

ASHLAND AND VICINITY

As an index of the scope of work being done on the enlarged park area, approximately 2000 pounds of fancy grass seeds have been ordered with which to fortify the lawns in that locality. Specifically, the varieties are classified as follows: Nine hundred and fifty pounds Kentucky blue, 800 pounds Australian eye and 100 pounds white clover. The cost will be $221. The stock was ordered from Mac Korie-Melaren Co. of San Francisco. A systematic water scheme has been installed to irrigate the extensive tract.

Among Ashland visitors to the exposition who recently went to San Francisco are Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Vaupel.

Card playing is tabooed in the parks. This is no news, but is mentioned as a reminder. On the occasion of a picnic lately given by one of the women's clubs at the auto camp grounds, the privilege of joining in a no-trump hand, by way of diversion, was frowned upon by the police. The game contemplated was 500, participated in by the social 400. "A word to the wise," etc.

Charles F. Christensen of the Ashland Mfg. Co. will remove in a few days to the Sherwin residence on Oak street. Mr. and Mrs. Christensen have heretofore been living on Helman street.

Dave Shook and Chris Krisher of Kinmonth Falls were in town the last of the week visiting friends and renewing the acquaintance of old friends. They are ranchers of the Kinmonth section. Krisher formerly had a butcher shop here and was for one time member of the city council.

Fred Neil has returned from Portland, where he purchased an Avery tractor engine, to which he will attach plows and break up an extensive acreage on the Neil ranches in the Dead Indian section.

Complimentary to the Misses Fannie and Mary Scott, who have been visiting relatives in this vicinity for some time past, and who are about to return to their home in Pennsylvania, a number of representatives of the Harron, Myer, Walker and Anderson families gave a picnic dinner the last of the week at the auto camp grounds. Over twenty-five participated in an event which was an eminently social one, the guests being given a good speed on their homeward trip, coupled with an expression that they might be prevailed upon to make many "happy returns" to this locality.

Residents of the Valleyview school district, north of town, have organized a parent-teacher circle, with Mrs. William Gloom as president. The circle held its first meeting last Friday afternoon and inaugurated a system of "first aid" in behalf of school co-operation between homes and schools.

Contractor Smith of San Francisco, member of the Smith-Lemery Co., has been in town of late inspecting the springs development work.

In view of the prevalent "dollar day" craze, local merchants announce a continuous performance each twenty-four hours of the special incentive here.

Railroad assignments on the Shasta division, as lately bulletined, are of local significance as follows: Freight brakeman, Ashland, extra board; H. R. Adams, vice J. J. Loomis; freight brakeman, Ashland-Hornbrook run, trains 223 and 2226; G. W. Rose, vice J. O. Warritt; passenger brakeman, Ashland-Red Bluff, trains 33 and 34; N. W. Goodham vice D. Tompkins.

Yreka's chamber of commerce has petitioned trustees of its grammar school district to call a special election on a bonding proposition for the creation of a modern school building, the old one having outlived its usefulness.

Ill. Frazer, S. P. Foreman of water service on the Shasta division, is visiting friends here, accompanied by his bride, who was formerly Miss Elizabeth Hardy of San Diego, daughter of a prominent stockman of the southern California section, who is also interested in the parking industry.

Mrs. C. D. Cane, wife of the foreman of the roundhouse, accompanied by her daughter, Gertrude, and her mother, Mrs. J. C. Tibbitts of San Francisco, left Friday afternoon for the exposition city, where Mr. Tibbitts is a civil engineer in the employ of President Moore of the exposition company. Mr. Cane will join his family at the big fair later on.

