RUSSIAN ARMY ESCAPES

of the enemy's constant efforts to cut the Russian communication it is not yet safe to predict the escape of the Russian forces, which are fighting a series of successful rear guard actions on the Viliya, northwest of Mordelina, which have arrested the German advance from the north.

German Losses Heavy

Another correspondent of the Times, who spent a fortnight with the Russian General Ruzsky's northern army, says he is convinced the Germans suffered much greater losses than the Russians and gives the testimony of an American, Dr. Hurd, who has been working with the Russian army on the Grodno front for ten months, that the losses in that army have been incredibly small since the retreat started.

"PROHIBITION" AT THE PAGE TH EATER THURSDAY AND FRIDAY

"Prohibition," as its name implies, is a picture with a purpose. Unlike many other hits of screen propaganda, it has a real story. This, together with the many striking scenes, the indorsement of the picture by the many notable persons who appear on the screen, and the very nature of the picture itself combine to make it a distinctive production and one which should appeal to the workers for prohibition and the practical showman.

The story lies in the transformation for the worse by drink of William Irving and Lemuel Larkin and their subsequent regeneration and return to high position in society.

A counterplot tells of the attempt of Benjamin Larkin to make a drunkard of his brother, Richard, in come between Richard and his sweetheart, Mattie Holmes, and to lay a murder charge at Richard's door. Two love stories add the gentle touch to the picture.

Several times during the picture Mephistopheles and the Demon of Rum suddenly appear to goad their victims on. The angel of prohibition and intelligence prove stronger powers for the good, though. Among the striking scenes are the runaway horse with the human freight in grave peril, several realistic fist fight scenes, the big courtroom scene when Richard is acquitted and the allegorical scenes showing the drink octopus sapping the blood of its grovelling victims.

STATE OR FEDERAL CONTROL OF POWER RESOURCES DEBATED

PORTLAND, Sept. 22.—Resolutions introduced at the second day's session of the Western States Waterpower conference here today indicated that the battle of state vs. federal control of the public domain would be fought out in the resolutions committee, which will report its findings tomorrow noon.

Sharp hits between the minority, led by Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, which is supporting the Ferris bill, and the majority headed by Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, which opposes the measure, marked the opening of the conference this morning. Although the Ferris bill, which, if passed by congress, will provide for a fifty-year leasing system of waterpower sites, was the specific bone of contention, it was lost sight of at times during the course of debate on the larger issue of state sovereignty and federal control.

Walsh Speaks for DRI

Senator Walsh, who was placed upon the program as a speaker after the conference opened, presented the government's side of the waterpower question.

Expressing his thanks for the opportunity of speaking, he said he was astonished to see in the Portland chamber of commerce's pamphlet distributed at the conference the statement that it was called to consider whether waterpower should be developed by private initiative or under federal control. He held this entirely foreign to the purpose of the convention. He paid his respects to "those gentlemen who are on the outside, yet whose leader influence, like that which pervaded the house of Fisher, is not unwell here."

Maintaining that the Ferris bill itself protects the states against the "honey of federal control," he declared the principal point at issue is the compensation to be paid for the use of public land necessary to the development of the water rights.

Instead of formulating a policy and adding suggestions of value, the waterpower conference is simply indulging in criticism of the conservation policy and the forest service and reported efforts are being made to becloud the issue, charged Senator George E. Chamberlain of Oregon, in selecting the delegates.

Senator Chamberlain asserted that the wall maps which decorated the walls of the conference hall misrepresented the facts; that Governor James Withycombe of Oregon appointed as delegates only republicans and only men who held the same views against the Ferris bill. He declared that there had been no attempt to secure the attendance of the men who formulated the majority report on the Ferris bill, but that four United States senators who formulated the minority report were invited to make speeches.

BONDING ELECTION AWAITS FINDING OF MARKET FOR BONDS

F. V. Medynski, father of the plan to rebound the city of Medford for $1,020,000 to refund paving assessments, was named a committee of one at the regular meeting of the city council Tuesday night to find a buyer for the bonds, and, finding same, to enter into the preliminary negotiations for the issuance of the bonds, subject to the approval of the voters. Councilman Medynski in a resolution is given power to deicker with prospective buyers, when located, for the appointment of attorneys to see that the bonds are legal, and to see that they put up a guarantee equal to 1 per cent of the entire amount, to insure a full and complete fulfillment of their contract. It is also provided that all suits of enjoyment be dismissed before any bonds are issued or sold. By this action the council delays election to secure the issuance of the bonds and insures the clearing away of all technicalities before a vote is taken. Councilmen Medynski and Amy opposed the resolution.

The resolution is as follows: Resolved, that it is the sense of the council that before submitting the proposition of rebounding the city to pay the outstanding paving bonds and refunding to property owners the amounts they have paid on paving assessments, it should be determined whether such bonds if voted could be sold.

Resolved further, that for the purpose of ascertaining whether such bonds could be sold, F. V. Medynski is hereby appointed a committee of one with power and authority to enter into a contract with some responsible bond buyer for the purchase of the proposed issue of $1,020,000.00 more or less of 5 per cent thirty year refunding bonds at par, conditioned upon the issuance of said bonds being approved by the people of said city.

Resolved further that said F. V. Medynski is hereby authorized in said contract to agree that said bond purchaser shall have the right to name any attorney or firm of attorneys who shall have charge of directing the procedure leading up to the issuance of said bonds, and to bind the city to faithfully follow in the matter of procedure the instructions of said attorneys, to the end that said issue may be in all respects legal, and further, to bind the city to pay the charges of said attorneys. In the event said bonds are actually purchased under said contract, in an amount not exceeding two thousand dollars.

Bond Buyer Furnish Guarantee

Resolved further that said bond buyer shall be required as a part of said contract to deposit with some bank in the state of Oregon not less than one per cent of the amount of said bonds as a guarantee of his performance of said contract, said amount to be forfeited to the city in the event of said buyers failure to carry out the terms of said contract on his part.

Suits Dismissed First

Resolved further that said F. V. Medynski is further authorized to agree on behalf of the city that in the event that any taxpayer or other person shall institute any suit to enjoin the issuance of said bonds, said purchaser shall not be required to purchase the same until all such suits are dismissed or finally determined, or until the supreme court of the state of Oregon shall in some one or more of said suits have held said bonds to be valid obligations of the city of Medford.
