Anticipating The New Baby

Every expectant mother should have at hand a bottle of "Mother's Friend." It is applied over the muscles, makes them strong, they expand without undue strain, pain is relieved, nausea is overcome and the skin is thus preserved against scars and other defects so common where "Mother's Friend" has been neglected. HALO FOR SUMMER GIRL IS NEW CROWNLESS HAT

There's a good deal of brim, but, of course, no crown to this crownless hat, designed especially for the Mail Tribune by Mme. Merrelle of Chicago. The broad band of black mouseline ribbon is really a trimming, not a crown. Black lace covers the wire foundation, and two soft, white roses and a cluster of buds add to the halo effect of the crownless hat.

MEDFORD COLLEGE NOTES

We students are looking forward to the contests to be held Friday, when we hope to better previous records made in spelling, calculation and typewriting.

Grace Taylor and Flossie Williams received grades of 100 per cent in the weekly spelling test.

Margus J. Vertin, who completed the office practice work a few days ago, is now employed as stenographer in the office of F. J. Newman, the lawyer.

Hazel Carnell entered school this week and is taking the teachers' review course.

Another one to enroll this week for a course in bookkeeping and shorthand is V. W. Flint of Ashland.

The members of the teachers' review class are studying hard these days, preparatory to taking the teachers' examination.

During the coming week examinations will be held in English and shorthand. Tests will be held for the primary and complete shorthand certificates.

Ben Forbes has completed the theory of shorthand, and is now taking dictation in the C class.

Madame Schumann-Heink's Advice to the June Brides

"Beware of Undue Curiosity and Suspicion If You Would Enjoy Happy Married Life," Declares Famous Opera Singer

(By Madame Schumann-Heink, the famous diva.)

A clever woman said the other day that she thought that curiosity was the greatest and most poisonous devil that the devil had in his quiver with which to torture poor, sinful man.

The old nursery tale of Bluebeard's wives had a solid kernel of wisdom within its allegory.

Curiosity is one of the greatest of virtues.

The woman of no curiosity rarely accomplishes anything.

The right kind of curiosity means the finding out of the best way to live. It means always playing the game with always a curiosity to know what the end will be if you play it fairly and to the best of your ability.

But undue curiosity savors of suspicion and there is nothing more liable to lead the marriage ship on the rocks of destruction than that the mate should grow suspicious of the captain.

I know that sounds very old-fashioned and behind these times of ultra-feminism, but every wife would be happier if she recognized her husband as the captain and as a loyal mate she should refrain from rocking the boat.

It is a foolish habit, that of curiosity, and if a woman would be a successful wife she will not inquire too closely into the affairs of her husband or those of his family. Neither will she allow anyone to come to her with any story about her husband.

I have a friend who married very young and although she was foolish in many ways she was not curious, and when her husband's own father came to her with complaints about her husband she told him that she did not care to hear them.

To me she always stood for the bravest, most beautiful wifehood I have ever known, and I ever felt for her a sympathetic and compassionate admiration that was a million times greater than those who came to me with tales of grief and woe.

While I do not think it is always a woman's duty to make this sacrifice, I do feel that having made it she should stand by her guns.

It is no woman's duty to live with a man if life becomes only a desperate struggle to keep her own self-respect; but as long as she lives with her husband the secrets of her married life should be inviolate.
