Farmers who have begun to feel that the precipitation of moisture so far during the month suggests the return of normal conditions in this valley would better keep close tabs on the weather man. The rainfall to date since mid-summer is 2.88 inches, as against 3.76 inches as the average for November alone in this valley. We have had one good shower, that on Thanksgiving Day, when it gave us 1.06 inches; Jacksonville received 1.50 and Talent .85 of an inch. So, it may be seen clearly that we are yet far behind the average rainfall, with little hope that we'll ever catch up. Irrigation is the only means of local salvation for the farmers.

WROTE INSULTING LETTERS TO FIANCEE OF THE PRESIDENT

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—A man describing himself as Samuel White, 27, an inventor, was arrested here today by police and secret service agents charged with having written insulting letters to Mrs. Edith B. Galt, President Wilson's fiancée, and her mother, Mrs. Boiling.

White, according to the police, admitted having written to Mrs. Galt and Mrs. Boiling concerning a patent egg carrier, to be used in the mails, and two new musical instruments.

The prisoner said, the police added, that he wrote the first letter for a Samuel Osborne of Chicago, who had invented one of the musical instruments.

White told the police that he met Mrs. Galt and her mother here in 1912.

White was arraigned later in the day and sent to Bellevue hospital for five days observation. The complaint in the affidavit against White was given as Mrs. Norman Galt, but a detective made the charge when White appeared in court.

PRETTY TEACHER HAS CLASS OF BIG BOYS ARRESTED FOR KISSING HER

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Miss Matilda Well is so pretty the boys in her class at public school No. 36, just couldn't resist the temptation to kiss her. As a result she caused the arrest of almost the entire class after a "kiss raid" in which she was compelled to seek refuge in another room.

MARY PICKFORD AT STAR THEATRE TODAY

Mary Pickford, the idolized star, adds another striking characterization to her notable repertoire of screen successes in the five-part adaptation of the great drama of optimism, "The Dawn of Tomorrow," the world-famous story of a young girl's unflinching faith and triumphant ultimate reward, which will be shown at the Star theatre Monday only, matinee and evening, on the Paramount program.

The delicate touches with which the noted woman playwright adorned a beautiful idea, the tenderness with which she suggested something half philosophy, half theology, and half-thirds intense drama, if such a fractional division is possible. The story, founded on a love and trust that knows no fear, comes close to you and warms your heart. It tells a pathetic story, behind which is a shadow of spiritual purpose, and its influence cannot be other than uplifting and edifying. Best of all, it reveals the inimitable Mary Pickford in a character of the very essence of which is womanly nobility, a nobility even intensified because the character is clothed in rags.

EAGLETS ON THE WING

By A. C. Howlett

The last time I wrote for the Mail Tribune I stopped when I had reached Portland with the understanding that I was to tell something of what I saw after I reached Salem. The first thing that particularly attracted my attention after reaching the capital of our state, and leaving the S. P. depot, for we all know that that is not in fact, was the beautiful streets and buildings, and these buildings, at least many of them of a modern appearance and the surroundings arranged with the utmost taste, for while Portland can boast of her flower gardens and artistic work, Salem has some of the most beautiful exhibits to be seen anywhere, and the buildings, and especially the business blocks, reflect credit on the enterprise of the citizens. But it is expected that the state capital will be attractive. Taking the Oregon Electric car at 1:45, we traveled through as fine a farming country as any one could wish to see, and one thing that particularly attracted my attention was the universal neatness of the farms that led me to conclude that the owners were generally persons of intelligence and enterprise, and one thing that led me to think the farmers were generally "fall-handed" was that they nearly all appeared to be engaged in the dairy business to a greater or less extent, and I noticed in one of the local country papers that it is claimed that on some of the farms they are realizing as high as $500 a year off an acre of ground. This is, of course, counting in the expense of labor, etc., but the farmers have learned the value of barn manure as a fertilizer, and they do save and use it all, thus putting back onto the land all and more than they took off. And then they aim to keep stock enough to eat the most of the hay, grain and a good part of the vegetables they raise on the farm. Near the little village where I am now writing there are two farms where they keep large herds of Holstein cows, sell the milk to the Portland people and thus make big money. I also noticed as I rode along the road that, notwithstanding the fact that Oregon and Washington both word "dry," that there were several hop fields to be seen along the route. Another thing that I noticed was that the farmers in many places are turning their attention to the cultivation of corn and are using the silos, thus securing a fine substitute for green feed for their cows.

On reaching Portland, among the first things I did was to pay my respects to the headquarters of the Anti-Saloon league, where I met several of my old time friends. Spending the night with one of my brothers-in-law, the next morning I went direct to the White Temple and heard Attorney General George M. Brown explain the new prohibition law of Oregon in a talk of about an hour, in which he explained the different points and answered various questions bearing on the law and its enforcement. He was followed by District Attorney W. H. Evans of Portland, and between the two attorneys almost every phase of the law was brought out. Among other questions asked was, would each member of a family of the father, mother, two sons of 25-27 years of age, and a daughter of 20 years of age, and all living under the same roof, order the specified amount, two quarts of

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if Bladder bothers you—Drink lots of water.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

whisky or twenty-four quarts of beer for each member of the family. Whereupon Attorney Brown turned to the decisions of the supreme court to define what constituted a family, and then told us that under the decisions of the higher courts that the father, or in case it was a family where the mother was the head of the household, was the recognized head of the family, and that only the allowance for one person could be obtained in that family. There were several other questions asked and answered, and while I am on this subject I will add that Attorney General Brown and District Attorney Evans have prepared a layman's primer on the Oregon dry law and is being sent out by the Anti-Saloon league of the state that seems to answer almost every question on the subject that can be thought of.

Before I close this letter I must beg space to say something about the weather. It was raining on Monday, November 15, when I left home, and it has been raining almost all the time ever since, and the wind is so cold that it seems as though I would freeze. And the wind blew so hard Monday, the 22d, that it stopped the electric car traffic most all day from 9:15 a. m. to 4:30 p. m., but the people on here don't seem to notice the wind or rain any more than a duck would. I understand this (Tuesday) morning that yesterday there was a half an inch of water fell in thirty minutes. It surely rains some up here, but we are living in hopes of having a little better weather for Thanksgiving day.

CANADA SEIZES WHEAT

the position that the action of the Canadian government meant that Canada was to have difficulty in filling foreign requirements, this meaning a falling off in United States exports.

After saying a little further the market tightened again on the view that an enlarged demand on domestic stocks of wheat might be ultimately unavailing. Word was received that export sales for shipment by way of the Gulf of Mexico had been made today amounting to 500,000 bushels.

No confirmation was obtainable here that the seizure of Canadian wheat was largely for Italy's benefit. Assertions that more than $12,000,000 worth of wheat had been bought in Chicago for Italy were said probably to mean the whole United States, instead of Chicago.

TAKE "CASCARETS" IF HEADACHY, BILIOUS AND CONSTIPATED

Best for Liver and Bowels, Bad Breath, Bad Colds, Sour Stomach

Get a 16-cent box. Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach. Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 16-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.—Adv.
