A PROGRESSIVE SCIENCE

THE SALEM CAPITAL JOURNAL remarks on the subject of fishing as follows:

The invention of a fish-pole holder has deeply stirred the editor of one of our esteemed co-temporaries, who says the first thing one knows some- body will invent a device enabling the fisherman to see the size of the fish nibbling at the bait and then the fun of fishing will be gone forever. This bit of philosophy is given in support of his condemnation of the fish-pole holder. "If it is fish that a man wants he ought to go to the market and buy them; if it is fishing, he ought to hold the pole in his hand." He is right.

If it is the sport of fishing that is wanted, that is angling, the pole will be discarded for the rod and natural bait be thrown away for artificial.

The difference between the fisherman and the angler is that the former is blindly seeking meat and the latter recreation.

The love of outdoors, the call of the wild, the lure of field, forest and stream, the whisper of grasses, the murmur of trees, the music of the waters, the song of birds, the drowsy hum of insects, the gold of the summer sky, the velvet of the shadows, the ever-changing panorama of a wonderful world and the thousand miracles of life that nature spreads on every side, appeal to the angler as much as the challenge of his skill with that of the fish he strives to lure from its natural element.

Angling is a progressive science. The small boy begins with his willow stick, bent pin and worm. He learns the habits of fish and their habitat. As his knowledge increases he acquires skill. The sportsman's sense of fair play develops, he learns to give the fish a chance. He becomes ashamed of mere slaughter. He throws aside crude and heavy tackle for lighter. He discards natural bait for artificial, because it requires more skill to handle. As his skill increases he seeks more difficult angling to test it. He abandons the clumsy forms of artificial bait for the most delicate, and secures as much pleasure from his skill in handling it as he does from the struggle of the fish his skill has hooked. The full reel of the fish hog has forever lost its attraction.

Of all the forms of angling, the use of the artificial fly requires most knowledge and most skill, and therefore yields the greatest pleasure. It begins with the use of ordinary wet or sinking fly, that submerges itself and ends with the use of the dry fly, imitating the flies of nature, that merely light gracefully on the water and float gently with the current, requiring an accuracy and delicacy that only comes with the skill acquired by long practice.

Between the boy and the bent pin and the dry-fly angler, the two extremes, range all degrees of anglers. Sometimes the boy develops backwards, uses heavy tackle and salmon eggs for bait, and boasts of exceeding the legal limit in slaughter. Sometimes he goes forward as far as to use a two-handed cane pole and a spoon for trout and stops there. But if he seeks the most enjoyment he will progressively develop into the skillful fly fisherman, to whom the size of the catch is immaterial—but the way it was secured most material.

LONG NOSE MAY KNOCK AN ACTRESS' FAME OUT OF JOINT; SNUBS BEST FOR CAMERA

(By Esther Hoffman.)

The girl who wishes to become a moving picture actress need not necessarily be a startling beauty, but she must have a face and features that will photograph well. In other words, she must have movie face.

A broad face, big eyes, loads of hair and a small nose—in the case of women—are good. A small nose is best, and for this reason some of the greatest stage beauties are not good camera subjects; so you see, no big noses need apply for a movie job. Also, the face must be peculiarly expressive, in order to tell the audience what the actor thinks.

Two of the best camera propositions in the United States are Blanch Sweet and Myrtle Stedman, shown in the above photographs. Miss Stedman has the right kind of a movie face and power of expression that looks well with any kind of make-up. Blanch Sweet is a fascinating little girl and one of the most beautiful in the movies.

Grape Juice at Home

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Anybody who is able to can vegetables can make grape juice, says a new publication of the United States department of agriculture, Farmers' Bulletin 644. The principle is the same in both cases—the sterilization of the product before it is stored away. In case of grape juice this sterilization prevents the fermentation which in making wine turns the grape sugar into alcohol.

Fermentation is caused by various fungi, yeasts and bacteria which adhere to the skins and stems of the grapes. If these are killed, no fermentation is possible. They can be killed in two ways, but one, the addition of antiseptics, is not possible in the case of any article intended for human consumption, because the antiseptics themselves are injurious. The other method, killing them by heat, is the one used in the pasteurization of milk and is equally simple and practicable with grape juice.

