MERGER OF BULLS AND BARNUM LINES IS A POSSIBILITY

Persistent street rumors are in circulation concerning the sale of the Barnum line to the Southern Oregon Traction company (Bulls line). The price rumored was $60,000. The negotiations are still in an unformed shape, the application of the Bulls line for a crossing over the S. P. tracks at Main street being one of the matters pending between the two lines.

S. S. Bullis, over the telephone from Sterling this afternoon, said: "It has been one of our intentions since building in Medford to connect with the Barnum line or have the Barnum line connect with us. It is the natural thing. Our application for a crossing on Main street is still pending, and of course this enters into the negotiations. The matter, as far as I know, is just where it has always been."

John Barnum said that as far as he knew there was nothing definite regarding any transfer.

A merger of the two lines would form a link toward the long hoped for building of a railroad up the Applegate to the Blue Lodge, giving a rail outlet to a rich mining and agricultural country.

"Quality Street," which Maude Adams is presenting on her western tour, is one of J. M. Barrie's early plays. It was the second of his comedies to be presented in this country, it immediately following "The Little Minister." The comedy was one of the distinctive successes of the period in which it was first given. In England its success was of great volume. In this country its presentations were confined to the big cities of the east and hence the work is practically new in a large section of the United States. There has been a demand for the play for some time, and its revival has been meeting with such success that capacity audiences have been the rule wherever the sentimental work has been presented by its charming interpreter.

PORTLAND, OR., June 7.—Although the skies were clear, balloting was comparatively light during the forenoon at today's biennial city election. Only a little over 10 per cent of the total registration had voted up to noon. The polls, however, will remain open until 8 o'clock tonight and it was expected that the most of the voters would not cast their ballots until late in the day.
