DEFENDANT TAKES STAND IN DEFENSE AT MURDER TRIAL

Jim George, defendant in the Peter Brown murder trial before the federal court, took the stand in his own behalf this morning, and bore out the trend of the defense's theory that he was with friends at the time the shots were fired that killed Brown. An interpreter sat beside the bespectacled prisoner, but often George in his anxiety would answer the queries in English before the interpreter could ask in his native tongue.

George stood the strain of cross examination well and responded to all questions freely. He testified that he left Brown before reaching the Plute cemetery where the body was found, and that the first he knew of the crime was when he was awakened about noon the next day at the Miller George home, and with the rest of the family drove to the cemetery to see the body of a former friend. He made a strong witness in his own behalf.

To refute the allegations of the government that tracks identical with those of a horse belonging to George were found near the body, the defense put O. G. Anderson, a Klamath cattle man, on the stand who testified that a day or two before the murder, he and the defendant had rode through the cemetery, and that George rode a sorrel horse. The government on cross examination, proved that George owned two sorrel horses annulling much of the value of the testimony.

All the evidence in the case will be completed this afternoon, according to expectations, and the arguments in the case begin Monday morning, the case being presented to the jury last Monday afternoon or Tuesday morning.

The most recent advices from Petrograd claimed Russian success in Russian Poland. All sources agree that there is a lull in the struggle on the Russian eastern frontier, following battles in which neither army won a victory.

A correspondent at Flushing, Netherlands, reports that the greater portion of the German army after the taking of Ostend left for the east.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to bring back color, gloss, thickness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 90 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyerth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of fuss. While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyerth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes luxuriantly dark, glossy, soft and beautiful.