Practical tests indicate that grape juice is satisfactorily pasteurized without appreciable change of flavor when it is heated to a temperature varying from 165 to 176 degrees F. If the temperature is allowed to reach 200 degrees F., the flavor of the juice is changed for the worse.

Good Drink for Home Use

For home use there are a large number of varieties of grapes which will make a pleasant and healthful drink. No matter what the kind of grape, however, only clean, sound fruit should be used and it should be well ripened, but not overripe. The grapes should first be crushed and pressed in an ordinary cider mill if the farm possesses one, or by hand if no mill is available.

The subsequent procedure depends upon whether a white or a red juice is desired. For a light colored juice the crushed grapes are put in a cloth sack and twisted until the greater part of the juice is extracted, one person holding each end of the sack. The juice is then put in some convenient form of double boiler in which it does not come into direct contact with the fire, but is surrounded by hot water, and gradually heated to a temperature close to 200 degrees F. As has already been said, however, it should not be allowed to go over this point.

If no thermometer is available, it is best to heat the juice until it steams and then to take it from the fire before it is allowed to boil. It should then be poured into a glass or enameled vessel and allowed to settle for twenty-four hours, after which it can be drained from the sediment and run through some form of cloth filter. The strained juice is then put into clean bottles and sterilized once more in a water bath. An ordinary wash boiler with a thin board on the bottom for the filled bottles to rest on is a convenient home device for this purpose. After sterilization the bottles should be corked immediately with new corks, the corks having been previously soaked for about thirty minutes in hot water.

Any Kind of Grape

For red juice, the crushed grapes are first heated to the same temperature as before and then strained through a clean cloth or drip bag without pressure. Thereafter the process is the same as for light-colored juice.

Grape juice should be stored away in bottles or jars that are not too large, for after these have been opened the juice is likely to spoil. If properly made, however, the juice should keep indefinitely as long as it is kept in sealed bottles. In this respect it is, of course, like other canned goods, which should always be used as soon as possible after they have been opened.

Of the various varieties of grapes common in this country, the Delaware gives a juice of delicate aroma and excellent flavor. The Concord is darker with a sprightly taste and well-known aroma. The Catawba, Isabella and Salem grapes also yield an excellent product. The California varieties produce a very sweet juice, but in many cases there is little characteristic flavor. For home use, however, the kind of grape that is most abundant in the vicinity will, of course, be used.

RUSSIA DECLARES TEUTONS' DRIVE IN GALICIA FRUITLESS

LONDON, May 13.—A Renter dispatch from Petrograd gives the following statement regarding Russian military operations:

"In the fighting between the Vistula and the Carpathians May 8 and 9, the Germans planned to break our front by the lightning rapidity of the blow directed at the neighborhood of Krosno by seven divisions of the flower of the German army, after a heavy artillery preparation.

"On a general front of forty miles the enemy gathered three-quarters of the Austrian army, one-ninth of the German army, the first reserve, half the contingents of the second, beside eight divisions from the Serbian front, several new Austrian divisions and twenty infantry divisions, as well as eight new divisions and nine cavalry divisions from the western front. Only one of our armies participated in the first attack.

"The Germans gained no tactical success. Our reserves, by a flank blow, enabled our army to rearrange a line of advantageous positions eliminating all fear of final retreat. Our army has received strong reinforcements and is ready to exact heavy revenge. Our falling back was carried out methodically. The enemy's loss was heavy.

"When our troops occupied the mountainous sectors which the enemy held today, the enemy's official communications declared these positions were of no importance."

FISH POACHER IS FOUND GUILTY AT GRANTS PASS

Convictions for fish poaching at Grants Pass are increasing every day thanks to the energies of District Warden Sam L. Sandry, Deputy Warden Walker and their associates.

In the case of Glen Woolridge and Harry Briggs charged with taking salmon from within 200 feet of the fishway at Ament dam both defendants were found guilty and were sentenced Wednesday morning.

Complaint was filed Tuesday by Sandry against the Rogue River Public Service corporation for obstructing the fishway on the north side of the river. Thousands of salmon are being held back because of this obstruction. This case will come up for trial in a few days.

Sandry and Walker Tuesday arrested Glen Sturtevant, an employe at the Ament dam for catching salmon under the dam.

GERMAN EMBASSY DENIES REPORTS OF REPLY TO DEMANDS

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The German embassy issued this statement:

"The German embassy stated today that no statement or intimation had been given by the embassy or any official of the embassy concerning what response would be made to the American note regarding the Lusitania.

