EXPLAINS PHOENIX SCHOOL BOND DEAL

To the Editor:
The item in Saturday's Mail Tribune in regard to the $4000 bond issue by the Phoenix school board was a perversion of facts.
Some time ago the board voted to fund its present outstanding 6 per cent warrants into a 5 1/2 per cent bond issue. A reputable Portland bond house was contracted with to handle the transaction. Later when this fact became generally known an attempt was made by private parties to buy the bonds from under the Portland house. These individuals did not come before the board, all negotiations being carried on with one member of the board only. It could not be called a bid, for the second party had full knowledge of the proposition made and accepted by the Portland firm, and was therefore able to offer a lower figure than had been offered. The board felt that it was not an ethical or legitimate proceeding and refused to repudiate its contract with the Portland house and compromise the integrity of the district.

Clerk.

NEAL OF THE NAVY AT PAGE TONIGHT

A strong story by a strong author, William Hamilton Osborne. One of the most beautiful and talented of the theatrical idols of the day, Lillian Lorraine, plays the lead. A sumptuous production and action from start to finish.
Neal, the son of a sea captain, and the little daughter of the proprietor of Lost Island, are left homeless by the eruption of Mount Pelee, in Martinique.
Scenes of the actual eruption, taken by Pathé camera men, are shown. The clouds of steam, smoke and ashes and the masses of lava rolling down the mountain side are shown in close-up views, to get which some operator must have risked his life.

GRIZZLIES ENTERTAINED BY SPINISTER TRIO

Friday evening a large audience filled the Natatorium hall, when, through the efforts of the Grizzlies, the Spinister Trio appeared. This trio is composed of Miss Gladys June Hinman, Miss Genevieve Wortman and Miss Carolina Jacks, who displayed their ability as artists. Miss Hinman has a dramatic contralto voice with an exceptionally wide range and wonderful volume, which was well expressed in her selection, "Who's at My Window?" which was most enthusiastically received. Miss Wortman was ably assisted by Miss Hinman at the piano, whose accompaniments proved that she was with the soloist in thought and feeling, as well as note.
The reading by Miss Jacks formed a very enjoyable feature of the program. Dramatic ability of a high order was displayed in her interpretation of the scene from "If I Were King."
The hall was most beautifully decorated with palms, ferns and chrysanthemums. After the concert refreshments were served, followed by dancing, which was enjoyed until a late hour.
