

HOME MARKET CLUB PROPOSED TO BOOST INDUSTRY

"The Home Market club" is likely to be the name of an important local organization to be effected in this city in the near future. The immediate importance of an association of business men and women and buyers of staples in everyday life is recognized by those who propose to encourage loyalty to home production of those things and to the idea that they should help to create and maintain a local market for such commodities as we can produce in this valley as raw materials to be manufactured into the finished article of commerce. This organization will concern itself not only with the home market for such goods, but also with the quality of the finished product.

If any of those articles of commerce which we manufacture at home are not of quality it will be the business of the organization to discuss the matter with the manufacturer and insist that his goods must equal in quality that of a like product shipped in and placed in retail competition with it. This will be done in the interest of the local manufacturer as well as in that of those who naturally would be expected to help in the work of encouraging the consumption of his output. Competition can in no more effective way be met by home production than in the matter of putting out a first-quality article against that which is imported.

There is no legitimate excuse for putting out an inferior article in any of the lines of goods now manufactured here. Our raw materials are par excellence itself, in grains, vegetables, fruits, cream and meats. From any of them may be manufactured the finished product of equal excellence.

In other words, such an organization will have much to do with raising the standards of local production in every line worth the work of development and the cost of harvest.

Local and Personal

A. H. Sunderman, a practical farmer, fruitist and stockman, of the Willamette valley, arrived in Medford this morning and will enjoy a business sojourn here of indefinite length. When Mr. Sunderman saw Medford the last time, several years ago, the city was embryonic, chaotic and a little Quixotic in some respects, but he realizes that a good many hustling, enterprising people have been quite busy here and in this vicinity since that time. He will probably find inducement to remain, for he has a genuine respect for our natural advantages over many sections of the coast in which he has done business for a number of years.

GOVERNOR SEEKS COMPROMISE ON RAILROAD GRANT

SALEM, Or., Nov. 18.—Whether a compromise will be reached between the state and the Southern Pacific Railroad company as to the disposition of the lands embraced in the Oregon & California railroad land grant seemed dependent on two conditions when the state conference committee, which convened here today with Southern Pacific officials, recessed at noon after a brief discussion of a plan presented by Governor James Withycombe.

Members of the committee said the conditions were whether the committee itself could agree, and whether the Southern Pacific would accept their plan.

The main provisions of the governor's plan were:

That the lands be classified and the timber sold at its market value, and the agricultural lands sold at a conservative figure to settlers. That the railroad be paid its equity of $2.50 per acre, and the surplus derived from the sale of land and timber be divided between the railroad company and the state on a percentage basis to be determined upon.

"I have no patience with this $2.50 an acre proposition," said Governor Withycombe, referring to the suggestion that the railroad receive only this amount, which was the price that the grant stipulated the railroad was to receive from settlers. "Neither do I think that the government has any claim to an equity in this land. The development of the state by its people has caused the land values to increase, and I think the equities in them are in the railroad company and in the state."

Bert Lowry, foreman of the Bear Creek overcords, is doing business in the city today.

Earl Reynolds of the Medford taxi escorted a party of home-seekers over the valley today in their examination of a number of properties. A location near Talent will probably be selected.

H. L. Trwin, a prominent orchardist of the Eden valley district, is transacting business in the city today.

Peter Heptorman, of Boise, Idaho, who has been visiting in Medford, Gold Hill and other points in the valley during the past month, will return to Boise tomorrow. If he can dispose of certain properties there to advantage at this time of the year, he will return to this valley at once and prepare to put in a crop for the next season's harvest.

NEW TODAY

I have one of the finest outlying stock ranches in the county. Four hundred acres nearly all of it is agricultural land, and half of it irrigated. Fine improvements, well out in the free outrange. About $5000 worth of personal property goes with it. Price $22,000, and a great buy at that price.

Fine little place close to pavement in Grants Pass, six acres, some alfalfa, and some fruit. Would trade clear for Medford property.
