vitally affected will not co-operate to seeme it. A large percentage of the population are apparently willing to see land values continue to slump, the balance of trade continue on the wrong side of the ledger, unwilling to aid in securing industries that spell prosperity. Times have changed. It is no longer possible to eke out a shabby existence by scratching a few acres, raising a few hogs at neighbor's expense, violating game laws and gaffing sore-back salmon. The surface-scratched land has become exhausted, the neighbors have fenced their holdings, and game wardens guard the spawning riffles. The idyllic existence of the "good old times" has gone forever. Land values are created by population. As the population increases or diminishes, so does the value of land. Property in Medford with 10,000 population is not worth a third of what it will be worth with 50,000 population. A of the paxing. Now this being the farm in the valley with 35,000 population is not worth near case I believe the average intelligent as much as with a 100,000 population to furnish market for products and buyers for land. To support the increased population development of resources is essential. The first step in the ladder of progress is agricultural borne by the abutting property owndevelopment. This can be accomplished by irrigation and ers will make as near a just division establishment of related industries like sugar factories, as can be made Then will come development of timber, mineral and other Reames mentioned in his address beresources-but if the agricultural resources remain undeveloped there will be no substantial foundation upon fore the election that he thought 25 which to creet the edifiee of abiding prosperity.

If the farmers and land-owners of the valley fail to grasp the opportunities offered, fail to get water upon helping solve this paving problem their land, fail to secure the proffered sugar factory—they eleserye the perennial hard times in store for them.

Justice Not Prevailed.

Now kind readers what is going o be the text of this promised measre, or was it merely campaign dedices to thwart the will of the necple and defeat the reburding and reunding plan? Better wake up, prop-"Why, certainly, Jimmy," broke in crty owners, the battle is not over

There is nothing more just than the measure that was defeated, but I am Yank to say that if its agreeable to the property owners of Medford there can be another measure proposed and the same results and save the city alls I question the absolute legality

Now this would make these seeur ities negotiable and available to paying bills locally among ourselves thus saving the necessity of horrowing outside money and sending the interest away from home

A Compromise Effected

Now a measure along these lines would be a compromise between the socalied 50-50 and rebonding and readopted that will obtain practically funding in full and although person of any direct assessment, under our present charter, yet I do think that the people of Medford are broad minded enough to co-operate in a solution of this paving problem and pay at least 25 per cent directly, this would work no particular hardship and it would be an amount that would be less than the real value of any lot fronting on the paving thereby making it an incentive for the This Gentleman Shouldn't Have Much by a vote of the people at the Janu- Owner of said let to hav this 25 per-
