

EAGLE POINT EAGLETS

By A. C. Howlett

Mr. and Mrs. George von der Heiden and son, Dan, accompanied by Mrs. Pevvel, of Corvallis, were guests at the Sunnyside on Tuesday. Also Henry Lusty, H. H. Minter, W. E. Hamner and Mrs. Peter Stoddard, of Butte Falls.

Mrs. Stoddard came out to spend a few days to consult with Dr. Holt with regard to her health. And Mr. Hamner had just returned from serving on the grand jury in Jacksonville. Tuesday being a holiday, proved to be quite a noted day in our little town, as that was the day on which the Rebekahs held their regular lodge meeting at night, and the way it turned out will be a day long to be remembered by our blacksmith, W. L. Childreth, for on that day, or rather evening, he was joined in marriage to Mrs. Sophia Robbinett, by Rev. L. L. Simmons, the pastor of the Baptist church in this place, in the Odd Fellows' hall at the close of the lodge work. They marched from the anteroom, Rev. Simmons in the lead, J. W. Grover with the groom, and then came Mrs. Grover and the bride-to-be, and stationed themselves under an arbor on the grand master's throne and amid the most profound silence Rev. Simmons read a portion of scripture and then joined them in marriage. After spending a short time in tendering congratulations therewere at least thirty-two of us seated at the well supplied tables for the supper that had been prepared by the friends of the bride and groom. Now it is almost useless for me to try to describe that feast for they had almost everything on the tables and sideboard that the most fastidious could desire or imagine. After the feast was over the groom and wife arose to their feet and in a short address thanked the brothers and sisters of the lodge and visiting friends for their kindness in thus honoring them, after which Mr. C. took a box of cigars and Mrs. C. a basket of oranges and distributed them among those present. And by this time it was near 11 o'clock so we, after bidding the bride and groom a hearty good night, began to start for our homes. Thus ended the day that is commemorated as the birthday of the Father of our country.

On Wednesday R. D. Hoke, proprietor of the Rogue River Valley cannery and his son, H. E. Hoke, accompanied by George E. Johnson, were out getting the farmers and gardeners to contract to put in tomatoes for their cannery. And Mr. Johnson was out hustling up business for the P. & E. R. R. They seemed to be succeeding quite well in their undertaking. They were all at the Sunnyside about 12 o'clock noon and so was J. H. Dristoll and Ed. Walker, the men who are looking after the game and birds, and Sam Sandry, the deputy fish warden. There was not anything of interest occurring that day, only a few of the farmers came to town to have their plows sharpened or to get something they had to have: they are too busy farming this lovely weather. But Thursday was another rather noted day as two more hearts were joined together until death do them part. Yes, we had another wedding in our neighborhood on Thursday, two weddings in one week in a thinly settled community is not so bad, and there have been four couples so united since the 19th day of January. Three out of the six were boarders at the Sunnyside, and there is talk of two more weddings from the same hostelry. The ladies are surely taking advantage of the leap year season. But I did not tell who were married. The last couple that were married was Samuel H. Courtney and Miss Samantha (Mattice) Minter, on Thursday, February 24, at the residence of the bride's father, R. H. Winter, by Rev. L. L. Simmons. There were thirty-two persons present, all told, and after the marriage ceremony was performed we were seated at a long table, at least eighteen of us were, and O. such a spread—but what is the use of talking about a big feed out in this Butte Creek country. Well, after we had eaten more than prudence would dictate, the second course came on, ice cream and cake. Some of them had the faculty of holding out, especially the three preachers, Rev. Simmons, he is a stayer; Rev. Smith, the Sunday school man, and your correspondent tried to keep up with him, but signally failed. In the course of time we all left the table and took a stroll around and had some photos taken of the group and the family, then they marched back to the table and commenced to eat cake and ice cream again, but right there I drew the line—threw up the sponge and wilted. After spending the most of the afternoon with the family we began to separate, wishing the newlyweds a long and prosperous journey through life.

Friday there was nothing of special interest occurred until at night, unless it was that Mr. and Mrs. Austin and L. H. Schmalhausen, of Medford, came out to spend a part of the day visiting the Howlett family. Mr.

in speaking of this country, of our beautiful climate and the productiveness of the soil, said that in all of his travels he had never seen any country to compare with Rogue river valley.

Friday night Mrs. Owen, the lady evangelist, who has been lecturing here for the last week, gave an entertainment in the opera house that was not only very interesting, but instructive. She opened the exercises by having the entire audience of over 100 join in singing "America" with Miss Clair Zimmerman as pianist, and they sang it with a vim that you don't find outside of Eagle Point. She then gave us a short talk and sang several of those old southern melodies that we use to hear in our childhood days that would almost raise the hair on a bald head. She then introduced Miss Clair Zimmerman and she rendered "A Warning," in her own peculiar style and it was received with an outburst of applause. Then Mrs. Owen gave us a fine address and whistled for about half an hour, when she bade us good night. The entire company seemed to regret that she did not talk longer, for she surely can hold an audience.

John Holtz, one of the forest rangers, spent the night with us Friday.

Mr. Dutrey, who owns a sawmill between here and Butte Falls, has established a lumber yard here and I understand that Mr. Newport, the depot agent, will look after it at present.

J. H. Cooley, Professor C. E. Johnson and Mr. Everett were here for dinner Saturday.

ANTIOCH ITEMS

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Cotterill of the Meadows are visiting in the valley this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Glass and Oscar Rodgers of Beagle motored to Medford Monday on land business.

Bert Chapman is plowing for Del Morrison for his spring crop of grain.

Rube Moore had a painful accident this week. He was chasing a steel to the corral on a barebacked horse. The horse was thrown by a calf and Rube had his wrist put out of place in the mixup and other-bruises and will have to carry his arm in a sling for a few days.

Some parties in Medford have a large herd of goats on the upper Table Rock. Frank Messen is the herder.

Thomas Jones, one of Antioch's pioneer farmers, was in Medford this week on land business.

The spelling contest between the Chaparral school and the Son's Valley school was a victory for the Chaparral pupils. Both of them did remarkably well and are progressing in these studies, and it is a credit to the teachers of both schools.

There will be a dance at the Moore residence at the upper Table Rock Saturday night, March 4.

Claude Chapman and sisters, Viola and Myrtle, and Miss Zella Taylor and Mr. Abbott, Jr., motored to Grants Pass Sunday.

Mr. Trowbridge of Medford motored out to his Antioch ranch Saturday with a load of young fruit trees.
