was not altogether the plan I had in mind.

Farmers and Business Men's Ditch. I would make it a farmers and business men's ditch, asking every farmer and every business man to subscribe for as many shares of stock as he could, agreeing to pay for them in work, feed, provisions, material, or cash.

These are the very things we need, and excepting cash, the very things which would be the same as cash are labor, teams, hay, meat, potatoes, canned goods, fruit, flour, cement and lumber. What will you do? It is not a matter of what you can do, the point is, will you do what you can? If you will, then the ditch could be built this way.

Use of Stock. The farmer would hold an option to buy at the end of ten years the water right that he was leasing. So, if he earned stock by working himself, or furnishing teams or provisions, he need not hold this stock. He could trade it off. This is just what he should be encouraged to do. Build fences and barns; get better equipment, and more live stock, and so much of this by trading these shares (irrigation warrants) off.

Home Capital. And here is the principal point. Outside capital is not the best kind of capital. I would rather pay interest to my neighbor than to send that interest to some capitalist in New York City. Just the same as I would rather patronize a home merchant than a mail order house. Borrowing money from the outside is a pernicious habit and bad business if it can be handled at home. We are at the point where I doubt if it would be wise to borrow outside capital if we could. The thing we are starting to do now is something constructive.

In showing the source of wealth we have to draw on for the promotion of his enterprise I have only gone into details as to one item, namely, labor. I have not the figures as to the number of teams or the amount of products. I know it will only take a small per cent of the total. The same could be used when otherwise they would be idle. Production would be increased when it was known that there was this extra demand. A few more potatoes, a few more hogs, that is all.

This would not leave us worse stranded but in a more healthy condition than we were when we started. Then we would have water which would double the amount of production on the 20,000 acres subscribed. J. C. BARNES.

PROHIBITION LAW IS FARCE

To the Editor:

"Prohibition Law a Farce," declares Dr. J. Lawrence Hill, from the Mail Tribune of the 4th. I have read Dr. Hill's communication and fail to find anything in it to justify your assertion. He says the bill as it now reads is a farce, and which we all know to be true, and was gotten up for the purpose of defeating prohibition, and any man that had anything to do with getting it up is an anarchist and opposed to majority rule, and any lawmaker who votes for such a measure should be recalled, and I am of the opinion that if any of Jackson county's representatives votes for it he will be retired to private life, for Jackson county gave a majority for prohibition.

SALEM, Ore., Feb. 5.—Prominent business men of the state appeared before the ways and means committee of the two houses Wednesday night and urged that they recommend an appropriation of $450,000 in order that the state might avail itself of a similar sum allotted to it by the secretary of the interior, and state reclamation work continue to go forward.

ROBERT EDESON IN "CALL OF THE NORTH" AT STAR THEATRE FEBRUARY 5 AND 6

Statistics on War's Losses

Early in the war Lord Kitchener had said that the struggle might last three years. What seemed a more rough estimate becomes far more significant when examined by the few statistics yet available, which show the wastage of war.

Thus it seems fair to estimate that Germany has now in the field 3,000,000 men, France 2,000,000, Austria 1,000,000, Russia 3,000,000. England at no distant date will have 1,000,000 on the Continent. Serbia and Belgium may be reckoned to have 250,000.

Now as far as Russia is concerned her supply of men is for any ordinary calculation inexhaustible. That she can keep her European force at 3,000,000 for three years, despite battle losses is hardly debatable. As to England, her ability to maintain an army of 1,000,000 on the Continent indefinitely and despite losses is equally to be accepted. It is different with France. Her available military population may be reckoned at 4,000,000. Of this she has already lost 1,000,000 by death, capture, disease or wounds. Half of this number may be reckoned as permanently lost. At this rate, France will be reduced at the opening of the third year of war to 2,000,000. With her allies she will then have 6,000,000 men. But her losses in this year cannot be made good, save by the new class coming to the colors in 1917 and levies from her colonies.

Now Germany may be reckoned to have had 6,000,000 men available for service in July, 1914; 600,000 more will be supplied by the combined classes of 1916 and 1917. German losses in the first six months may be estimated at 1,800,000. At this rate, 1,800,000 will be removed permanently from the German lines in each of the first two years of war. Thus, at the opening of the third, Germany will still have 3,900,000 men to draw on. But her losses thereafter will be definite, because she will have exhausted her reserve. As to Austria she has lost more than 1,000,000 already in her many disasters. She may still have 1,500,000 in the field, but a year hence, two years hence, she can hope for no more and her resources, too, will be completely exhausted.

Thus, as the third year of the war opens not more than 4,000,000 Austro-Germans, the last line, will confront 6,000,000 Russians, British and French, helped by some hundreds of thousands of Slavs and Belgians, behind whom will stand Russian and British reserves of at least 4,000,000. This means, with every discount for the roughness of the estimate, that sometime in the third year, while Russia and Britain are still able to keep their armies at their present point, Austro-German forces will begin to decline rapidly and a tremendous advantage of numbers will belong to the enemies of Germany. Such is the statement of what may be called the mathematics of murder.—From "Half a Year of World War," by Frank H. Simonds, in the American Review of Reviews for February.

DRAKE TO CONDUCT FROST SURVEY

Word was received by the Commercial club this morning that the P. S. weather bureau had ordered Theodore F. Drake, temporary weather observer for this section last spring, to make the recently ordered frost survey of the Rogue river valley. Mr. Drake will begin the survey March 1st, and collect data for the following three months.

The chief features of the survey will be the collecting data relative to frosts, meteorological changes, causes and effects of weather changes and the collection of maximum and minimum temperature records. Afterwards all the data collected will be put in chart form.

To collect the maximum and minimum temperatures deputies will be placed in 25 or 30 different parts of the valley, and their findings compiled daily. The survey will last for three years.
