

POWER COMPANY ADVERTISESSCENERY AT WORLD'S FAIR

Medford, Ore., Dec. 2, 1914.
To the Editor:

Below please find copy of a write-up that will appear in the next edition of the Panama Pacific Exposition Fact Book.

Inasmuch, as the space was limited to one and one-half inches, this could not be elaborated upon as we should like to have had it, and the insertion of same in this publication was brought about through the efforts of Mr. Geo. E. Boos, secretary of the Tri-State Good Roads association, supported by the officers of this company, it having come to our notice that this locality was not being given the proper representation in this publication, and I would be glad to have you make mention of same in some of your current issues.

Let us not overlook an opportunity to bring before the visitors of this exposition, all of the wonders of southern Oregon.

With kindest regards, I am,
Yours very truly,
CALIFORNIA-OREGON POWER CO.
By H. L. WALTHER,
General Superintendent.

Southern Oregon
Those traveling the northern route either coming or returning via Portland, Oregon, or Seattle, Washington, will come over the Siskiyou mountains, the boundary of the states of California and Oregon, over which the Pacific highway is constructed. The trip can be made by automobile over this highway with comfort and ease. This highway has an easy grade of not exceeding six per cent, and affords scenery not surpassed in any country.

Southern Oregon has wonderful attractions which are flitted by thousands of tourists; among them, the Crater Lake in the Crater Lake National Park, which has an elevation of over six thousand feet. The lake has a depth of 2000 feet. Good hotel accommodations are in the park. Fishing and rowing on this lake is great sport.

The trip is made from the city of Medford, Oregon, one of the most progressive cities on the coast, with a population of 12,000 souls, located in the famous Rogue river valley. Ashland, the first city on the north of the Siskiyou, noted for its health giving mineral springs, is among the attractions. The Oregon Caves now under the National Park system, are reached from the Southern Oregon points via Grants Pass. These caves are visited by many seekers of nature's wonders. Special rates to all these points are offered. For particulars address the Commercial clubs of either city.

STATE TEACHERS TO MEET AT EUGENE

Superintendent of Schools J. Percy Wells has sent out the following to the teachers of Oregon:

"The fourteenth annual session of the western division of the Oregon State Teachers' association will meet jointly with the annual teachers' institute for Lane county at Eugene, Monday, December 21, 1914, at 9 o'clock a. m., and will remain in session for three days. The forenoon of Monday and Tuesday and the afternoon of Wednesday will be given to general assembly work, and the afternoons of Monday and Tuesday and the forenoon of Wednesday to departmental work. Sessions will be held in the University buildings.

"For general assembly work we have secured as the principal speakers, President U. B. Bryan of Colgate university, Hamilton, N. Y., and Dr. C. E. Hugh, professor of education, University of California. With the support of these two leaders of educational thought from outside of the state, and with the splendid practical programs prepared by the heads of the several departments, we feel safe in promising the teachers of Western Oregon a very valuable session.

"It is earnestly hoped that arrangements will be made in all schools of western Oregon for holiday vacation to commence December 21, in order to give teachers an opportunity to attend this meeting.

"The usual reduced rates on the certificate plan will be granted by transportation companies to be in effect for going trip December 17, and return not later than December 25.

SWEDISH FOLK GAMES DECLARED WORTH SEEING

It is immaterial whether the presentation of the Swedish Folk-games at the Page Theater on Friday afternoon is due to the influence of the Swedish people in the valley, the good judgment of the principal of Roosevelt school, or the great intrinsic merits of the plays. Because the reproduction of all such spectacles are bound to bring to daylight some fashioning points of ancient culture.

This is true in regard to all countries, but especially true in regard to the folk-games and song-games of Sweden. In beauty they rival the Grecian games and surpass them in vigor, and practically outnumber all the other European amusements of that kind in their great variations.

The Roundheads of England, the Puritans in America, the Pietists in Germany, the revolutions in France, and the political anarchy in Italy swept away many innocent forms of amusements. Not any of these calamities to art, usually the result of fanaticism of one form or another, reached Sweden until the first part of the nineteenth century. By that time practical rationalism had saved and codified a large portion of the peasants' plays, gathered from every nook and corner of the kingdom.

Critics have since pronounced these games master pieces of children's dramatic ingenuity and often adopted from the occupations of the older people. Consequently, the plays are not mere amusements to be laughed at, as they usually represent a most serious condition of a by-gone civilization.

Dr. Otto Salomon, president of the world famous industrial training school at Naas, Sweden, claims that the children are the real conservators of a nation; that when the grown-up people in Sweden imported foreign dances, the young folks stuck to their beloved folk-games, which in morals and artistic beauty luteless the modern hopings.

It is not to be expected that the children in Medford, thousands of miles away and centuries removed from the real scene, can properly reproduce the spirit of ancient Swedish customs, the Swedish-American

TUMALO IRRIGATION PROJECT COMPLETED

SALEM, Ore., Dec. 3.—Olaf Laurgaard, project engineer for the Tumalo irrigation project, officially advised the state desert land board yesterday afternoon that the project has been completed, and that the present applications for the purchase of lands in it indicated that the lands would be all sold by spring.

"There are 22,500 acres of irrigable lands in the project," said Engineer Laurgaard in announcing that the work had been completed, "and 6000 acres have been contracted for. The balance has been thrown open for entry by the board, and I have received between 500 and 600 inquiries from prospective settlers. Most of them indicate that they intend to visit the project with the view of acquiring the lands in the spring, and I expect a rush for the lands then. The lands are being sold in 40-acre tracts at $40 an acre. One-tenth of this must be paid down, and the balance can be paid in 10 installments. Interest at the rate of 6 per cent will be exacted on these installments.

BOURNE'S COMMITTEE WORK NOW ENDED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The time limitation on the congressional commissions of which former Senator Jonathan Bourne is chairman expired yesterday, and unless the period is extended by congressional action, Senator Bourne's work for the government in regard to postal and good roads matters is at an end. When congress convenes next Monday Chairman Bourne will submit a report on the railway mail pay and on good roads, which probably will be made the basis for legislation. Mr. Bourne has served without compensation and has paid his own expenses during the time occupied by the work of the commission on which he has been chairman.
