NEW YORK'S COLOSSAL CANONS OF BUILDINGS TOTTERING OVER YAWNING CHASMS

Great Cave-In, Caused by Underground Work in New Subway. Wakes New York's Millions to Sudden Danger of Living Over Mere Shells of Streets—Wonderful Engineering Feats.

BY J. H. DUCKWORTH
NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Burrowed and excavated with hundreds of miles of new subway construction, New York's busiest thoroughfares are today built over yawning chasms.

The swallowing up of two crowded street cars, automobiles, trucks and wagons when a dynamite explosion caused the collapse of two blocks of Seventh avenue, has suddenly made all New Yorkers feel it is about as safe on the street as sitting on a mined-bridge in Flanders!

Over 200 miles of new subway and elevated tracks are being built in New York.

The $80,000,000 "fares" carried yearly over the rapid transit lines have been howling for better accommodations. And the improvements must be made without the process causing the slightest inconvenience to the usual traffic.

Engineers Do Wonders
The public service commission engineers have done wonders. Engineers from all over the world have marveled at their daring, skill and ingenuity. How to dig a subway under busy Broadway up Seventh avenue, below the present subway along 42nd street and then on Lexington avenue, to say nothing of the long spurs under the rivers into Brooklyn and the Bronx without disturbing the normal traffic on the roadways above, was a colossal problem to solve.

The planking along the "Great White Way" has meant little to the average New Yorker. Yet this is the outward and visible sign of a unique engineering feat. At the beginning

TRESPASS NOTICE
Trespassers on Brookhurst will be vigorously prosecuted. E. B. PICKEL, Prop.

This shows the cave-in of the Seventh Avenue subway at New York, in which seven people were killed and more than 100 injured. The cave-in followed the premature explosion of a large blast of dynamite. Rescuers are shown in the bed of the subway searching for victims. The construction work gave way for a block, dropping three crowded cars into the chasm.

A few heavy beams were placed on the roadway and planks laid across them.
At night a couple of "ground hogs" would dig a six foot wide pit on a side street and gradually work their way under the planking. When they had thrown out sufficient dirt they would drag under timbers and prop up the planking.

On lower Broadway there is an express track below the bed line, and at many spots twenty-story skyscrapers have had to be "piled up" and have new foundation piers under them!
The new transportation routes will cost $330,000,000, and if used to handle more than 3,000,000,000 "fares" a year.

Italyans would be poured into the hole and more timbers.
In time steam excavators would be let down and a whole army of laborers would commence to push, inch by inch, further under the main thoroughfare, the pioneers digging the dirt out with their hands a few feet below the planking over which passed trolley cars, automobiles and an unintermittent stream of vehicles. SWEENEY SUES JACKSON COUNTY FOR $121,241.04

Suit has been filed in the Multnomah county circuit court by J. W. Sweeney, contractor and builder of the Siskiyou grade, asking judgment against Jackson county for $121,241.04, alleged to be due on the work. Service was filed on county officers Thursday.

According to figures set forth in the complaint, Sweeney claims the total cost of the road to be $277,562.26, of which $156,321.22 has been paid.

According to the final estimates made by State Highway Engineer Bowly and confirmed by the present highway engineer, there is between $35,000 and $36,000 due Sweeney under his contract. This final estimate was signed by Mr. Sweeney, who now claims he signed it under protest. The money has not been paid because Mr. Sweeney refused to give a receipt in full and the county refused to finance a law suit. Efforts at compromise failed, the county court holding that the engineer's figures governed and that Mr. Sweeney had already agreed to them in writing. The engineers state that they were very liberal in their allowances to the contractor and that he is not entitled to more.

Mr. Sweeney did a good job and lost money, principally because of the character of the material, which required a great deal of powder to move. He also claims the classification was insufficient, but offered to compromise for $50,000 less than he is suing for.

Loyal H. McCarthy, Robert Darcy, S. B. Huston and Carey & Kerr are attorneys for the plaintiff, while the county is represented by A. E. Reames. It is probable an effort will be made to transfer the case to Jackson county.

SHOOTING SEASON FOR PHEASANTS OPENED

The ten days' open China pheasant season opens tomorrow and scores of Medford hunters will be in the field at sunrise. Game Warden Walker this morning received from Sabin tags, which must be attached to all pheasants stopped out of the county. They cost 5 cents each, and will be left for the benefit of hunters at Ewing's, Lamport's and the Medford Furniture & Hardware company. Unless attached to shipments the birds will be confiscated and refused shipment. According to reports, pheasants are plentiful, but are wild, due to shooting them before the opening of the season. Owners of farms and orchards have in many instances posted trespass notices against hunting and hunters.

BOY RUN OVER BY AN AUTOMOBILE

Jack Aitken, Jr., son of County Fruit Inspector Jack Aitken, was knocked down and run over by an automobile in front of the Washington school this noon and escaped with no injury other than a scratch over the right eye and slightly bruised. That the boy, whose years are eight, was not killed outright was a miracle.

Jack, Jr., was taken to school by his father in the auto and stepped directly in front of the approaching machine. The move was so sudden that the driver of the car, whose name is not known, had no chance to stop. The father states that his son was entirely to blame for the accident. Dr. Porter was called.

Water Front Damaged
Practically the entire water front of the city was flooded as a result of the unusually high tide. Citizens were compelled to use wagons and boats to reach offices and business houses in the inundated section, some of the streets being 2 or 3 feet under water. Several families are reported missing along the nearby coast.

OHIO GOVERNOR TO SPEAK TONIGHT AT BAND CONCERT

Governor Willis of Ohio, chief proponent of republican circles in the Buckeye state, and prominently spoken of as a candidate next year for both the presidential and vice-presidential nominations, arrived in Medford Thursday morning and will speak this evening at the city park. This noon Governor Willis was entertained at luncheon by Mr. and Mrs. Jap Andrews, and this afternoon will be taken over the valley. The gubernatorial party is composed of Mrs. Willis, Private Secretary Jones and wife and Adjutant B. E. Hough of the Ohio national guards.

Upon his arrival in the city this morning Governor Willis was met by a delegation of local republicans. The distinguished visitor at once expressed an earnest desire to be taken to Crater Lake today for a view of the famed scenic spot. No arrangements to this end were perfected. The party is scheduled to arrive in San Francisco Saturday morning in time for the governor to deliver an address in the Ohio State building at the exposition. This evening at the Medford hotel before the public address a reception will be held for Governor and Mrs. Willis.

This afternoon Governor Willis and wife will be driven by auto over the Pacific highway for a view of Mt. Shasta and Mt. Pitt. On the trip west, cloudy skies has prevented the official party from securing a good view of either Mt. Rainier or Mt. Hood, and are particularly desirous of seeing mountain scenery.

Governor Willis has served several terms in congress from his home district and is considered one of the best orators of the day, though his voice is not adapted for outdoor speaking.