Melbony Camp, M. W. A., held a meeting last Friday evening, preparatory to beginning an active campaign for new members during the fall and winter months. Anticipating a further visit from District Organizer Singsaps of Portland in discussing the field needed necessary to the ritual will supplement by rolling out. To this end a questionnaire has been organized. It personnel includes E. F. Smith, Mrs. Jim Van, Fred Polman and Jay Crossen, drivers; Charles Hurd, bassoon. Tuning forks will be ordered from the International Harvester trust. In the way of a literary interpolation, Gus Hedberg, clerk of the camp, has been prevailed upon to give a reading from the works of "Erysipels." The quintet's first professional appearance will take place Friday evening, October 22.

The first outside football game of the season will occur between Ashland and Grants Pass, Saturday, October 16, at 2:30 p. m., on the home grounds. This is in the high school series. The preliminary local football October 2 was between the high school and its alumni representatives, the former winning by a score of 7 to 2.

The Toppereins—man and wife—expert shots, gave an exhibition of marvelous work on railroad grounds last Friday afternoon. Eggs, also tomatoes and other vegetables tossed in the air fell victims to fancy shots. The police had an attempt to short-circuit the professionals, but on appeal to the mayor that official readily granted permission for the target practice to go on.

Anticipating irrigation projects, Emil Peil of this city is building a big reservoir on his alfalfa holdings northwest of town. It will be a substantial concrete structure with a capacity of 100,000 gallons. Several ranchers in the same locality are digging additional wells.

In the last state industrial commission's report three accidents sustained by local residents are enumerated in the classification. They are W. J. Keeton, injured leg; George Cady, mashed toe; J. O. Marrett, bruised knee—all railroad operations.

C. A. Bridenstine, credited to Dunsuir, but who runs out of this station, suffered from injured eyes. A case of forcible detainer figured in Justice Leo Trefren's court last week, although it was actually heard before Recorder Gillette. R. L. McDonough was plaintiff and L. H. Trefren defendant. The parties are residents of the Neil creek district. The merits of the case involved certain water rights and road privileges. Verdict was for McDonough, his contention having been proved to be invulnerable. George W. Trefren for plaintiff, J. A. Lemery for defendant.

L. Miksch and family of the Bellevue neighborhood return to Ohio this week. They originally came from the vicinity of Granddubenton, in the Buckeye state, and for the past five years have farmed a five-acre tract out beyond the Normal. They will be missed in church, school and social circles. Mr. Miksch will re-engage in farming in Muskingum county, Ohio.

Prominent officials of the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation company went south Saturday afternoon in President Farrell's private car Maplewood, bound for the exposition.

A detail from the twenty-first P. S. infantry, heretofore stationed at the Presidio, San Francisco, occupied a camp on No. 16 Saturday bound for Vancouver Borneo, Washington.

Judge and Mrs. Calkins of Medford were visitors early the present week with Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Day.

EAGLE POINT EAGLETS

I should have mentioned in my last that Edward Ulrich came over after the road roller and in trying to cross Little Rute creek at the ford in crossing up the bank which is very steep and rough, he broke one of the main castings on the machine on the hill and Frank Brown, who seems to be interested with Chris Natwick in the road contract, had to send to Portland for a new casting and when it arrived the next thing was to pull the twelve-ton roller up the bank, but by the use of stump puller they finally succeeded and got it fixed so that by Wednesday morning it was ready for the road again, but there was the loss at the use of the roller for about three days and the expense of the engineer, etc., that might have been saved by having the bank graded down and a few large boulders taken out of the way in the road. That crossing has been an exorcise for years, in fact ever since it was first blocked out by the late George Brown at the time he was county commissioner, and since that time the county has paid extra in getting the county machinery across the creek to have paid for fixing the grade half a dozen times.

Last Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. Paul Opdyke of the Stone House ranch on Rogue river above Trail, and Miss Pauline Garley of Dallas, Texas, were here for dinner.

N. Gorman, the foreman at the Dr. Laidlow orchard, was here the same day delivering some fine apples to his customers.

Mrs. John Ashpole of Medford was out the first of the week visiting her son, Roy, and family, and meeting many of her old-time friends and acquaintances.

