LOCAL CANNERY PUT UP AND SOLD 35,000 CANS FRUIT

The R. D. Hoke cannery, established on a co-operative plan last spring canned 35,000 cans of Rogue river valley fruit and produce in a short season with a small crop, according to reports filed at a directors' meeting last night. The cannery will pay its six per cent dividend. The first year the Puyallup cannery—the model cannery of the west—operated, the output was dumped into Puget Sound.

The directors were highly pleased with the showing and broader plans will be adopted for next year.

To date the cannery has sold $2094.48 worth of the output and now has about $500 worth of stock on hand. For produce $764.97 was paid, and for labor $921.26. One grower C. S. Eichen realized $219.85 for his tomatoes grown on two and a fractional acres. All the pears canned have been sold, and there is now a brisk demand for them, which cannot be supplied owing to a small output. Next year the output and business will be increased twelve fold according to Manager Hoke.

The success of the cannery this year, means that in 1915 the acreage in tomatoes, beans and legumeberies will be quadrupled. A campaign will be launched to impress upon growers the advantage of planting legumeberies for canning, eastern and middle west dealers being unable to supply the demand from their customers for this fruit, canned or fresh.

The committee meets again Friday night and plans to hold frequent meetings till their work is completed.

The Condition of the Country and the Practice of Economy

Times are good. True, they might be better, but nevertheless the entire country as a whole is prosperous. And the height of prosperity in the past will be overshadowed by the overwhelming prosperity soon to come.

But everyone should study and practice economy, whether times are good or not. We do. In purchasing our merchandise we take advantage of every possible discount, and in transferring it from our shelves to you, we eliminate all unnecessary expense. Thus we save money and can quote lowest prices on our goods. You save money by purchasing them.

Everything is exactly as represented here—we offer no premium inducements which are liable to influence you to overbuy and purchase goods you do not need. Such offers defeat economy. What you buy here is worth—what you pay for it—sometimes more, but never less. Pretty good place to do your shopping, isn't it?
