Though it is not definitely settled it is probable that the Medford team will journey to Klamath Falls Sunday to play a return game. Fans who have supported the team are preparing a move to start a popular subscription to pay Bill Caster, the southpaw, something for good work on the diamond. Caster has been accountable for more runs than any other man on the team, by good old-fashioned hitting. Caster Sunday pounded in and scored three of the six runs scored by the locals, and it was his sterling banging of the ball that aided in the winning of the uphill fight.

PUTER LIKELY TO LOSE SIGHT FROM BRUTAL ATTACK

W. U. Pater, son of S. A. D. Pater, of Portland, one of the dramatic figures in the famous Oregon land fraud cases, may never see the light of day again as the result of a promising he received Sunday morning, at the hands of E. J. Poole, gardener at the Sacred Heart hospital. The preliminary hearing set for this morning was postponed for a week, and Poole committed to the county jail. Doctors in attendance upon Pater say it is doubtful if he regains his sight. His father will arrive today from Grants Pass.

Poole, recovering from the effects of the liquor told the police a strange story of the motives that prompted him to beat his victim. For years he was a sailor. At that calling he had many fights. In one fracas he was clouted over the head with a marlin pin. Ever since that encounter, Poole claims, he has been filled with an uncontrollable passion to beat some one, when ever whiskey passes his lips. For this reason he says he has not carried a knife or a gun for years. He said that he beat Pater until he was exhausted, and would then take a drink from a flask, that awakened the lust for cruelty. After hammering him into unconsciousness, Poole poured whiskey down the throat of his victim to revive him.

Poole told the police that the quarrel started because of the insistence of Pater's attempts to sell him real estate, and that angered, he felled him with a swing to the jaw. They wandered all over the east side in the drunken bewilderment, arguing the while.

If Pater should lose his sight, Poole faces a long term in the state prison.

FOREST FIRES IN APPLIGATE

A forest fire, believed to have been started by a firebug whose activities have menaced the Applegate district the last two years, Monday afternoon and night threatened homes and farms near Ruch. A fighting force of 50 men had the fire under control this morning. They battled all night to keep the flames from destroying crops and homes. In one instance, according to the telephone report received by the forestry service, the flames advanced to within 50 feet of one home.

The fire was started Sunday afternoon, and assumed a serious aspect Monday forenoon when fanned by a high breeze it gained rapid headway.

The state forestry force are fighting a fire in the Dead Indian country. The flames are in heavy timber, but the home of one homesteader is menaced. The fire was reported to be under control this afternoon.

A brush fire is burning today between Rogue River and Grants Pass. With the vacation season in full swing, campers are urged to observe particular caution in handling fires while in the woods.

WESTERLUND BACK FROM FRUITGROWERS MEET AT SPOKANE

J. A. Westerlund returned Monday from attendance on the special meeting of the Board of Control of the Northwest Fruitgrowers' Council, as the representative of southern and western Oregon, held in Spokane last week for the purpose of meeting with the members of the Federal Trade Commission of Washington, D. C., for an examination by the commission into the aims and plans of the council.

Mr. Westerlund says that when the matter had been gone into thoroughly between the government's representatives and the fruitgrowers, a reversal of his former informal ruling against the council as an alleged illegal combine was announced publicly by Mr. Charles J. Brand, director of the bureau of markets and rural organization of the department of agriculture. The announcement came as a climax to the deliberations when Senator W. H. Paulhamus, chairman of the Fruitgrowers' Council, urged upon the commission the desirability of an early ruling, and after Mr. Paulhamus had clearly explained that the council is an organization of individual fruitgrowers, and not such a combine of associations as might be construed to be illegal under the terms of the Clayton act. Mr. Brand took the floor, and voluntarily said to the commission:

"In the original plan submitted to me the growers' council seemed to be contemplating price-fixing. It appeared to me to be a federation of organizations. Since hearing Mr. Paulhamus explain the plan, the situation has been clarified greatly. It seems now that the growers' council is an organization of primary producers with the rights of partnership, and is not in violation of section six of the Clayton act."

Mr. Westerlund was invited to accompany the Federal Trade Commission to North Yakima, where they thoroughly inspected the orchards, and had a conference with the orchard owners, in an effort to learn first hand how to proceed in order to bring the producer and consumer in more direct touch with each other. Mr. Westerlund made arrangements to have the members of the commission visit Medford. They will arrive Saturday morning, and will be taken through the valley by the members of the Commercial club.

The Federal Trade Commission is composed of the following members: Chairman, Joseph E. Davies of Wisconsin; Vice-Chairman, Edward Hurley, of Illinois; Commissioners, William J. Harris of Georgia, Will H. Parry of Washington, and George Rublee of New Hampshire. The members are accompanied by their secretaries.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.
