SWIFTWATER BILL OFF FOR BOLIVIA

SAN FRANCISCO, March 21.-"Swiftwater Bill" Gates, who formerly mined near Jacksonville, man of many wives and adventures as numerous, is going to make his adventures better his matrimonial record. He's going to Bolivia to seek gold and excitement, far from the madding throng and equally far from feminine influence save possible Indian girls who may inhabit the banks of the River of Doubt or any other river from the banks of which one may dig gold.

"Swiftwater Bill" has a secret mining claim down there somewhere, and he is going to bring back a few millions as possible ammunition for Capid. That's all he will say about the quest. The details he will keep shrouded in deep and impenetrable silence.
