NORTHWEST GREEN APPLES DISPLAYED AT BOSTON SHOW

Every district in the northwest will make a novel display of green apples of all commercial varieties at the 29th annual convention and the fifth annual apple show of the International Apple Shippers' association in Boston, Mass., August 5, 6 and 7. H. F. Davidson, president; J. H. Robbins, general manager and Wilmer Sleg, sales manager, Oregon division, of the North Pacific Fruit distributors, will attend the convention, taking charge of the exhibits of the several central and regional agencies.

The northwestern apples will compete in class 4, group 4, which includes Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Montana, New Mexico, Washington, Oregon, California, British Columbia and Western Canada. Two boxes of the leading varieties from each district will be shown in this class. Some also will be entered in a plate contest. An effort, furthermore, will be made to secure the sweepstakes prize against all sections of this country and Canada.

The exhibit is for the benefit of the buyers primarily, to give them an idea of the apple crop of the various districts on August 1. The apples, of course, are not mature at this time, and in some districts they are farther along than in others, which is taken into consideration by the judges.

Each district has been asked to send two boxes to Boston, of the variety or varieties which predominate in it. For instance, Montana will doubtless send McIntosh Reds and Wealthys. Hood River, Yellow Newtowns, Spitzbergers and Ortleys; Yakima, Wenatchee, Walla Walla and Idaho, Winter Bananas, Delicious, Newtowns, Spitzbergers, Rome Beauties, Jonathans, Winesaps and Arkansas Blacks; Spokane, Wageners chiefly.

The districts have also been requested to send samples of their soft fruits, particularly peaches and pears. Expert fruit men can tell from looking at August 1 fruit just what the mature fruit is going to be and that is the object of the displays.

Hood River and Idaho-Oregon carried off prizes last year. The first prize in the northwestern class is a silver medal and blue ribbon; second, bronze medal and red ribbon; and third, bronze medal and white ribbon. The sweepstakes prize is the president's silver cup.
