result of the deadlock with the operators, who refuse to join the president's proposal for settlement of the strike, already accepted by the miners. Taxpayers of Jackson County.

Fellow Citizens: The members of the Taxpayers and Wage Earners League who make this appeal to you are citizens and taxpayers like yourself, and none of them are interested in the manufacture, handling or sale of liquor.

From the standpoint of neutrals, viewing the conflict between the prohibitionists and those interested in the liquor traffic, suppose we consider that the arguments are evenly balanced. Then the benefit of the doubt should properly be given to the interests of the non-combatants, who comprise the great majority of the community.

Lamentations over the increasing burdens of taxation become more and more insistent. Under the present tariff laws, and with imports ended by foreign war, our national government is thrown upon its internal revenues for all necessary expenses.

Income and inheritance taxes have been added to state, county, city and improvement district taxes. Even under normal conditions these forms of taxation will probably increase, although already at a point of threatening the well-being of rich and poor alike. And now an extraordinary tax to meet great national needs is at hand.

The government, whether of nation, state, county or city, cannot escape its debts. If its income be reduced on one hand, it must be increased on the other. The success of prohibition would cut off one of the chief sources of internal revenue. The immediate local effect of prohibition would be to deprive the state of Oregon, and the various cities of $360,000 the present annual income from licenses and taxes, besides killing an annual expenditure of almost $2,200,000 for wages, an annual outlay of $2,200,000 for materials, and an annual outlay of nearly $1,800,000 for rents. It would render useless property and equipment valued at $4,500,000.

No other sources of public or private revenue are suggested by the prohibitionists to meet the tremendous deficiencies they would create. On the contrary, the cost of attempting to enforce such a law as they advocate would impose another great burden on the public treasury and on the taxpayers.

it "were merely an inanimate object of commerce disconnected from the fortunes and the happiness of a living human being, to be dealt with as an object of sale and barter."

Of the currency bill, Mr. Wilson said: "We have created a democracy of credit such as has never existed in this country before." He declared that "credit is now at the disposal of every man who can show energy and assets," and because "control of the system rests with the government, said: "It is self-government as well as democracy."

It was impossible to complete rural credit legislation, the letter added, but the federal reserve act itself "facilitates and enlarges a rural credit to an extraordinary degree."

Constructive Program

Speaking of the program for the next session of congress, the president mentioned legislation for building up the American merchant marine and "the completion of a great program for the conservation of our natural resources and the development of the water power of the country."

"Without a congress in close sympathy with the administration," wrote the president, "a whole scheme of peace and honor and disinterested service to the world cannot be brought to its full realization."

by this same influence and the Booth-Kelly people not only got their lands for almost nothing, but were able to get out their timber at a reduced rate. The Wendling branch, together with their mill and timber holdings, enable Booth to control the situation and crowd out the small timber owner.

The governor stated the railroads traded their worthless lands in forest reserves for the rights timberland state lands of Oregon and Washington.

"They passed a law whereby the railroads could, through scrip, trade certain worthless lands in Washington for the unsurveyed lands of Oregon. The small owner couldn't do that, but the railroad could. And you can go into the Cascade mountains today and find thousands of acres of Northern Pacific railroad lands unsurveyed and not an acre of which is being taxed."

Low Tax Declared Ridiculous

Referring to the ridiculously low tax rate enforced by the railroads in the past upon their timber holdings in this state, the governor said that the O. & C. railroad land grant had been taxed but 40 cents an acre in forty years, or 1 cent per acre per year.

Speaking of the bill in the state legislature when Senator Chamberlain was governor and when Robert A. Booth was state senator, in which it was sought to force the timber

DRUGS EXCITE YOUR KIDNEYS, USE SALTS

If your Back is aching or Bladder bothers, drink lots of water and eat low meat.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean by flushing them with a mild, harmless salt which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 600 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

owners of this state to stand a just share of taxation on their holdings and thus relieve the small settler, the governor stated that Mr. Chamberlain promoted the bill because he believed a public office was a public trust. "Mr. Booth," he continued, "over in the senate killed a bill because he believed a public office was a private snap," and because he had large timber holdings.

He told how a measure had been gotten through congress providing for the exchange of 110,000 acres of undesirable scattered lands for 87,000 acres of the finest lands in the Klamath reservation. This bill, he said, also provided for permission to go on to the Klamath Indian reservation and construct railroads, build mills, own sites, control water power and everything else that goes to make wealth by political manipulation.

"Give these corporations your natural wealth and your lands, and timber and all the public domain, let them grab the power sites and build them up, and then perhaps they will give you a job in the mill."

Had Land Lottery

The governor went on to tell how the Booth-Kelly company got 800,000 acres of the Oregon Central military wagon road company between Eugene and Lakeview. How the best of the lands were taken over by the Booth-Kelly company and about 500,000 acres of worthless lands were turned over to a gang of promoters to sell. A lottery scheme was perfected by which it was to be sold to working girls and factory hands in the east. "The land was so bare and infertile that you couldn't raise a disturbance on it," he said, "and yet by misrepresentation and misleading advertisements 500,000 acres were sold. This was a fine scheme for a good Christian to be mixed up in."

The governor stated that G. E. Chamberlain had made a million dollars also, in the same time that Mr. Booth had made it, out of timber, but that he had made it for the school children of Oregon and it was now in the school fund—because Chamberlain believed public office a public trust. The governor paid his respects to the Oregonian in very vigorous language and denounced it as responsible for all the bad government and vicious legislation in Oregon. His remarks were roundly applauded and indicated throughout that the governor held the sympathy of the audience. He dwelt upon Dr. Withycombe's failure with the demonstration farms and experiment stations, and asserted that a man who could not make a success of his own business could not make a success of the public's.
