DOLLAR DECLARES SHIPPING HURT BY NEW BILLS

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18.—Shipping men, exporters and importers testified today before the federal trade commission to help them ascertain the conditions and problems which confront the business man of this country.

Captain Robert Dollar, the veteran president of the Robert Dollar Steamship company, answered questions concerning the new seaman's bill which he described as a measure "effectively to put us out of business."

"Congress may be powerful enough within the three mile limit," said Captain Dollar, "but when they get behind that they don't figure. I am not going out of business; I promise you that. I'm going to get business some how, but none of us knows where we are—even Secretary Redfield doesn't know."

"We are being legislated to death in this country. We have been used to consultations coming here who were a disgrace to the nation. Yours is a constructive commission, otherwise I would have refused to come before it," he said.

Captain Dollar said that all shipowners were in favor of the humanitarian aspects of the bill, but he added, "where does the sailor stand when you have legislated all the ships out of business?"

He stated that under the Sherman act every business man was practically a candidate for prison and that it was high time for a change in the act so far as foreign trading was concerned.
