN ELOPES WITH WIDOW

OAKLAND, Cal., April 13.—William Carr, millionaire hotel owner of Niagara Falls, N. Y., eloped with Mrs. Elizabeth Fleming, a wealthy widow of Los Angeles, it was learned here today. The couple met at the Hotel Oakland Saturday noon. They crossed the bay to San Francisco, where they were quietly married. The honeymoon is being spent at the Hotel Del Monte and Santa Cruz.

It is understood the couple had known each other for only a few weeks, an acquaintanceship at a dinner party ripening into love.

Their plans were carried out with the utmost secrecy. Carr is one of the best-known hotel men in the United States.

LIND RETURNS FROM MEXICO

Parras by two other strong federal forces, and gave the rebels battle. How this struggle which was reported to be a very bloody one, resulted had not yet been learned here.

In the meantime, however, a body of federal volunteers under General Argumedo and General Campa attacked San Pedro. The rebels there, being heavily outnumbered, evacuated the town and made for Torreon. General Villa rushed reinforcements to meet them. It was expected the two bodies would join one another on the road and return at once.

Simultaneously with the news that the rebels had been driven from San Pedro came the information that a federal body of 2000 from Saltillo or Monterrey, which seemed to have dodged the rebels while the latter were engaged at Parras, was advancing by forced marches on Torreon. Presumably believing it had been practically denuded of rebel defenders and could be taken by surprise.

As a matter of fact, General Villa had 500 men with him in the city and was prepared to give the enemy a hot reception.

Last night there were brought into Torreon 365 federal prisoners, who were expected to take the rebel oath of allegiance and join General Villa's forces.

YOUNG FORGER PLEADS GUILTY

rosy. Then the police came and he nearly fainted. Young Reynolds is an intelligent appearing young man, and this is his first mis-step.

Reynolds' victims include a number of merchants who have been "stung" before by versatile agents of pen and ink. Garnett & Carey cashed one check for $37.50, Toggery Bill for $36, the Model for $44, and other of smaller denominations. He presented a check for $35 to C. E. Gates after buying auto supplies. It was a counter check, and aroused suspicions. He was directed to go to Ed Brown's to get it cashed, and in the meantime the police were notified. Mr. Brown rejected the check and Reynolds entered Diamond's jewelry store. There he tried to buy a watch with worthless paper and was arrested by Officer Cingade as he stepped upon the street. He admitted his guilt. Most of the money and a suit of clothes he had purchased were taken from him.

Though Reynolds says this was his first big financing, the police believe he has been passing checks for $2 and $3 the last month. He at first gave the name of James Senior and signed the checks E. V. Shipley.

Seven prisoners are in the county jail, six of them awaiting trial for forgery. One woman is held; the rest are men.

ORCHARDISTS, ATTENTION

Word received from Washington in response to our request for the establishment of a weather bureau station here indicates that the bureau plans to undertake to serve our needs by detailing a man from Portland each spring during the frost danger period. No argument is needed to satisfy local people of the inadequateness of such a service.

The Commercial club is sending to the department at Washington, through Senators Chamberlain and Lane, a strong protest against this half-hearted action. We strongly feel the importance of having this request backed up by individual letters from orchardists and business men. We want at least fifty such letters sent at once to Senator George E. Chamberlain and Senator Harry Lane, Washington, D. C. They are important. Will you not be one of the fifty?

Let the letters ask for a permanent weather bureau station. Base the request on the ground that the fruit industry demands such service, and, for geographical reasons, the bureau's service should have the benefit of continuous records taken at this point.

HOW TO KEEP ACTIVE

When Old Age Overtakes Us.

Mrs. John Whitman of Jackson, Mich., says: "Although 69 years of age, and naturally, because of my advanced age, in an enfeebled condition, I can truthfully say that Vinol has done wonders to keep me as active as I am. It is the best medicine to create strength that I ever saw. This spring I was very much run down and worn out but I took Vinol and soon felt stronger and able to work about the home. I can recommend Vinol as a very invigorating tonic."

Should the system get run down—digestive organs weak—the blood thin and sluggish—take Vinol, which is a delicious combination of the medicinal—body-building properties of cod's liver, with the useless grease eliminated and tonic from added. We regard Vinol as one of the greatest body-builders and strength creators in the world for aged people.

We wish every feeble person in this vicinity would try Vinol on our agreement to return their money if it fails to give satisfaction. Medford Pharmacy, Medford, Ore.

P. S. If you have any skin trouble try Sazo Salve. We guarantee it.

The Liver as Aid To Blood Purity

The Natural Stimulus Required is Not the Pur-gative Kind.

Most Pills Are Better if Thrown Away.

Important as it is to keep the bowels open, it should be remembered that such action does not necessarily mean that the liver has been stimulated. The action of S. S. S. is a natural liver tonic, but not a bowel mover. It works in the liver cells to assist in the natural and necessary function of converting from the blood certain constituents into that are known as assimilable products. These are readily absorbed into the body tissues to constantly provide new and healthy material for that which is being destroyed by the energy of tissue changes.

The presence of any blood trouble naturally suggests a sluggish liver, but there is required those medicinal properties which, upon reaching the liver, still retain their cathartic energy to keep on through the blood circulation to do battle with impurities wherever they may have settled. Rheumatism, catarrh, anemia, most skin diseases and other results of impure blood, while implicating the liver by their morbid influences, are quickly checked by S. S. S. Its action throughout the blood circulation results in the stimulation of the tissue cells in the healthy and judicious selection of their own essential nutrient.

You can get S. S. S. in any drug store, but insist upon having it.

Take no chance by permitting anyone to recommend a substitute. And if your blood condition is such that you would like to consult a specialist, address The S. S. S. Co., 1230 Broadway, New York, N. Y.
