

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

The Halloween festivities in this city were rather indifferent, in the usual way, except special social events befitting the occasion. Chief of Police Hanson reports few acts of vandalism of a serious nature, except the smashing of an arc light on the corner of Ross Court and West Seventh street. The venturesome lad who did that will probably be made to account for it very quickly.

Editor W. A. Crane, of the Central Point Herald, was doing business in Medford today, making a specialty of the sugar beet campaign. He will, beginning today, publish a daily paper devoted wholly to that work for a period of two weeks, realizing that the work required must be done vigorously and thoroughly. Definite information is what the farmers want—information that will remove any doubt that fear may have created in their minds, and that is what Editor Crane will endeavor to place before them in daily installments.

C. R. Leslie, of Venice, California, is a valley visitor this week, having come on business connected with the transfer of Ocean Park property for Rogue river valley realty.

Mr. Leslie formerly lived in Jackson county before Medford was thought of, having engaged in the poultry business at Jacksonville. He believes he will find it more profitable now than then, inasmuch as shipments of poultry yard products may now be made to the coast cities in brief time. He regards the Rogue river valley as a fine poultry region, comparing favorably with any section of the continent. It has advantages, he avers, over California, not excepting the Petaluma district.

Howard Price, who visited the Rogue river valley about two months ago, writes to an article of the Mail Tribune that he will again "tour the valley of unmatched beauties and matchless opportunities" in the early spring. Mr. Price is an energetic young man of more than average enterprise and aggressive purpose to get ahead of the fellow who is always waiting for something to turn up. He confessed that he discovered a number of meadows in this valley, but insisted that it is not wholly their fault. He sends a little "news matter," he is pleased to call it, in behalf of the farmer and asks that it be printed in some spare space in this paper.

FOOD SHORTAGE IN GERMANY SERIOUS

LONDON, Nov. 1, 4:29 p. m.—Travelers arriving from Scandinavian ports say reports are current there that the British government is now supplying food to British prisoners in Germany.

The report aroused interest in official circles, where the opinion was expressed that Germany might be making overtures through the United States for some such arrangement. The belief is growing here that the shortage of food in Germany is becoming serious.
