

MEDFORD WINS FROM ASHLAND BY SCORE 7 TO 0

The largest and noisiest attendance at any football battle in Rogue River valley was that which saw the big game between the Ashland and Medford high school teams yesterday on the former team's granite gridiron. Notwithstanding the almost constant downpour of rain for seven or eight hours previous to the game, the grounds were not muddy enough to interfere much with the play. Nearly 2000 people from Medford and vicinity were in attendance.

Briefly told, it was a clean game throughout on the part of both teams, although the Ashland contingent complained somewhat noisily at times about rough play. However, Medford had the edge on the game from the start and, through the excellent work of Coach Klum they seemed to have little difficulty in holding it.

Not a score was made until the last quarter, when Medford scored a touchdown and kicked the ball over the goal, giving them the only score in the game. Thus the score card read: Medford 7, Ashland 0.

Coach Klum was picked up bodily and carried from the grounds on the shoulders of the Medford huskies in recognition of his skillful management of the team's work.

Clare Seeley was credited with a star performance on two in the early part of the battle and with repeating it several times in the third and fourth quarters.

Billy Mitchell of the Medfords was injured considerably toward the close of the contest and was carried from the field at the close of the struggle.

The Ashland boys generally took the defeat good-naturedly, but a few were inclined to mar the general good feeling by rough talk after the contest closed.

The Medford team, by this remarkable game, won the championship of southern Oregon. It is the first Medford victory over Ashland in the past five years.

ISN'T IT SHOCKING! DAME FASH ION'S FUR TRIMMED STOCKINGS

Dame Fashion won't stop at anything—so she's skipped right past shoe tops and now three or four rows of fur on Mlady's stocking is the latest. The new style so far is only used on filmy, thin stockings to be worn with a dancing frock and slippers.

An endless variety of kinds of fur are called into use by the new fad for one's stockings must match the color of one's evening frock and, of course, the fur must be of the same color as the stockings.

Mr. Miner had been complaining of unusual difficulty in breathing during the past two weeks, but he was otherwise hale and hearty, although 79 years of age.

E. J. Miner of San Francisco, the only son, was immediately summoned by telegraph. He will arrive on the 5:20 this afternoon. Funeral arrangements will be made after his arrival. Mrs. Miner is prostrated by the sudden passing of her husband.

Decesed was well known as a commercial traveler through this valley long before the railroad came. Soon after Medford became a business point of consequence he and Mrs. Miner located on a farm in the Willow Springs district, removing to this city some eight years ago, and have since lived here.

Decesed was born in New York state 79 years ago. From there he moved to Wisconsin and from the latter state, after doing business at various points in the west, finally came to Oregon to make his home, and eventually located in this valley permanently. E. J. Miner, the only child, is traveling for the same house in San Francisco for which he began work thirty years ago.
