EAGLETS ADRIFF

By A. C. Howlett.

The last time I wrote for the Mail Tribune I was about ready to leave the fair, but did not mention the fact that when I reached the Oregon building, among the first things I saw was the Daily Mail Tribune filed so that we Oregonians could read the news from home. Strange as it may seem, with my very extensive acquaintance I did not meet a single person that I recognized as having seen before and there was a continual chain of humanity passing to and fro but the faces all seemed to be faces that I had never seen before, and what a feeling of loneliness one has in such a place, in a vast crowd of humanity and still alone. But in all that I have had to say about the fair I have not said a word about the exhibits of the products of our own state. The fruit exhibit compared favorably with that of any other state, although in the California building fruit there was a variety of fruits on exhibition that we do not produce in Oregon, but the fruit that was in the Oregon building would come up to that of any other display and in some instances, especially the apple and peach presentation was far ahead of anything I saw in the California building. The grain, alfalfa and clover was equal to the best, and so far as the different kinds of fruit and vegetables that was in glass jars there was a striking resemblance in all of it, but I saw nothing in the Oregon building but what reflected credit on our home state. But I am afraid that I am taking up too much space on the fair question although there was enough there to keep an ordinary scribbler writing for six months and then he would say with the "Queen of Sheba when she went to see the greatness of Solomon, that the half has not been told." But before I leave that subject I must ask the privilege of saying something about the greatest of all wonders in Oregon and that is Crater Lake. When I reached the Jackson booth among the first things I noticed was the different pictures of Crater Lake and when it was known that I was from near that section of the country and was somewhat familiar with its surroundings I was kept busy answering questions and pointing out the different points of interest in and around the lake. But I must leave the fair grounds with all of its display and beauty and tell the reader some things of the wonders of the Golden Gate Park. And now I am at a loss to know just where to start in my story for the whole thing seems like a dream. And when I stop and reflect on what there is to be seen and the different subjects to write on I confess that I am bewildered over the thought. But I will commence just where I entered the park grounds and the first thing that particularly attracted my attention was an artificial lake and all around it was a growth of ever green plants in all of their various stages of production, some in full bloom, some in the bud and others bearing the full grown fruit, and in the lake there was a myriad of small fish of different kinds and colors and fowls of a different variety from the ordinary mud duck to the great swan. A little further on we came to the beaver dam where the beaver was at work at his daily task. Going on from there we began to come to where the larger animals were kept and among the first in that line was a herd of Buffalo, but I was disappointed in them for they had a kind of a forlorn look and the impression they made on my mind was that they had not been properly cared for, for they seemed to be thin in flesh and their hair had a dead appearance and I could see a marked difference between them and the ones I used to see roving wild on the plains on the Aransas river in 1849. We then visited the Elk yard where there was a number of large Elk and they had just been fed on the boughs of trees that were cut off and placed there, I suppose to take the place of green grass. We then saw the moose, they are somewhat like the Elk only I think somewhat larger. Then the deer park but they are common in Oregon to need a description, although they seemed to be quite interesting to many who came from the older states. The next place we visited was the bear park and there we saw almost every kind of bear that can be found in the world for in addition to our great grizzly bear of California and Oregon there were the ordinary brown bear, the cinnamon bear but the cinnamon bear of Alaska, he is not so large as some of our bears but he is an ugly looking beast. We then turned to see the different varieties of birds and time would fail me to undertake to tell of all that I saw in that line but they were there from the great American bald eagle to the tiny humming bird. But I must tear myself away from all these beautiful things and go to the places of amusement where they have places for almost all kinds of athletic sports such as baseball, football, basket ball and several other different kinds of games they play with balls, and in fact they have so much that it completely bewilders me to try to think of all that was going on and there were several games going on that were new to me that I could not name. But I did not have time nor strength to see all for the park covers over thousands of acres and every acre seems to be covered with something to please the eye. The entire park is covered with different kinds of evergreen trees and shrubbery, interspersed with grass lawns and these are kept up to date all of the time and to me the visit to the park was of as much interest as the visit to the fair grounds. But I must bring this letter to a close and the next time I write will try to tell something of my trip on an ocean steamer from Santa Paula, Cal., July 22.

CRUISER RESCUED FROM DISASTER! NICK NIMBLE DEFIES THE OCEAN!

No. 1—Once while out riding along the Belgian coast, I saw a battleship, disabled and about to sink!

No. 2—Thinking of all the brave lives in danger, I contrived a plan! I built an island of cement into the ocean from the mainland!
