The last time I wrote for the readers of the Mail Tribune I promised to tell them something in my next about our trip up Butte ereck to the rock crusher, Corbin's bridge, etc. Well, Thursday afternoon, April 22. Frank Brown invited J. V. McIntyre the eashier of the Eagle Point State bank, Benjamin Fredenburg of Butte Falls, and your correspondent to take a ride up to where they were rocking the county road, between here and Brownshoro, and so we all climbed into his auto and in a short time we were at the rock-crusher, where Chris Natwick was working a force of men and teams putting the rock on the road, and he had John W. Smith leveling it down, getting it ready for the big steam roller. There is a vast difthe ernsher fixed now and the way furnishes water for the engines. they had it when they erushed the rock for the streets in our little town. for they now have it set on a solid constable to go over to Wellen last steam engine, and Mr. Natwick is bidder and that was Carl von der the exposition, a trip which will be getting out a fine lot of rock for the Hellen. rond.

Last Friday afternoon Edward Vinson and Emmett Necton came over to fix up the stage in the theater for the play, "What Happened to Jones," and they were so busy that they could not stop long enough to eat, as Emmett had to return to Table Rock and back again before the play, but Mr. V. with a little assistance from your correspondent, had everything in readiness by supper time, and after we had served the first tables here come in twelve of the performers and their friends for supper, se that made them a little late in getting ready for the play, but by 8 o'clock the crowd began to fill the house, and soon almost every available seat was occupied, and by 8:30 the performers commenced, and they held the audience spelibound for about two and a half hours. Well, as a matter of course, I was auxious to know how the performance was appreciated, and first one would say it was simply fine, the best I ever saw, and another would say, as good as the best, and then they would particularize and one would say, well, didn't Ebeneezer carry his part fine, and another would comment on Mrs. Ebenezer and another of Jones, etc., but they all seemed to credit the old maid as carrying her part the best of all, but there was no severe criticisms, but all seemed to be well pleased. The receipts were $40.75, and after paying the rent of the opera house, $5.50. and a small incidental expense for nails, etc., the money goes to purchase a piano for the Table Rock school. They are talking of giving the play at Willow Springs in the near future.

Among the callers the night of the play for supper who were not counted among the players were James Reese, Miss Katherine Nealon, Darwin Phillips and James Pendland.