Charles Holmes of Ashland came up here last Wednesday morning and met C. Vatche at the depot and while the car was getting ready to make the return trip bought a fine stallion of Mr. Vatche. Mr. Holmes is a stockman and is raising a lot of fine horses and mules.

Thursday afternoon I called James Owens over the phone to learn if he was at home as I did not want to drive six miles to see him and not find him. But he was at home and so I drove up there, found him and his good wife busy in the fruit business, the wife doing the work and he was—well, I hardly know what he was doing—but they both seemed to be engaged with peaches, pears and tomatoes, and after my feasting on a nice casaba and having a pleasant visit with Mr. and Mrs. Owens he and I transacted a little business for the Mail Tribune, he renewing his subscription and then we got to talking about corn, hay, etc., and I naturally asked him where he got so much hay, for all his barns were full and he had a stack out in the pasture that looked as though there might be 80 or 100 tons, and then the subject turned to the raising of corn, and he showed me a small tract of sticky land, one-eighth of an acre, that his youngest son, Vern, had planted last spring to corn and harvested a yield of 960 pounds in the ear and counting 80 pounds of corn or cob to the bushel, would make it yield twelve bushels or ninety-six bushels to the acre, and that without water, and if it had been a good season for corn we don't know how much it would have yielded. I had planned to go from there up Dry creek but I brought the phone into use again and learned that the two men I wanted to see were in Medford at the time so I turned my course and went home and before I got out of the buggy was met by one of my old friends, John Inell of Portland, but formerly of this section. He and Mr. Stepp owned and ran the Roundtop saw mill that was burned some years ago. His health failed him in Portland and he has come back to Jackson county to regain his health. His wife will follow as soon as he can fit his house on Roundtop ready.

Thursday, just as the first table at the Sunnyside were finishing their dinner, there were two autos rolled up on the spokesman. J. C. Barnes, one of the Medford real estate men, enquired if Mrs. Howlett could set dinner for nine hungry persons and being assured in the affirmative the following persons filed into the dining room: Dr. Collins, J. C. Barnes, of Medford, C. W. Coleman and wife of Fellows, California, C. C. Davis and wife of Shorman, California, J. C. Farmer of Medford, W. W. Haft of Pasadena, California, and James E. Ledawood of Serman, California, and partaking of a hearty dinner they spent a while looking over the place and making special inquiries about the country. They were going out to look at two different tracts of land that Mr. Barnes wished to show them.

I should have said that the corn that Vern Owens raised to a premium at the county fair and also at the state fair and that I brought two cars home with me and placed it in the show window of Roy Ashpole's hardware store on exhibition.

Friday morning I took a spin across the hill to the Ringwood orchard and there met Mr. J. C. Ladd of Ringwood, Ill. He is here visiting Mr. A. G. Bishop.

An old time acquaintance in their younger days, in fact Mr. L. and Mr. B. knew each other as school boys in Ringwood. After Mr. Bishop renewed his sub. to the D. M. T. we separated, Mr. B. and his guest starting for Central Point to visit old friends and I started to see who else I could find and before I reached home received a check from Mrs. C. Charley for the renewal of the subscription of Class C. Charley to the D. M. T. and a renewal to Mr. J. L. Robinson's sub to the W. M. T. and when I reached home found Mrs. W. T. York, Mrs. Ed Warner and son Ed Jr., and Mrs. F. L. Sherman, all of Medford. They had motored out for a pleasant time and dinner at the Sunnyside and at this writing, 3:45 p. m., are still here. They had a fine time feeding the rabbits, admiring the flower beds, etc.

I have also to report the subscription of Mrs. Wm. Deguer of this place to the W. M. T.

John Higginbotham of Butte Falls and Mr. E. Hurd, our local electrician, were also here for dinner, and Miss Peters of Butte Falls is also stopping for a few days at the Sunnyside, nursing a very sore finger, with a carbuncle on it.
