BRITISH STEAMER ZENT TORPEDOED WITHOUT NOTICE

LONDON, April 18.—An announcement was issued by the admiralty today corroborating the previous unofficial statement that the British steamship Zent, sunk early this month, was torpedoed without warning. The statement is as follows: "The British steamer Zent, unarmored, was sunk by a torpedo from a submarine April 5 without any warning whatever. She sank in a very few minutes and consequently forty-nine lives were lost."

Regarding the Holland-American freighter Eemodijk, which arrived at Southampton April 11 in a damaged condition, the admiralty statement says: "The Dutch steamer Eemodijk was torpedoed by an enemy submarine on April 7 while on a passage from Baltimore to Rotterdam. She had the Dutch colors painted on her sides in four different places and also carried a rigid painted ensign at the foremast head, her name and port of register in large white letters on her sides. The ship did not sink and has been hauled in England. Careful examination by experts has been made of fragments of steel and brass which were found embedded in the ship, which are undoubtedly portions of a torpedo, and which have the same appearance as those found in other cases wherein ships have been torpedoed by German submarines."

EXPECT GALLANT TURKISH DEFENSE ON BLACK SEA

PETROGRAD, April 18.—Having occupied the strongly fortified Turkish position on the left bank of the Ka Dere on the Turkish Black sea coast, the Russian forces have passed the last of a series of natural obstacles along the coast, the defensive advantages of which had been made the most of by the Turks. Thus they have entered the immediate area of the Trebizond fortifications.

The Russians now are separated from the city of Trebizond by only sixteen miles of roadway, no part of which is considered capable of sustaining a defense, although, since the fall of Erzerum, the Turks have undertaken everything possible to perfect the defensive power of the Trebizond fortifications and greatly increased the garrison, which now is said to contain three complete divisions.

Therefore, the word "imminent" no longer is used here in predicting the occupation of Trebizond, and it is realized that the city will be taken only after the hardest kind of a struggle, which is likely to outlast in stubbornness and duration the one which resulted in the fall of Erzerum.

The capture of the Kara Dere position, which necessitated the crossing of the swift stream, which is particularly swollen and turbulent at this time of the year, was made possible by the fine assistance rendered by the Russian fleet.

LARGE AUDIENCE LISTENS TO BURTON ARRAIGN WILSON

One of the largest assemblies ever gathered in this city to hear a political speech, heard the address of ex-Senator Theodore E. Burton Monday evening at the Naturatorium. The speaker was suffering from impotence so severe that it was with great difficulty that he made himself distinctly heard by half of the audience. Many left the auditorium early in the evening on that account. That condition also served to worry the speaker in a manner that rendered his best effort impossible.

To those who heard the address, however, it was disappointing. It was a partisan speech. The senator announced yesterday to reporters that his speeches heretofore during the campaign will be partisan. The senator devoted much time to criticism of President Wilson's administration, after declaring that the republican party is more enthusiastic and confident in this campaign than it had been since the campaign of 1904. "Not a single democratic administration," declared the senator, "has succeeded itself since the civil war."

Criticism Inconsistent

Senator Burton's arraignment of the present administration was feeble, considering the sources from which it came, and in many instances inconsistent. For instance, he severely assailed President Wilson for refusing to recognize President Huerta of Mexico, who gained that official place by butchery and assassination, and then told Mexico to settle its own troubles; and, in the next breath, he almost tearfully lamented the fact that this administration had not intervened in Mexico for the protection of American lives and property.

The senator assailed the diplomatic department of the present administration as weak and ignorant, without reference to the tragic conditions and extraordinary embarrassments and restrictions under which they are compelled to serve a neutral nation during the maelstrom of butchery in Europe.

"Violated pledges, broken promises, vacillation and instability" were frequent charges made against the Wilson administration, with only here and there a suggestion of basis for the charge.

The charge that the democratic administration promised a reduction in the high cost of living and had failed shamefully to produce it was followed closely by a statement showing that, in prosperous times, when the consumption of staples and luxuries is increased in volume by reason of greater purchasing power in the hands of the common people, such a reduction is an absolute impossibility.

Senator Burton believes that a president should be elected for one term only, and intimated that, since the democratic platform had declared that it would hold Wilson to the one-term idea and had failed to keep its pledge, the republican party next fall would rescind that platform pledge for it.

The address of Senator Burton was received with very little enthusiasm.

A Brisk Flash of Oratory

Ex-Congressman Ralph D. Cole of Ohio followed Senator Burton in a real, old-fashioned, rapid-fire outburst of pyrotechnic campaigning, telling of amusing experiences in his life, both private and public, and concluding with a peroration of puns—some for Senator Burton.

Mrs. E. B. Hanley addressed the assemblage on behalf of woman's privilege and duty in the government of the country and paid a glowing tribute to the manner in which they had so far demonstrated their ability to work shoulder to shoulder with men in the task of advanced civilization through political organization and the maintenance of peace and prosperity.

Attorney Gas Newbury introduced Senator Burton in a brief talk concerning the issues and the greatness of the speaker of the evening, concluding with an arraignment of Wilson.