"This was brought out by statements appearing in the press this morning to the effect that officials of the German embassy have outlined the position of the German government toward the American note regarding the sinking of the Lusitania and have declared that the reply would be a polite but firm refusal to cease submarine warfare against belligerent merchant ships.

"It was pointed out that the embassy itself so far was ignorant of the terms of the American note; that it had received no instructions whatever from the German government regarding the note and finally it was declared that no official connected with the embassy had expressed any opinion on the subject at all."

AUSTRIANS STATE TERRIFIC BATTLE NOW IN PROGRESS

TARNOW, Galicia, May 11, (by courier to Cracow and via London, May 13, 2 p. m.)—The struggle in the region north of the Vistula river and one the borders of Galicia, which well informed persons here expect and hope will bring a final decision in the battle against the Russian armies, appears to be approaching a conclusive phase.

Terrific engagements were fought today at positions 22 miles to the east of Tarnow, in the vicinity of Debica and Mielec, where the Austrian army under Archduke Francis Joseph came into fierce conflict with Russian forces which were retreating eastward from the Dunajec river and Tarnow.

Airmen who flew over the battlefield today reported that entire front was marked by burning villages, most of which had been bombarded. They say it looks exactly like a gigantic prairie fire.

To the north of the Vistula river the Austrian corps commanded by Count Kirchbach has forced the Nida line, according to information reaching here.

Today and yesterday the wind brought with it as far as Tarnow the incessant roar of gun fire, indicating that Count Kirchbach's forces are trying to advance hand in hand with the troops of Archduke Joseph Ferdinand and General von Mackensen.

Along the Carpathian front also the Austrian armies have made a forward move, bringing the third Russian army and the remainder of the eighth Russian army in imminent danger of being surrounded and destroyed.

The first rain since Tarnow was re-taken by the Teutonic allies arrived here today.

DETROIT TROLLEYS TIED UP BY STRIKE

DETROIT, Mich., May 13.—Not a city street car was being operated in Detroit at 7 a. m. today as the result of a strike called by Detroit United Railways Conductors and Motormen because of the company's refusal to reinstate a motorman who had been discharged for alleged careless handling of his car. The strike vote was taken during the early morning hours and was practically unanimous. Although the walkout had been threatened for 24 hours, thousands of factory employees and downtown workmen who had depended on the street cars were from one to three hours late in reporting at their work. No disorder was in evidence when the men took their cars to the barns on the final run. Extra squads of police were called out, however, and steps taken to quell any disturbance which might arise.

SIX MORE BODIES FROM LUSITANIA FOUND

QUEENSTOWN, May 13.—A nasty rain and a choppy sea interfered with the search today for bodies of the Lusitania's dead, but six more were found in the vicinity of Skull and several others under a life raft. These bodies were all placed on one tug to be brought into Queenstown. All southern Ireland is greatly excited over the voyage of the Anchor line steamer Transylvania, now nearing the war zone.

NO CHANGE IN MEXICAN POLICY

WASHINGTON, May 13.—No change in the attitude of the United States on the Mexican situation has resulted from the report of Duval West, who visited factional leaders as President Wilson's personal representative.

Secretary Bryan said today that the Mexican policy of the administration was unaltered and that Mr. West's report would not be made public.

Despatches today to the Carranza agency from Vera Cruz say the Zapata forces are being withdrawn from Mexico City and that the capital is being left with practically no garrison. Carranza troops, the despatches claim, are in the outskirts of Monterey.

BARRIE'S "ROSALIND" PRESENTED TUESDAY

The amateur play department of the Drama League has developed into a great factor in familiarizing the public with plays by modern authors. By careful selection plays embodying the salient characteristics of the author can be shown.

The first play to be presented by the local center is Barrie's "Rosalind." In this short "playlet" is shown all the insight into the feminine nature and the humorous whimsicality that has endeared this well known author and playwright to the public, through the medium of such well known stars as Maude Adams and Ethel Barrymore.

Mrs. A. C. Piore has the leading role as Rosalind and those who know her versatility are looking forward to her interpretation of the dual, or rather, prismatic personality of the subtly elusive "Rosalind."

Mrs. Sooy-Smith and Mr. Fletcher Fish are suitably cast and the play promises to be equal in finish to an "all star production."
