MEDFORD MAIL TRIBUNE, MEDFORD, OREGON, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 15, 1914.

HAMPTON ROADS, Va., April 15. -Admiral Badger signalled today to the vessels of the Atlantic fleet: "Up anchors at 10 o'clock."

At daybreak the battleships New Jersev, Arkansas and Vermont, their supplies all on board and the last preparations completed, moved from Portsmouth navyyard to Lyan Haven hay, near Old Point Comfort.

The work of loading the New Hampshire was being rushed at top speed.

Secret orders kept the torpedoboat commanders on the jump throughout the night, but indications are they would not start with the rest of the fleet.

It was a busy night for everyone. Coaling the hig ships was going on until after dawn. Every bunker was filled to its capacity.

Squads of bluejackets were making the rounds in a thin drizzle of RIFLE SHOOTERS TO the fleet. Many were scattered on shore leave in Norfolk, Old Point Comfort and Newport News. The naval training station was drained of men to take the places of those whose leave had taken them so far away that they could not be reached Rifle and Pistol club, who have been by sailing time.
