

MARY ANTON TO LECTURE AT NAT TUESDAY EVENING

The visiting Russian ballerina will enter and stand without a mask and speak in her native tongue at the Natatorium, April 22, at 7 p.m.

The wife of Anatole, who passed her famous name, The Promised Land, had no objection to Mary Anton.

To those not their friends, it may be said, that coming to this country from Russia with her parents twenty years ago a child of thirteen, with no word of English and an eager sense of life outside the foreign gate, within sixteen years she attained one of the two great loves of the time.

The Promised Land is a human document of extraordinary vividness and power. It appeared briefly in a leading magazine and is back now attaining an enormous circulation. It describes the life of the Anton family in Russia, their immigration to this country, and the impressions made by this land of the tree on the author while they were struggling with adverse circumstances in Boston.

Another work lately issued and attracting wide attention, is entitled, They Who Know at Our Gates. This deals with immigration from the standpoint of one who knows.

Mary Anton, who in private life is Mrs. Amanda W. Graham, wife of a Columbia university professor, was fortunate in having her ability early recognized by her family who made every sacrifice to keep her in school, and by her teachers who gave her all possible encouragement and help. Dr. Edward Everett Hale also became much interested in her development and Josephine Laxorus inspired her with her ideals.

With characteristic racial persistence in the face of adversity and often against the most discouraging surroundings, she pursued her studies, broadening from the little Latin School of Boston and entering that great college in New York.

Todays Mary Anton is an ardent woman. A representative of the West comes, a student of democracy, she brings with her, except from the little Latin School of Boston and entering that great college in New York.

The titles of her talks are filled with page after page of God and His World, the Responsibility of Some to Others, Citizenship, American Ideas and the Birth of the Past, The Public School as a Test of American Youth, the Excellence of the School and How to Make the Most of Life, the Real Life in the Public School in America, the Right and Wrong are Made of, as illustrated by The Promised Land, America in the Light of the European War.

Whether she speaks on the responsibilities of American Citizenship or the Pacific behind as a Test of American Path, the Incident in Seattle and In Life of French Life in the Path of the End, the lesson reaches that she has been learning to a place for liberty, democracy and human rights. Indeed Mrs. Anton is herself a perfect and complete illustration of her test.

STANFORD DEFEATS CALIFORNIA EASILY

OAKLAND, Calif., April 22.—Stanford won the series last night, defeating California here this morning, defeating the Blue and Gold in the Intercollegiate football game. The standing record for the three games is 1-1-1.

After the game, the Stanford students gathered around the field to sing the school song.

Some 2,000 spectators from the West were present to witness the game. A large number of the students were in uniform, some in blue and gold, others in white and gold.

While the game was being played, the students sang the school song.
