

GERMAN REPLY IN ARABIC CASE UNSATISFACTORY

New Note Does Not Satisfy President
Because of Germany's Failure to Disavow the Acts—Further Negotiations Impossible—Situation Not Critical.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Although Germany's new note on the Arabic case is not entirely satisfactory to the United States, the situation is not considered critical at this time. This was stated today on high official authority.

The view held by President Wilson and state department officials on the note handed to Secretary Lansing in New York Saturday by Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, is that it was not specific enough on the points insisted on by the president. These are a disavowal of the sinking, assurances that the act would not be repeated and proper reparation.

No Further Negotiations

Careful reading of the note delivered by the German ambassador has convinced administration officials that further negotiations on the question are possible, and that there is still reason to hope that Germany will in the end accede to the wishes of the United States.

The note will not be answered formally immediately, but Secretary Lansing at a conference later this week with the German ambassador will inform him of the point the United States wants cleared up. After the conference the ambassador is expected to communicate again to his government the views of the United States.

Approaches United States

Germany's position now, however, more nearly approaches the stand of the United States than it did in the previous note on the same question. It is understood that the note gives satisfactory assurances that Americans traveling on unarmed liners will not be endangered by submarine attack in the future, but a satisfactory disavowal of the sinking of the Arabic is not given.

The note was the subject of a conference between President Wilson and Secretary Lansing last night. A rupture of diplomatic relations over the case is considered unlikely.

RUSSIA SENDS ULTIMATUM

however, will not satisfy the allies, who demand that Bulgaria shall "openly break with the enemies of the Slav cause."

If the reports from Paris, Bucharest and Athens of the concentration of Teutonic troops on the Serbian frontier are correct, the promptitude with which Russia has taken up the German challenge is explained. According to these reports, Field Marshal Von Mackensen has quit the eastern front and is now near the Serbian border at the head of 250,000 German and Austrian troops, with 2000 guns. It is reported that he is ready to repeat his campaign by which he drove the Russians out of Galicia.

Allies Are Prepared

If action by the entente powers should become necessary when Bulgaria makes final disclosure of her intentions, this action would be undertaken by troops which are now in readiness to take the field simultaneously with the forces of Greece. The opinion is expressed here that a prompt movement, such as would be undertaken, would be likely to disentangle the counsels of Rumania, which for the moment seem obscure.

British military writers affect to see in this situation a great danger to the central powers. They argue that plans must have been laid down weeks ago when it was supposed the German armies were likely to force a decision in the east and before the unexpected mobilization of Greece and the formidable offensive of the allies in the west. Since the plans for the Teutonic campaign against Serbia were conceived, Russia has brought the German advance almost to a standstill and claims now to hold the initiative along most of the front.

Kitchener Wants Men

The results of the great recruiting rally in England on Saturday are not yet known, but it is generally believed that Lord Kitchener will get the necessary men by some means.

"I know how many men I want," he told the labor leaders. "I know their names and the numbers of their doors, and if they don't come I will fetch them. Give me the men and munitions I want and I guarantee we shall have the war in the hollow of our hands."

WORLD SERIES MANAGERS SCORE IN FAVOR OF CATCHER AS GOOD TEAM LEADERS

"BILL" CARRIGAN

"PAT" MORAN

BY BROWN HOLMES

The managers who will meet in the world series, Bill Carrigan, of the Boston Red Sox, and Pat Moran, of the Phils, give a big boost to the catcher manager proposition. Their success and the success of other managers who were catchers leads to the idea that men who see things from the backstop's viewpoint make good men to lead teams.

Nine managers who have been successful in recent years were catchers. Besides Carrigan and Moran, there are Connie Mack, Wilbert Robinson, Roger Bresnahan, Branch Rickey, Frank Chance, Clarence Rowland and Lee Fohl.

All of these managers have not won pennants, but the yhave shown the goods.

Carrigan and Moran represent two types of leaders—the playing manager and the bench manager.

Carrigan has been one of the real good catchers of the American league for years, and since he became manager, succeeding Jake Stahl, he has taken his regular turn with the wind-pad.

Moran, after he went to the Phils from the Cubs, became coach, then succeeded Red Dooin, as manager. He is always in uniform and on the base lines and his baseball knowledge has been one of the club's big assets.

The term of the federal court will last a month. The sessions will be held in the small hall of the Natatorium, with Judge Wolverton on the bench, and District Attorney Clarence Reames in charge.

There will be other matters investigated by the federal inquisitorial, the nature of which is kept secret in accordance with governmental rules. One of the matters will probably be the sales of land under the O-C land grant.

The federal court officials will arrive this afternoon and in the morning to take charge of the sessions.

completed a year in advance of the estimated time.

The dam reaches a height of 348.5 feet, tapering to a 16-foot crown.

The concrete in the dam if loaded on a wagon train allowing twenty feet to each team and wagon would reach from San Francisco to New York and double back to Cleveland.

The reservoir formed behind it is eighteen miles long, the water in it reaching a maximum depth of 260 feet, enough to flood the city of Boston with eight feet. There is tributary to the reservoir 3,000,000,000 feet of timber. It will take fifty years to lift over the dam and drop through a cement chute to the river below. The value of this timber alone is $36,000,000.
