In addition to a company that may be honestly styled all-star, even down to the chorus, "The Candy Shop," which has been booked to appear here Wednesday, August 19, at the Page theater, the list of principals is headed by a team of travesty artists who are indisputably at the head of their class among American mimics, if not the superiors of every burlesque artist in continental Europe. Rock and Fulton are the principals of this imitable combination, and in addition to the introduction of their famous and renowned specialties that long since made them topnotchers in the houses of the big vaudeville circuits, both here in the west and in the east, they are offering a travesty on Mme. Sarah Bernhardt that is universally conceded to be wonderfully natural and clever. Maude Fulton's imitation of the mannerisms and voice of the famous French tragedienne is positively a masterpiece of mimicry that simply challenges duplication. Quite as masterful is the imitation of Bernhardt's leading man by Will Rock. This team may be termed the backbone of "The Candy Shop" show, but they are surrounded by a supporting company that is indisputably one of the most pretentious collections of co-stars and gorgeously gowned stage beauties ever organized, and behind all this there is a scenic setting that almost beggars of graphic description. While generally regarded and recognized as a big city proposition on account of its size and number of people carried, it is worthy and important of explanation that "The Candy Shop" company was organized in New York City and the production made in that city, and with one or two exceptions the entire personnel of the show is the same as started originally a few months ago on the memorable trip that smashed all previous box office records across the continent.

will be determined largely by what individuals and society and what gathered in public meetings and magazines contain, on what our ministers utter in their pulpits and men profess in their opinions on the streets. "The people of the United States are drawn from many nations and chiefly from the nations now at war. It is natural and inevitable that there should be the utmost variety of sympathy. Some wish one nation, others another, to succeed in the conflict.

Solemn Warning

"I venture, my fellow-countrymen, to speak a solemn word of warning to you that deepest, most subtle, most essential breach of neutrality which may spring out of partisanship, out of passionately taking sides. The United States must be neutral in fact as well as in name during these days that are to try men's souls. We must be impartial in thought as well as in action, must put a curb on our sentiments as well as on every transaction that might be construed as a performance of one party to the struggle before another.

"My thought is of America. I am speaking, I feel sure, the earnest wish and purpose of every thoughtful American that this great country of ours, which is, of course, the first in our thoughts and in our hearts, should show herself in this time of peculiar trial a nation fit beyond others to exhibit the fine price of undisturbed judgment, the dignity of self-control; a nation that neither sits in judgment on others nor is disturbed in her own councils, and which keeps herself fit and free to do what is honest and disinterested and truly serviceable for the peace of the world.

To Remain Neutral

"Shall we not resolve to put on ourselves the restraint which will bring to our people the happiness and the great and lasting influence for peace we covet for them?" Prior to the issuance of the statement, officials close to the president made it clear that Mr. Wilson was fully determined to take no part in the dispute between Japan and Germany over the situation in the far east. While the German-Japan question was not referred to in the statement it became known that the president regarded with disfavor efforts he believed were being made to embroil the United States in the controversy in the far east or in Europe.

The president is understood to be deeply concerned because naturalized Americans who came from countries now at war have taken sides in public discussions in the United States of the European war. On previous occasions he has publicly spoken against what he termed "hyphenated Americans," declaring that citizens of the United States should be Americans only, not Irish-Americans, German-Americans or other classifications of the sort. This feeling is understood to have prompted the issuance of his statement today.

HOW WOMEN AVOID OPERATIONS

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cleveland, Ohio—"My left side pained me so for several years that I expected to have to undergo an operation, but the first bottle I took of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound relieved me of the pains in my side and I continued its use until I became regular and free from pains. I had asked several doctors if there was anything I could take to help me and they said there was nothing that they knew of. I am thankful for such a good medicine and will always give it the highest praise."—Mrs. C. H. GRIFITH, 7905 Madison Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

Hanover, Pa.—"I suffered from female trouble and the pains were so bad at times that I could not sit down. The doctor advised a severe operation but my husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I experienced great relief in a short time. Now I feel like a new person and can do a hard day's work and not mind it. What joy and happiness it is to be well once more. I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Compound."—Mrs. ADA WILZ, 196 Stock St., Hanover, Pa.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.
