"THE BARGAIN," AT THE STAR THEATER

There has arrived at last a photograph that is very much of a surprise to the many patrons of this class of amusement in this city. The surprise is The Bargain, at the Star theater. This picture was never produced by some of the many directors that have been turning out western dramas from Newark, N. J. as there is too much of the genuine western air in the production.

Most of the so-called western dramas are a joke to the man and woman that knows the west, but The Bargain can be seriously called a western drama. The star of the production is William S. Hart, a man of the range, and the picture was made in Arizona, with all the beauties of the Grand Canyon, as a stage. The story is good and refreshing and in truly western.

The Bargain is one of the very best Paramount pictures, that has been shown here and will be at the Star theater this afternoon and evening.
