

NEWS FROM COUNTRY CORRESPONDENTS

EAGLE POINT EAGLETS

Miss Minnie Given and Mrs. Timmie Dugan were in our town on business last Saturday.

Perry Foster, one of the pioneers of the Rogue river valley, was in town also last Saturday. I asked him to subscribe for the Mail Tribune and he excused himself on the ground that he is so busy in the day time that he can't have time, and that he can't see to read at night, and so he has to do without the news.

Mr. and Mrs. Lehart Smith, who live on the Hollywood orchard, were doing business in our town also the same day.

C. A. Neustrom and family of Lake Creek were guests at the Sunnyside Saturday.

Roy Ashpole, one of our hardware merchants, was called to go to Trail the last of the week to weigh a bunch of cattle for Ashpole & Nichols of Medford.

Jasper Hannah and wife were in town to have an aching tooth treated Saturday.

Miss Lorene Grigsby of Central Point came out last Saturday to go to the moving picture show and attend the dance. While here she was a guest at the Sunnyside, L. E. Smith as when safely home Sunday afternoon.

H. B. Nye and wife, Mr. Wood and wife and children of Gold Hill were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Florey Sunday.

John H. Trusty of Elk creek, Trail postoffice, came out the first of the week after a load of apples.

One of the teams from the Riverside ranch came out Monday and took out a load of water pipe. They have an electric pump on the ranch, and no doubt the pipe is to extend the water system to other parts of the farm.

Two wagons with several Indians passed through here Monday morning from Klamath county on their way to Medford.

J. W. Grover and W. G. Knighton went out last week to take a hunt, returning Monday. They secured one deer.

Born—October 5, to Mr. and Mrs. William Nickel, near Brownboro, a seven-pound boy. Dr. William P. Holt was in attendance at the time.

J. T. Fry of Trail came out Monday and brought out with him Mrs. Broomfield of Medford and Rev. Childes and wife of Ashland, who have been attending the quarterly meeting of the Free Methodist church, and while he was here renewed his subscription to the Weekly Mail Tribune.

J. C. Mathews of Central Point and John Conover of Round Top were here for dinner on Monday. Mrs. Broomfield also took dinner at the Sunnyside.

G. H. Wamsley and his daughter, Miss Mabel, are helping Frank Nichols with his apples.

Miss Mae Trusty, who has been helping in the telephone office, has resigned her position and has resumed her studies in Professor W. E. Buchanan's room, and Miss Clara Zimmerman has taken her place in the phone office.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee C. Port of Jacksonville, who have been out in the forest reserve this summer, he being one of the forest rangers, came in Monday evening on their way home.

Jerry O'Connell of Portland, a traveling salesman for the Napa Tan Shoe company of Napa, Cal., was here Tuesday for dinner.

Monday afternoon your correspondent took a spin out in the country to do a little canvassing for the Mail Tribune, and the first place I stopped was at the beautiful orchard of J. M. Wilfley, and there I met his foreman, Thomas Vestal, and his sister, Mrs. Wilfley Jack, and in a very short time he had a receipt for a year's subscription to the Daily Mail Tribune and one of those Abstract maps that the Mail Tribune is giving to yearly subscribers. From there I went to the farm of Green Matthews. While I did no business with him in the way of subscribing, I saw some as fine corn as I have seen anywhere in the valley, and it was raised on sticky. From there I went to the home of Gordon Cox and found him hauling in his apples, and in a few minutes he had a receipt for $1.50 on his subscription to the Weekly Mail Tribune, and turning my course for home, found W. A. Higinbotham there on his way to Medford for his winter supplies, and in a short time he had brought in for Ben Brophy.

NOTICE. Notice is hereby given that the undersigned will apply to the city council of the city of Medford, Oregon, at its next regular meeting, October 20th, 1914, for a license to sell malt, vinous and spirituous liquors at their place of business, on North Fir street, Medford, Oregon, for a period of six months.

Dated October 7, 1914.

HOLY SEE ASKS FOR UNIVERSAL PEACE

ROME, via Paris, Oct. 8, 2:15 a. m.—An article published by the Osservatore Romano, the Vatican organ, says that the Holy See puts her mission of peace and charity among the peoples of the earth without distinction of race or religion, above every other interest.

The article reminds the clergy and the faithful that above the aspirations even of legitimate patriotic feeling must stand the general interest of the church and humanity and urge the clergy to speak to the people admonishing them to set aside the wish for victory for their own country, which is legitimate in itself for the more humanitarian and Christian one of universal peace.

It ends by recommending that the churches be "asylums of peace, oases of tranquility, where human passions and hatred must not enter."

BUSINESS IN DRY TOWNS IS MUCH BETTER

Oregon Committee Gives Report on Cities

MERCHANTS TO VOTE DRY

BY ORTON E. GOODWIN, Publicity Department, Committee of One Hundred.

The Committee of One Hundred, composed entirely of prominent Oregon men and women, has made a careful investigation of every dry town in Oregon.

The result has shown that business is far better in every dry town as a whole; that collections and morals are unquestionably better; that civic improvement has been much increased; that building generally is much greater and that sentiment is now overwhelmingly in favor of a dry town.

There is no town in Oregon now dry that will vote wet. This can be stated without fear of contradiction.

Prosecuting officers testify that arrests are far less, ranging in one case from 50 to one, to four to one.

Officials assert the vast majority of criminal cases are due to liquor.

When crime diminishes taxes will diminish.

Oregon Dry—Lower Taxes. Hence, Oregon dry means not only better business and more work, but lower taxes.

In Roseburg practically every merchant came out openly in favor of a dry town. In Salem and Oregon City a large majority expressed themselves.

In Ashland it was found impossible to find a merchant who favored a wet regime.

Pendleton, though wet now, was asserted by many business men to have shown far better conditions dry than when wet, and they asserted the town would, in all probability, vote dry, but that Umatilla County most certainly would vote dry.

Dry Towns' Collections Better. Dry sentiment was unusually strong in Medford because Medford merchants have noticed the enormous amount of business done and the fact that collections are better in dry towns.

Albany was overwhelmingly dry—mainly for business reasons.

In the whole Willamette Valley there was hardly noticeable any wet sentiment of great weight. Merchants and residents declared the hop argument had failed because it was realized that 98 per cent of Oregon hops were sold outside Oregon, and Oregon wet or Oregon dry could not affect the Oregon hop crop at all.

Hop Pickers Want Dry State. For the same reason, hop pickers realized their jobs were in no danger, and by far a majority of hop pickers favored Oregon dry because they knew a dry state would bring better conditions in the hop fields by banishing liquor and drunkenness from them.

At least half a dozen prominent hop growers came out openly in favor of Oregon dry.

Because of better business, lower taxes and better collections it now seems certain the merchants of Oregon will vote the state dry.
