

MEDFORD WOMEN VOTE THANKS TO MAIL TRIBUNE FOR COURSE PROVIDED IN HOME ECONOMICS

Closing Session Eclipsed All Others— Today Was Fry-day at the School— Miss Peet Wins Many Friends— Course a Great Success and Will Be Repeated Next Fall.

Women of Medford attending the Home Economics school yesterday unanimously passed a vote of thanks to the Medford Mail Tribune for arranging the instruction-demonstration courses in cooking by Miss Peet. So great has been the success of the venture, that the Mail Tribune has arranged for another course in Home Economics next year. St. Mark's hall has proved too small for the crowds, and it has been necessary to hold three classes daily.

Great Day at School

This was a great day at the Mail Tribune Home Economics School. Many of Miss Peet's delicious recipes, and suggestions in regard to the serving of meals have been put into practice in Medford kitchens in the preparation of the family menus. The results please everybody. The men of Medford are smiling broadly over the delicious foods they have been getting in consequence of Miss Peet's cookery instructions. They claim they are not only going to have better things to eat but reduced grocery bills if what their wives tell them about the Mail Tribune Home Economics School comes true. Miss Peet has given many valuable suggestions in regard to economical management of the household and housewives feel that they are not only going to run their household with less expense but with less friction than before they had the opportunity of hearing Miss Peet.

Knowledge of Food Values
Miss Peet has demonstrated just how a knowledge of food values and a recognition of the real uses of foods will enable a woman to set a better table with less expenditure of money, time and labor.

Miss Peet also said that the time that is spent in this work will be most thoroughly enjoyed by the woman who plans and executes her menus with intelligent thought. She says that when a woman realizes that the health of her family and the mental development of her children is very largely dependent upon the food she places on her table three times a day, she will certainly feel that she ought to put the very best of her intellect in the choice and preparation of their foods.

Today Was Fryday

This is a not a case of misspelling. This was actually fry-day at the Mail Tribune Home Economics School. Miss Peet feels that frying is a method of cooking which deserves special attention and she therefore devoted the whole of her cooking lesson this afternoon to fried foods. She has thoroughly convinced Medford housewives this week of the superiority of deep fat frying over the saute method in the preparation of most foods. She delighted her audience this afternoon by frying fish and said that until she learned how to do it properly she disliked frying fish more than almost any cookery operation she could think of but that now she rather enjoyed it.

Miss Peet has made many new friends in Medford. She has given a new dignity to what is sometimes considered the humdrum task of keeping house. She has inspired all who have heard her to better effort along this line, and Medford housekeepers are no longer going to feel that housekeeping is uninteresting labor but one that requires nothing short of their highest intellectual powers.

WANDERING GIRLS OUT ON PROBATION

Myrtle Crofoot and Ruth Mark, who becoming dissatisfied with school and home life and ran away to join a carnival company, were given a hearing before County Judge Tom Velle yesterday afternoon. The girls told much the same story as when brought back to the city emphasizing the fact that school life was very tiresome. They said the carnival company did not induce them to leave. The Mark's girl will probably be sent to relatives in the north, whom she said she dearly loved and the Crofoot girl will be put on a probation with her aunt.
