BOGUS CHECK ARTIST ARRESTED

Dr. H. H. Gilman of Seattle, an extractor of corns, and alleged extractor of coin from hotels at Eugene, Salem, Albany and other Willamette valley points, was arrested at Ashland Wednesday afternoon by Chief of Police Hittson, upon telegraphic advices from Seattle. It is alleged that Gilman flooded the northern part of the state with worthless checks and attempted to bill local hotels by the same method. Dr. Gilman registered at the Nash, Moore and Medford hotels and attempted to pass a check at the Nash that was refused. Shortly after his arrival a message was received from Seattle asking for his arrest, but Gilman became suspicious and hid by auto for Ashland and went into hiding, waiting for an outboard train. Chief Hittson traced him to that city. According to the local police, Gilman is one of the shrewdest had check men out of jail, and was getting ready for extensive operations in the valley when arrested. (Paid Adv.)

COLVIG, TREASURER

If Ability and Geniality Count, He Should Win Out If geniality and courtesy count for anything in an office like that of county treasurer, Fred Colvig ought to get a big vote at the republican primary—and it is generally conceded that he will receive many a vote on the strength of these particular qualities. The man who combines geniality with ability really ought to be entitled to win out in the contests of business and political life. He doesn't always do so, because frequently somebody else has a "pull" that isn't based on these two commendable attributes. All too frequently other attributes, with the strings pulled from behind the scenes, are responsible for placing the other fellow in office. If the people of Ashland and Jackson county were to select only those candidates for office who are most

In harmony and sympathy with the ordinary run of humanity, Fred Colvig would certainly get the nomination he seeks on the republican ticket at the primary next Friday. Mr. Colvig is one of the most capable fellows in Jackson county—yet he is "as common as an old shoe" as the proverb goes. When it comes to geniality he is about the most likely chap of all the candidates who have circulated about the county during the campaign. He has a vigorous and optimistic look that makes his appearance a matter of pleasure to the voter who is called upon daily to greet political aspirants. As tax collecting is now one of the duties that devolve upon the county treasurer, and as tax paying is a "sad business" at best, it strikes us that it is eminently appropriate to have a cheerful and courteous gentleman in the "seat of customs." Mr. Colvig not only has the requisite qualifications along these lines, but possesses in a high degree the mental and physical qualifications and disposition to cope successfully with the duties and strain that fall to the lot of the treasurer's office under the new tax-collecting regulations. Political prophets in this end of the valley will be very much mistaken if he doesn't show up after the primary next Friday with the nomination dangling at his belt. (Paid Adv.) TWO PART BRONCHO SPECIAL AT THE IT THEATER "The Veteran" is a play certain to open itself to many hearts. How often we hear the older generation regretting that young people today know so little about the civil war's persons past middle age, it is still a vivid reality—for they have listened to the old soldiers tell thrilling stories of their adventures in the camp and on the battlefield—they have heard them in senool on Memorial Day—or sat on their knees at home, drinking in tales of Gettysburg, and "Uncle Abe" and Sherman's march to the sea. But to the children and young people growing up in our country, at this is mere history, and Memorial Day is just a holiday—for picnicing and baseball. The spirit of the sixties doesn't exist for them. This homely drama of Mr. Clifford and Mr. Ince brings back and makes vivid all the pathos and heroism of the civil war days. It will help to keep the sentiment of those stirring times alive in the hearts of young and old. The play really has a mission. No characters could be more typical, truer to life, or more
