All the tion and tooms that can be used will be employed until the canal shall have been finished, which will be in six weeks or about the first of April. Seventy men will start on the work today. At least two men will be required to complete the lab.

The farmers are watching the onterprise with much interest, knowing that they will have to depend on the canal for moisture for their crops this year. The company will lose no time in supplying them with all the water they will need.

The canal on the Phoenix segment has been completed, except a few laterals, on which work is being done

This implement selves the problem of storing water and breaking up a hardpan.

It pulverizes the subsoil so as to allow the surplus water on the surface to run deep down in the soil and be preserved for dry summer use. Also by taking the surplus water off the surface the seed has a chance to get a good start before the dry season sets in.

This implement is so constructed that it may be easily pulled in our soils by two horses,
